

Performance To Be Given By N. Newby Juniors Elected To Major Positions

Tonight at 8:30 in Memorial Hall Nell Newby will open the annual series of senior recitals given by candidates for the Bachelor of Music degree. She will highlight her program with the Grieg Concerto in A minor.

Now a student of Mr. Clemens Sandresky, Nell has studied piano for twelve years. In Thomasville she studied with Mrs. Clyde DuBose. At Salem, she has studied with Mrs. Margaret Merriman as well as Mr. Sandresky.

Nell is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter F. Newby of Thomasville. On campus she has been active in the Choral Ensemble and Y. W. C. A. and has held the offices of vice-president of Clewell Dormitory and librarian of the Choral Ensemble.

In addition to the Grieg Concerto, Nell's program for tonight will include:

- Toccata and Fugue in D minor
- Sonata in F Major, Op. 54 . . . . . Bach-Tausig
- Waltz in A minor, Op. 34, No. 2 . . . . . Beethoven
- Etude in E, Op. 10, No. 3 . . . . . Chopin
- Sonatina in C Major, Op. 13, No. 1 . . . . . Chopin
- . . . . . Kabalevsky

There will be a reception in the Friendship Rooms of Strong immediately following the recital.

Math Major To Play Bach Monday Night

Nancy Humphrey, who studied mathematics and physics at four universities, will give a Bach recital on the harpsichord in Main Hall, April 1 at 8:30 p.m.

Her musical study was begun at the age of five but was interrupted when she went to college. After teaching math and physics for a time during the war, she again began her study of music seriously.

Her study of harpsichord was encouraged by Ralph Kirkpatrick of Cornell University, although she has not studied with him.

Her musical training is mainly self-taught, since her duties as wife, mother, and piano teacher do not allow much extra time. She lives in Greensboro at the present time.

The program for Monday night includes: French Suite in G major; Preludes and Fugues from the Well-Tempered Clavier; English Suite in A minor; Partita in B flat major; and Chromatic Fantasy and Fugue.

Field Day

On Saturday afternoon, April 6, at 3:00, the Athletic Association will sponsor a field day of spring sports.

Softball, tennis, archery, and relay races will be the major attractions of the afternoon. Prizes will be given, and all sports will be supervised by members of the A. A. council.

Boys are invited to come, too. This is one afternoon when girls will not have to worry about entertainment for their dates.

At 5:30 a picnic supper, complete with fried chicken, deviled eggs, potato salad, and even a bonfire, will take place. There will be enough food to satisfy even the largest male appetite.

Five Offices To Be Filled By Tuesday

Top offices were filled this week for more of the major campus organizations including Pierrettes, Sights and Insights, Athletic Association and May Day.

Five remaining offices will be filled after today's and Monday's elections. The chief marshal and the N. S. A. co-ordinator were named today; Monday's election will decide the president of the rising sophomore, junior and senior classes.

Shirley Redlack from Statesville, N. C., was elected editor of Sights and Insights; Betsy Smith from Mount Airy, president of the Athletic Association; Jane Bridges from Pottstown, Pa., chairman of May Day; and Lynn Hamrick, a day student from Winston-Salem, president of the Pierrettes.

Editor Was Assistant

Shirley Redlack is well suited for her new role since she is assistant editor of the annual for the current year. She is a history major and a member of the International Relations Club.

Shirley's other activities have included IRS, Student Government and President's Forum, and house president of Clewell Dormitory. She is secretary of the Junior class, and a marshal.

Betsy Smith, an outstanding member of the Athletic Council and a chemistry major will fit well as president of the A. A. Betsy's interests at Salem include the Pierrettes, the Honor Society, and she is president of the Lablings.

Court Member Chairman

"Potts", as most people know Jane Bridges, will handle expertly the role of May Day chairman next year. She is an art major and a member of the May Court this year.

"Potts" is photographic editor of Sights and Insights and tennis manager for the junior class.

Music major, Lynn Hamrick has had quite a bit of experience in drama since she has been at Salem and can ably serve the Pierrettes as their president.

Last year, Lynn was in "The House of Bernarda Alba" and last fall she took the lead role in "The Grass Harp".

Shirley Redlack

Her other Salem positions include vice-president of the Choral Ensemble, treasurer of the Day Students and a marshal.

Carol Cooke, Reynolds' representative on campus, and Marcia Stanley, Salemite reporter pose, behind the Camel brand.

News Briefs

The annual Junior-Senior Banquet will take place next Wednesday night at Forsyth Country Club.

Miss Covington attended a meeting of the North Carolina Economists Association in Raleigh on Monday and Tuesday.

While in Raleigh, Miss Covington was the guest of Governor and Mrs. Luther Hodges at the Govern-nor's Mansion.

If you are planning a trip to Tanglewood and know about it ahead of time, the Dean's Office requests that you sign out during the regular hours on Thursday and Friday. Any absence that involves missing a meal is especially important to the dining room because late sign-outs sometimes cause large amounts of food to be uneaten and wasted.

Nancy Lomax Will Narrate May Pageant

Nancy Lomax, freshman from Coral Gables, Florida, has been chosen narrator for the 1957 May Day pageant.

May Day chairman, Joan Reich, announced on Tuesday the beginning of practice for the pageant. Rehearsals will be held from five until six o'clock in Old Chapel, and in the gym, until the weather permits outside rehearsals.

Anne Brinson and Joyce Taylor, dance leaders, have chosen the music and have done the choreography.

The material has been purchased for the costumes which were designed by Jane Bridges, May Day chairman for 1958. The sewing committee will begin work immediately.

The pageant, a Norwegian Fairy Tale, was written by Martha Jarvis. Martha received many of her ideas while studying in Norway this past summer.

May Day is scheduled for May 4. In high school Nancy was outstanding in debating, and was a member of the National Forensic League, an honorary society for high school speakers.

At Salem she is majoring in Home Economics and plans to get a teachers' certificate.

She enjoys water skiing, sailing, and making clothes. She also worked on the committee in charge of redecorating "Davy".
