Jacobowsky Interprets Sonatas In Violin Recital

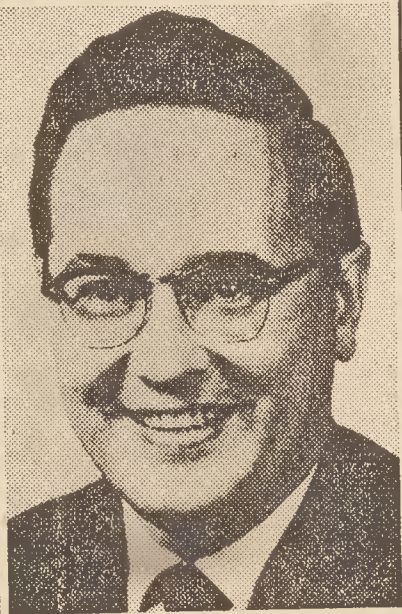

Eugene Jacobowsky, assistant professor of violin, will present a recital Monday, October 5, at 8:30 p.m., featuring sonatas by Beethoven, Poulenc, and Block.

Mr. Jacobowsky will open the program with Beethoven's sonata for violin and piano, Op. 30, no. 2. An interesting feature of the sonata is the canon in the trio section of the third movement. In contrast to the tendency of Baroque and Classical composers to attempt long, long phrases, Beethoven experiments with short motives in this four movement work.

After intermission, Mr. Jacobowsky will play a sonata by the French composer Poulenc, dedicated to Garcin Lorca, the Spanish poet. Lorca, who sang ballads and accompanied himself on the guitar, came to the United States during the Spanish Civil War. He lived in New York and wrote lyric poetry about his native Spain. Shortly after he returned to Spain, Lorca was assassinated, and Poulenc wrote this sonata in his memory. Like many of Poulenc's compositions, this work reflects "La Gaité Parisienne" and reveals the composer's sense of humor.

The final work of the program will be the second of the two sonatas written by Ernest Block. The first sonata reflects the unhappy years of the World War I and of the period immediately following. In contrast, the sonata Mr. Jacobowsky will play is a serene, reflective work. Both Jewish and Catholic elements are present in the composition. Block makes use of Gregorian chant and uses portions of the Gloria and the Credo from the Catholic mass.

Mr. Jacobowsky holds a BS degree from Julliard Conservatory and a MA from Columbia University. He is concert master of the Winston-Salem Symphony and is a member of the Salem College Trio. Hans Heidemann, assistant professor of piano, will accompany Mr. Jacobowsky in his recital.
