Lewis, Philips Will Present Joint Senior Music Recital

Marian Lewis

Marian Lewis, soprano, and Nell Philips, organist, will present a joint senior graduating recital at 8:30 p.m., Thursday, May 14 in Memorial Hall.

During her four years at Salem, Marian, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Lewis of Raeford, has been president of the Junior Class, president of Student Government and a representative to Who's Who.

Marian is a religious music major, with a major in voice and a minor in organ. She has studied under Mr. Paul Peterson and Miss Margaret Vardell. She will be accompanied by Mrs. Bailey Glenn.

Nell Philips, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Philips of Battleboro, has been president of the Canterbury Club, a member of the Choral Ensemble and a church organist and choir director and an active worker in the Y. W. C. A.

Nell, a religious music major with an organ major and a voice minor, has studied under Miss Margaret Vardell and Mrs. Nell Starr.

New Policies Are Stated

Three days shall be given to students to report themselves for failure to comply with regulations or infringements of the honor code, announced Alice McNeely, president of Student Government in chapel Tuesday.

In stating other new policies of Student Government, Alice announced that one call down shall be given for failure to sign out for holidays at the time designated.

The section from the handbook which stipulates that students will be granted the privileges of the class above them for the last three weeks of school was read by Alice. These privileges will be granted only if the student is in "good standing" with the Student Government.

Macauley And Writing Class To Hold Forum

Robie M. Macauley of Greensboro will conduct the Writing Workshop of the second term composition class on Thursday, May 14.

Mr. Macauley, author and critic, is professor of English at W. C. U. N. C. and teaches advanced courses in writing.

His first novel, "The Disguises of Love," was published this past winter. Of this first long work, Frederick J. Hoffman commented "Robie Macauley has made of superficial and commonplace matters a novel of peculiarly fine and absorbing texture."

Other stories by Mr. Macauley have been reprinted in "The O. Henry Stories of 1951" and "The Best American Short Stories of 1951."

Mr. Macauley studied under Ford Madox Ford at Olivet College, and also attended Kenyon College and Breadloaf School of English.

Those in the composition class, instructed by Miss Jess Byrd, are Alison Britt, Jean Calhoun, Cynthia May, Connie Murray, Hadwig Stolzitzer, Bryan Balfour, and Russell R. Chambers.

Past and Future European Travelers Dream Of French Lovers, Italian Villas, And Paris

By Betty Lynn Wilson

Europe—an exciting word, isn't it? The word just does something to an imaginative person.

French lovers, Italian villas, Swiss Alps, British countryside,

Venetian canals, and Parisian shops are hazy scenes to the majority of the Salemites.

Yet there are those whose recollections of Black Market cigarettes, Communist rallies, orchids, and sunrises are as vivid as a Picasso painting.

Sandra Whitlock covers when she tells of her escapade abroad down a dark alley to get cigarettes that were so very illegal that they were tossed out a third story window.

Jean Remembers

Jean Edwards is one among many who can reminisce with a romantic look. On the trip going over, there was a young American on his way to the American Embassy in Paris.

A few moments after seeing Jean, he had arranged a later meeting. Before the trip was over, the two were great friends.

By the time the London skyline could be seen, Jean's excitement had mounted to such heights that she had forgotten about her embassy friend. Then three monstrous orchids arrived from the young gentleman—see Jean for the rest of the story.

Do you know what "damen" and "herren" mean? Neither did Myra Dickson until last summer.

Myra wanted to wash her hands and seeing two doors with damen and herren written on them, she entered the one reading herren. Naturally, while Myra was in herren, a 'little man' waddled in.

Myra Forgets

In her flurry to leave, she forgot her rings and didn't realize the loss for several minutes. Myra went back to herren to get her rings, but found them gone.

Deciding the 'little man' had taken them, she reported to the bellhop who told the desk clerk who found the manager who finally reported to the 'little man' who was an hotel official.

To make matters worse, each time a new hotel attendant entered the picture, Myra had to explain what she was doing in herren and why she wasn't in damen. Yes, she did get her rings back, but only after many moments of embarrassment and explanation.

Boots Hudson smiles rather sheepishly when asked to tell of her elevator man, but she really grins at the mention of Tarzan.

He was 6'4" and was Italy's Johnny Weismuller as far as size is concerned. They met in a sidewalk cafe in Rome and a few minutes after the meeting, he was madly in love with her.

Boots said that Tarzan told her he was Italy's champion swimmer (which she well believes) and immediately serenaded her in a huge hotel lobby.

Barbara Fisher really became aware of the tense political situation last summer when she and her companions were stopped by American M. P's. They were unwillingly walking straight into a Communist rally and obviously wouldn't have been safe.

Ann Laughs

Ann R. Morgan still laughs when she recalls the terrible snubbing she received in a swank London club, because she wore a Kelly-green cloth coat rather than a silver blue fox stole.

Faye Lee dreamily remembers moonlight carriage rides and scenes on Capri, but insists that her memories are not for publication.

Everyone knows that a genuine French meal consists of seven or eight courses. Boots and Jean were thoroughly enjoying a dinner in a French restaurant, but by the fourth course, both were too full

Local Teachers Will Be Guests

The seniors who have been student-teachers this year are honoring their critic-teachers with a dinner to be held at 6:00 p.m. on Tuesday night, May 12, in the Club Dining Room.

Critic teachers from both Winston-Salem City Schools and Forsyth County Schools have been invited.

The student-teachers, Dr. Welch, Miss Samson, and Mrs. James M. Hart are representing Salem. The superintendents of the city and county schools, Dr. John W. Moore and Dr. Ralph B. Brimley, and other members of the administrative staffs of the various schools will be present.

House.

At 5:30 p.m. immediately preceding the vesper service, Dr. and Mrs. Dale H. Gramley will entertain the graduating seniors, their families and the faculty at an outdoor dinner.

In case of rain vespers will be held in the Home Moravian Church and the dinner will be served in Corrin Refectory.

Sports Events Fill Calendar

Salem's calendar for the last two weeks before exams has been filled with sports activities.

The 1953 A. A. swimming meet will be held during chapel period next Tuesday, May 12, at the college pool.

Four events will be held in style and speed. They will be classified as follows: free style, side stroke, back stroke and breast stroke.

The meet will be staged between classes with a 5-3-1 point system for each event. The class with the highest number of points will be the victor. The six swimmers participating in each event will be chosen by the class swimming managers.

Miss Margaret Chapman and W. B. East, Jr. will be the judges.

Softball Continues

The softball tournament continued this week with the sophomores and freshmen winning games against the seniors.

On Monday night the sophomores were successful in winning their first game of the season when they defeated their "big sisters" 7-4.

The freshmen defeated the seniors by a 15-2 score on Tuesday.
