Critic Visits Fourth Floor Art Exhibit

I had never been on the fourth floor of Memorial Auditorium until today. The elevator was out of order and I must admit that between gasps for breath I had some pretty naughty thoughts when I finally reached the fourth floor landing.

I am not an art student, can't draw a decent circle, but I'd be willing to climb the steps ten more times to see another art exhibit like the one I saw today. It is comprised of about twenty black and white sketches by Leonardo de Vinci.

All of us are familiar with de Vinci's creative power such as we see in his Mona Lisa or his mural painting of The Last Supper. But most of us are not aware of his versatility.

We think that armored tanks, helicopters, and air conditioning belong exclusively to the twentieth century. But here, in the Memorial Hall art exhibit, are plans for these and other modern achievements which are works of art in themselves.

I was amazed to see sketches for the construction of a rotating bridge, an ideal with two-level highways, a tire jack, a spring-driven car, and even aerial bombs.

Why a RECORD VOTE

Will Echo 'round the World

The whole wide world will be watching us Election Day to see if we practice what we preach.

If we don't turn out to vote, we tell our friends abroad that we're not really as sold on our kind of government as we say we are.

A potential enemy would be justified in construing a light vote as a chink in our armor.

Your vote is a genuine deterrent to aggression. If you vote, you're doing what you can for peace in the world—a vote of confidence to the world that democracy can and does really work.

See you at the polls Nov. 6!

Focus On Freshmen

I doubt that you'll ever mistake Tennessee for North Carolina—'least you'd better not—but it's quite easy to confuse Anne Brading from Johnson City, Tennessee, on whom this week's Focus falls, with her North Carolina classmate, Frances Jennette.

Two distinguishing factors are Anne's long hair, and the quarter inch taller she is than her double.

Her last two years of high school were spent at Greenbriar Junior College in Louisville, West Virginia, where she served on the A. A. council and was president of her class.

A piano major at Salem, Anne is planning for graduate school with dreams for the days that will come after. She divides her energy between practicing, hockey, Miss Byrd's English course, and eating,

'too much', she says. When asked "why Salem?" she explained that the Salemite could never carry that story, even with the installment plan. She's glad she came, though, and that's the important thing.

Perhaps it was left in West Virginia or somewhere in the hills of Tennessee, but Anne didn't bring to North Carolina the "traditional" mountain brogue. She did bring her love for hiking, swimming, sports, classical music, and jitterbug with her.

Anne will take Ike for president, blue in preference to chartreuse, and mail from Greenbriar Military School (if it's from John).

She can also use some wooden blocks for her bed—her roommate has only four which she's using.

IT'S FOR REAL! by Chester Field

GABRIEL DOOM

Once every month Gabriel Doom Locked himself up in a sound-proof room; Then he laughed out loud and rocked with glee At a life that was funny as life could be! He laughed at the weather, sunny on Monday... rainy on Saturday, rainy on Sunday. He laughed at the news so loaded with grief that an ax murder came as a pleasant relief! He cried, "what with worry, hurry, and strife you couldn't ask for a funnier life!"
