

Three Little Words

black robes or gay sweaters. Then one fine Sunday morning I was able to say, "Salem College, here I come." I have never seen such a sea of attractively coloured hair (in Assembly), neither have I experienced such easy friendliness and warmth peculiar only to Americans. In place of cloisters stand attractive buildings expressive of Salem's 182 years of academic, social and moral record. As for the unforgivable idea about nuns, it is best to forget it though I must remember to congratulate a home friend of mine who expressed the wish of seeing me return as one such! I love the clear toll of the class-bell which reminds me of the church-chimes I had been used to counting daily. The falling of maple leaves, an occasional squirrel crossing one's path, the beaus on week-ends, fraternity pins, the small talks and the 'you-all's are a part of Salem life.

Yesterday I was 10,405 miles away in a place called Singapore. I did not know Salem then. Today my feet rub upon Salem's brick paths, I jostle and joke with Salemites, can't resist her piping hot rolls. Tomorrow . . . well, that's another day so long as the three little words play their part.

"Y" Cabinet Holds Retreat

A retreat was held by the YWCA for all cabinet members on Monday at Miller Park. Plans were discussed for October, November, and December. The "Y" will sponsor Religious Emphasis Week, Oct. 19-22, with Reverend Kenneth Goodson as the guest speaker. Tentative plans have been made for Salem-Davidson Day, an auction sale, and a student-faculty coffee. Reverend Sawyer, who is advisor for the YWCA, spoke to the group informally concerning their work on Salem campus. Miss Margaret Barrier, who is also an advisor for the "Y" attended the retreat.

Never Again

By Frank Kinney

If you have found that the excitement, romance and admiration so necessary to a woman's happiness is being lavished on others leaving you lonely and neglected, stop and think for a minute. Happiness is something you earn. Admiration is the coin of payment for the woman who is good-to-look-at. Most women are average looking, of average build, complexion, and stature. Most women dress averagely well and wear average looking hairstyles. The goal to strive for is to be above average if you wish to stand out. The rewards you gain will be greater than your fondest expectations. Never again wear an average looking hairstyle for your hair can be the frame that makes your face appealing. Have your hair dressed in a dramatic manner with a fine permanent wave from The Hair-designers Beauty Salon, 416 N. Spruce St. Phone 4-2411.—(adv.)
