

Shouts Of Joy From Florida Students Make Old Snow-Viewers Forget Examinations

By Martha Jarvis

The long awaited event finally arrived and the calm of the Salem campus was broken. "It's snowing," was the excited call that almost shook the ivy off the walls.

Suddenly, all the Florida frosh were going wild. Ann Brinson was jumping up and down saying, "It looks like a big white blanket." Carol Crutchfield could be seen crawling out of one of Cozy's windows to taste some to see if it was real. Camille Suttle and Martha Wilkerson really thought they were in a dream and that Salem looked like a big Christmas card.

For those of us who're old hands last year, is managing editor of the Salemite, assistant editor of the Sights and Insights, a marshal, a Scorpion, and member of the Student Council and A. A. Council. She is an English major.

Sudie Jenkins of Greenville is a chemistry major. She is now with her husband who is stationed at Pensacola, Florida.

Ann Webb, from Morehead City, is majoring in sociology and education. She is a member of the F. T. A., is on the Y Council, and is president of the B. S. U.

Dr. Hixson also announced the Dean's List for the last semester. Senior students are Louise Barron, Barbara Berry, Marianne Boyd, Temple Daniel, Sara Katherine Huff, Jane Langston, Ella Ann Lee, Emily McClure, Emma McCotter, Jean Miller, Agnes Rennie, Mary Mac Rogers, Mary Benton Royster, Betty Saunders, Anne Tesch, and Martha Thornburg.

Sophomores are Martha Ann Bowles, Dianne Byers, Mamie Craig, Barbara Fowler, Marion Harris, Jean Jacobs, Claudia Milham, Miriam Quarles, Betsy Ross Smith, and Nancy Walker.

Also recognized was special student Evelyn Tatum.

at the snow business, the occasion caused less excitement. However, we weren't left out of the atmosphere, for an icy wind began sweeping through Cozy. A quick glance around the room revealed Hila Moore and Martha McKay studying in front of an open window so that the snow would come in on them.

The urge to go out soon became too strong, and exams were forgotten as we more experienced sophomores rushed out to join the yelling bunch in front of Clewell.

Sarah Munroe and Sarah Jane Thompson were fulfilling their heart's desire — to make a real snowball and actually throw it at someone. Between snowballs they kept shouting, "I just can't believe it's really snowing," "It's so fluffy," and "I wish we had this in Florida and Alabama!"

Meanwhile busy hands and squeals of excitement brought the first snowman for many of the frosh and nothing gave them more of a thrill than just touching the stuff.

Suddenly, I looked around and realized how excited we must have been last year when we saw the snow coming down for the first time. However, I guess the prospect of seeing snow is what brings sunshine gals up here to the freezing north to school. Therefore take it from me, my "I've-never-seen-snow-before" friends, that though the desire to go wild fades with experience, we old-time Florida girls feel that there isn't anything like it!
