Y Party At Orphanage Adds A Special Spirit To Season

By Martha Bowles

Santa Claus is coming—to see the youngsters of Memorial Industrial School. But their Santa doesn't wear a red suit or worry about keeping Rudolph's nose red.

Their Santas wear skirts and sweaters and loafers and worry about—not Rudolph—but Dick or Bill or Jim.

Sometimes Santa has a hard time reaching all the orphanage children, so the "Y" Cabinet sponsors the party in an attempt to fill in some of the gaps by remembering the children with small gifts. Salem girls are responsible for the gifts, usually toys or small articles of clothing or both.

Light refreshments are served by the Cabinet, and various forms of entertainment are provided.

Remember the precious little boy who crawled up into Maggi's lap last year as she read a Christmas story to them? It's pretty obvious that the children enjoy themselves and appreciate their gifts.

But the enjoyment does not travel a one-way highway, for a great part of it comes to us. And not only is it fun for us, but we learn from them the happiness and satisfaction that comes from sharing.

The sparkling expression of thanks that shows itself in the eyes of a child and the honest cry of "Thank you!" that comes from a happy heart brings to us something that we can find absolutely nowhere else—but something that is very real and significant part of a MERRY CHRISTMAS!

Mr. Peterson Writes Book On Singing

Natural Singing and Expressive Conducting is the title that Mr. Paul Peterson has given his recently completed textbook on good vocal techniques. Published by the John F. Blair Company of Winston-Salem, the book will come out on Dec. 12.

It is divided into three sections: Fundamental Techniques of Singing, Advanced Techniques for the Soloist, and Expressive Conducting. Since he intends that his book be used by church choir directors, high school and college voice teachers, private teachers, and students, the author has included extensive lists of anthems and solos in his material.

Mr. Peterson is well-known to Salemites as Head of the Voice Department, director of the Ensemble, and also as the leader of the annual chapel "sings." He is a graduate of the Eastman School of Music and has an M.A. degree in Music Education from Northwestern University.

In addition, Mrs. Peterson is Lieutenant-Governor of the South-eastern Association of Teachers of Singing and is director of the Salem College Summer Choir School.

Letters To Santa

Dear Santa,

I want a toy Santa Claus with reindeer, a new tractor set, cadillac that goes clackety-clack like a choo-choo, a cowboy pistol, a baby-doll with real hair (a girl-doll), a toy telephone, a marble game . . .

Carroll (Spencer)

Dear Santa Claus,

Is your toy shop ready for Christmas? Do you have plenty of dolls? Mother said I was too big for a doll this Christmas, so you are my only hope.

Thank you for the bicycle you gave me last Christmas. I like to ride after dark and I don't have a light. Would you bring me one?

Goodbye until next year.

Your friend,
Jean (Sawyer)

Malin Dreams Of Home And Native Christmas Customs

By Malin Ehinger

During Christmas time in Sweden we generally have cold weather and snow, but there are also other and more important things associated with Christmas at our home.

Four Sundays before Christmas the Advent season begins. One of four candles, symbolizing the four weeks of Advent, is lit on the first Sunday. On each proceeding Sunday another candle is lit along with the previous ones.

Another early Christmas sign is the children's calendar. It has twenty-four shutters on it and the children open one every day beginning the first of December. Inside each one they find a significant Christmas picture.

On the thirteenth of December we celebrate the memory of St. Lucia. The young girls in the families dress in long white dresses, put a crown decorated with green wortleberrie leaves and candles on their heads. At six o'clock in the dark winter morning they go around to family members and perhaps close friends singing and serving coffee.

During the week before Christmas there is also a lot of cooking and baking done. We make sausages and brawns, pork, cooked, pressed, and cut, and for the coffee on Christmas Eve, seven different kinds of cookies and rolls seasoned with saffron are served.

ones. On the Christmas tree we also put cookies, apples, and little baskets with figs and nuts; so that when the tree is taken down thirteen days after Christmas, the children have a big feast.

And on the evening of the 24th we eat for our Christmas dinner "smorgasbord" stock-fish that has been prepared with lye, green peas, and rice-pudding. In this pudding there is an almond and the one who gets it wins a march panpig (almond candy in pig shape).

After the dinner of the 24th Santa Claus comes. He starts earlier in Sweden, you see, and he brings some little things for everyone in the family. The rest of the gifts are distributed by my father, who also reads the funny little sayings that are sometimes on each package.

Early in the morning on Christmas Day we go to a morning service and hear the Gospel of St. Luke, the same that is heard all over the world. When we walk to church that morning there are candles in most of the windows along the way and the church is lighted only with candles.

The day after Christmas Day is also considered a Sunday in Sweden and then the dances start. Soon the Christmas season is only a memory, and the children start making a wishing list for next year.
