N. York Diary

Managed to get through the New Year's Eve crowd on Times Square without too much wear and tear.

FRI. JAN. 1: Finally got into Music Hall with only a 15 minute wait, and enjoyed the usual lavish Christmas stage show.

In the afternoon at the strange Judith Anderson play "In The Summerhouse", Elizabeth ran into a Lost Colony Choir member. Had a steak dinner at the Black Angus, and then were completely enchanted with the delightful play "The Teahouse of the August Moon".

SAT. JAN. 2: Met friends for lunch before attending the matinee of "Tea and Sympathy"—an absorbing, well-done drama.

Time for a leisurely dinner and short rest before visiting the United Nations with delegate Katherine Cornell in "The Prescott Proposals", which had most interesting stage sets. Strolled through Shubert Alley just in time to see Arline Francis emerge from the Booth stage door. SUN. JAN. 3: Went to church at Marble Collegiate Church to hear Dr. Peale. In afternoon during long wait in Penn Station for naturally late train. Managed to get porter in nick of time to board train, and after dinner, settled ourselves with pillows to sleep all the way to Greensboro.

But no, not with the young ladies returning to a Virginia college who were shouting, squealing, and incessantly tramping up and down the car! Of course, our Salem girls would have let those who wished to sleep do so in peace and comparative quiet. Slept fine between Lynchburg and Greensboro, changed to the rough Winston-Salem train, and arrived at 4 a.m., only an hour late.

Blind Date

By Frank Kinney

Half in hope, half in fear, each party to a blind date waits with mixed emotions for the fateful hour.

A blind date is a great experience, one that will test the metal of any woman. Blind dates are justly famous for either being extreme successes or else, dismal failures. They have a quality for never being half-anything.

A woman never knows how to dress, what to wear, how to act or what to expect. She can't know whether to be the grand lady in her elegant best or to be the sweet young thing in a simple frock. Should she be brilliant and witty or quiet and demure? Would it be better to be cool and formal or warm and friendly; good sport or grand dame?

Who knows? He might turn out to be a drip anyway, then again he could be the one you have dreamed about. A good rule is to prepare for the best but to expect absolutely nothing. Next time you have a blind date come in and let a Hairdesigner be perplexed with you, perhaps a smart looking hairstyle will be just what you need. The Hairdesigners Beauty Salon, 416 N. How the stars got started...

Eddie Sauter and Bill Finegan, leaders of America's most excitingly-different dance band, met in 1939 as struggling young arrangers. Ed had studied trumpet and drum at college, worked up to arranging for "name" bands; Bill had studied in Paris, won a spot with Tommy Dorsey. After 13 years of pooling new ideas, they formed their own band. It clicked!
