

Jobs Offered In Fields Of Radio and TV

Salem College students who are interested either in summer jobs with WBT-WBTV or full time careers upon graduation can obtain information concerning these possibilities March 19.

Dr. Hixson announced that W. Chase Idol, Jr., Personnel Director of Jefferson Standard Broadcast Company in Charlotte, will be at Salem on Thursday, March 19 from 10:20 a.m. until 3:00 p.m.

He will discuss the possibilities of summer jobs for students as sales promotion assistants, radio secretaries, stenographers, typists, and TV program assistants and continuity writers. Career possibilities in those fields will also be discussed for graduates.

The general meeting will be at 10:20 a.m. in Room 20. However, students who find it impossible to attend at that time should leave their names with Dr. Hixson Thursday morning and a later meeting that afternoon will be scheduled.

Profs Will Go To Convention

Dean Ivy Hixson, Dr. Dale H. Gramley and Dr. Michael Lewis are attending a conference on liberal education at Randolph Macon College in Lynchburg, Va. The conference begins today and will continue through Sunday. The Salem representatives will return Saturday night.

This meeting takes the place of the inauguration of Dr. William F. Quillian, Jr. as president of Randolph Macon.

Panel To Be Held

Edwin Shewmake will take part in a panel discussion presented by the Arts Council of Winston-Salem at 4:00 p.m. on Sunday, March 15 at the Arts Center, 822 West 5th Street. "Living Today" will be the topic of this discussion on contemporary architecture.

The panel will be composed of Mr. Shewmake, head of the Salem art department, Robert Auy and Lamer Northup.

Norma Williams Will Wed Scott Stidham In June

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph B. Williams of Wilmington announce the engagement of their daughter, Norma Louise, to Scott Filmore Stidham of Danville, Va., son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold G. Stidham of Fort Smith, Ark.

The wedding will take place at 5:00 p.m. on June 27, at the Grace Methodist Church of Wilmington.

Norma's maid of honor will be Alma Brigham of Raleigh, a former Salem student. She will have eight bridesmaids, four of whom are Salem girls. They are Martha Newcomb, Jo Bell, Julia Moore, and Carolyn Dobson. Another former Salem student, Joan Cornelius of Greensboro, will also be a bridesmaid.

Norma graduated from New Hanover High School in Wilmington and is now a senior sociology-economics major at Salem.

Scott attended West Point, Arkansas State and N. C. State, graduating from the latter with a major in industrial engineering.

Norma and Scott will live at 120 Hariss Place in Danville, where Scott is an engineer with the Dan River Mills.

Choral Group Sings

An octet composed of members of Salem's Choral Ensemble sang at Grace Moravian Church in Mount Airy last Sunday. Dr. Dale H. Gramley and Elizabeth Krauss spoke to the group.

Salem Seniors

Cheers have drawn up their plans for their Class of Classical Dance in Walkertown.

Calculating Carmen Johnston will be a test pilot for Lockheed and Ann Simpson will work as a mechanic there.

The rest of the seniors are still puzzled about the future. Marcia Skinner says she is going to North Africa to get away from it all. Most of the seniors, however, are not quite as rash. A few graduates plan to enlist. Some one told them to go where the men are and that's where most of them can be found now.

With the spring, seniors become very contemplative and try to make momentous decisions such as the before-mentioned seniors have done. If any Salemites would like to know about what the outside world has to offer in the way of jobs, just ask a senior. They know.

Small Memories Help To Recall Happy Days To Salem Seniors

By Jane Fearing

In three more months I'll remember Salem because I spent four years there. And in those four years, many things happened. Most of all I'll remember Salem for all the small memories.

I'll remember freshman year when I was so impressed because "Bright" remembered my name after the first week of school . . . I'll remember "Rat Week" and how my big sophomore, Betsy Farmer, drew me aside and told me if the "going got too tough," just let her know . . . I'll remember Miss Nicholson for her patience and understanding during those trying days . . . I won't ever forget my freshman advisor who always remembers me with a Christmas card each year—Mr. Campbell.

As A Sophomore

Then came sophomore year . . . I'll remember how life took on a different color and I realized that one had to learn how to live with one's self before living with others . . . I'll remember the purple and yellow velvet pansies Miss Anna gave Sisters' on May Day weekend to place in the smoker . . . The big decision over majors and minors . . . Most of all, the steady growing of friendship and lots of laughter . . . A new world . . . A new insight.

Things are a bit hazy but I can remember how in my junior year Dr. Singer made me become aware of the importance of history . . . I'll remember the beauty of back campus in the spring (the art major coming out in me) . . . the umpteen times that I anticipated the walk to the post office and came back empty-handed . . . The budding willow tree . . . I'll never forget dorm decorations at Christmastime, all the girls working together for the sheer pleasure of helping.

As A Senior

Most of all, I'll remember Salem for my senior year . . . I'll remember the first and only time I Salem committee.

entered chapel to the senior procession of "Standing at the Portals" . . . Dr. Gramley for his warmth and protecting guidance . . . The times that small differences between friends seemed like a major crisis, and then with a silent but swift "patching up" everything was all right . . . Miss Essie just for being herself . . . The annual Christmas banquet that we'll never attend again as students.

I will never forget the education courses because I'll be "practicing what was preached" next year . . . I'll remember how the faculty recognizes individuality . . . The wobbly bricks on the path to the dining hall, and how, when it rained, you saw tiny sprays of fresh rain on your white socks . . . Violent arguments ranging from radical differences to the color of a bridesmaid's dress, and lasting until 3:00 a.m. . . . The interest of Miss Byrd in her Sisters.

I'll Remember

I'll remember the lazy Sunday afternoons and wish for them back . . . The feeling of accomplishment . . . The growing affection for Salem . . . Missing the show trips and popcorn . . . I'll miss and vividly want the charge account I once had at Salem Book Store . . . I'll remember the serious talks with my buddies . . . The "short sheets" we have received and emphatically given . . . And I'll long to be back when I get out Jean Davenport's "Sights and Insights" and see familiar faces . . . Oh, I won't forget Salem because there I lived, learned, and became a better person, I hope.

I'll remember Salem, and most of all I'll remember it for the small memories.

It's March 15!!!

the tax collector has likely taken all you had so I'm sure you won't be interested in my ad, but, I'm closing my stock of rugs and rug wool.

Reduced—the price is 1/3 more—as a rule—there's a lot of Nylon which I can't use. Even the moths won't abuse.

It's yours for only fifty cents. You might knit some socks for your gents.

A small amount of wool for needlepoint, the price will put your nose out of joint. There's also a table of odds and ends. So come on down and meet your friends.

There's always parking space aplenty. And Imagine—it doesn't cost a penny.
