Ballet Russe Will Perform November 14

The Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo, an outstanding classical and contemporary ballet troupe, will perform at Reynolds Auditorium Wednesday, November 14.

Sponsored by the Civic Music Association, the company is headed by Nina Novak, Polish-born prima ballerina, and Igor Yousekevitch, rated one of the greatest modern male classic dancers.

Directed by Sergei I. Denham, the repertoire include "Coppellia" and "Swan Lake." The troupe is noted for its interpretations of "Gaité Parisienne" and "The Mikado."

A recent addition to the repertoire is dancer Leon Danielian's first choreographic work, "Sombros," a gay flirtation set in a Mexican village.

The Spook Speaks

Out from behind a bush I jumped; Into a Salem girl I bumped. "Hey" she shouted! "don't get fresh." Her claws gouged a little flesh. Blood trickled, my cheek was damaged.

Here's one spook easily managed. "It's all a mistake." I tried to explain. I spoke too late, and certainly in vain. She gouged and she scratched over again; The bruise was washed by the gentle rain. So I thank you for the honor bestowed, Next time, pick a spook who isn't so bold.
