

Miss Juanita Meares Efrd will be married to William Wesley Herndon at Central Methodist Church in Monroe, December 27. Juanita, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Efrd of Monroe, is a senior voice major. She is president of the Choral Ensemble, a member of the I. R. S. Council, and active in the Pierrettes. Wesley, a senior at Georgia Medical School, is the son of Dr. and Mrs. J. B. Herndon of Milledgeville, Georgia. He was graduated from Duke University where he was a member of Pi Kappa Alpha. He belongs to Theta Kappa Psi medical fraternity. The wedding is set for 5:30 p.m. on the 27th. Three classmates of Juanita, Patti Ward, Nell Newby, and Paj Greene will be bridesmaids.

Historians Chat With Davis

The speaker for the installation meeting of the Phi Alpha Theta which met last Monday night was Mr. Chester Davis of the Winston-Salem Journal-Sentinel. After relating instances in his career in which a knowledge of history had been an aid in helping him better understand several situations, Mr. Davis then led a discussion concerning this subject. The four new members who were initiated were two Juniors, Martha Jarvis, Becky Hinkle. Mr. Foster Farley, instructor of history at Salem and Dr. Frank Albright, curator of Old Salem, Inc.

Art Exhibit Is Like A New England Trip

The art exhibit from now until December 18 is an exhibition of thirty paintings of New England

Jane Carter Leaves For New Position

After two years at Salem, another Salemite has transferred—only this one will be hard to replace.

She wasn't really a Salemite—although we would like to have claimed her. Yet she was often seen cooling a cup of coffee at Tom's anxiously awaiting the results of May Court elections, applauding the efforts of a Pierrette production, or even cheering in a faculty-student softball game.

Then too, she looked like a Salemite — or at least, like the I. R. S. would like for all Salemites to look, for she was always neatly dressed in the best of taste as well as the latest fashion.

She was particularly well suited for her job—that of making Salem girls smile. For many of you, she was just about your first taste of Salem, for she posed you for your freshman publicity picture saying, "Remember, this is for your home town paper."

She also made you smile for numerous pictures in the Winston-Salem Journal and Sentinel, for she made certain that people in town knew what was happening on Salem's campus.

And it was certain that if you couldn't find her seated by the door in the public relations office, she was leading some stray photographer or reporter around campus.

But last week she assumed the official reporter role herself, for Miss Jane Carter accepted a position as assistant Woman's Editor for the Winston-Salem Journal.

subjects. The subjects range from well-known tourist attractions to little known, by way beauty spots or historic monuments.

A study of these paintings is like a trip through New England. There are water front sketches, campus, farm, and street scenes, and even a painting of Berkshire Lovers' Leap.

Washington Street, Duxbury by Glenn MacNutt is a quiet village street lined with square white houses and big oak trees. There are two young girls on bicycles and I felt as if I were peddling easily along with them.

I took a poll of the music students passing the exhibit and the most popular painting was Smutty Nose Island by William Barss. It is a dark, gloomy picture of a lonely gray fisherman's shack beside a white capped sea. The infinite detail of the sea reeds in the painting appealed to most of us.

Eleven more days until we get out and eleven more days to go see this reflection of the sights which New England gives its visitors.
