

Treasurer Cites Changes In Accounting Procedure

By Grace Walker

Ralph F. Hill, new school treasurer who replaced Miss Anna K. Perryman last spring, was sitting behind his impressive-looking desk as I walked in his office, dripping wet from the current monsoon.

With paper and pencil in hand I sat down in the nearest chair and began popping questions about the changes which had occurred in the treasurer's office. He scratched his thinning hair, looked thoughtfully at the ceiling through his gold-rimmed glasses, and chuckled.

It seems that the handling of personal drawing accounts has been altered somewhat. Now when any student makes a deposit she is given a receipt and must keep her own record of deposits. Formerly, a record of this type was kept for the person by office staff. Also, all treasurers of clubs, classes, etc., must personally deposit or withdraw from their accounts.

Bills sent directly to the treasurer's office will not be charged by office employees to a particular club. The bill will be sent to each representative club treasurer and she must in turn deposit it. These changes simply facilitate the controlling of money which is entrusted to the treasurer's office, according to Mr. Hill.

The greatest improvement, I learned, is that accounting machinery has been installed. No longer will bookkeeping have to be done by hand. While we were on this subject, Mr. Hill mentioned that there were records in the safe which date back to the early 1800's. He obligingly opened the safe, and we began glancing through one of the large, musty-smelling books.

As we flipped through the pages, yellow with age, Mr. Hill pointed out many balance sheets, records, etc., which were written in German. He answered my unasked question by explaining that (at the time) when the Moravian Church was under the jurisdiction of the 'Mother' church in Germany, keeping the records in German simplified things when an annual report was sent to the old country. As we got near the end of the book, however, I was interested in seeing that English was beginning to creep in the records.

I noticed that in 1881 it cost the school $8,600 for boarding students. After a few calculations, Mr. Hill said that it costs perhaps twenty times that amount today.

Feeling that I was taking up too much of his time, I folded my paper, put my pen back in my soggy raincoat pocket, and got up to leave. But Mr. Hill had another interesting story for me. It seems that in 1929 a girl found a watch in her bed. She turned it in to the Treasurer's Office, and it is there to this day.

The bell rang for class, so I had to go, but one of these days I'm going back to see Mr. Hill and ask him if that watch is a man's

Little Theatre Opens Season

Tuesday, Oct. 6, the Little Theatre of Winston-Salem will open the 1959-1960 season with William Douglas Home's witty, sophisticated comedy, "The Reluctant Debutante."

The five-night run will end Saturday, Oct. 10. Starring roles include that of Jimmy Broadbent, the father, played by Douglas Angel; Shelia Broadbent, played by Harriet Robbins; and the debutante herself, played by Tibby Farrell.

For those to whom Little Theatre is new, it is located at 610 Coliseum Drive. Te hadmission at te door is $1.00 for students and $2.00 for adults. Curtain time is 8:15 p.m., and all reservations must be phoned in advance to PA 5-4001.

Wondering when they will be able to hang up their beanies as a fond memory of Rat Week, Freshmen Donnis Mauney of Shelby, Anne Miller of Norton, Va., and Peggy Legette of Winston-Salem consult a Junior Big Sister, Jean Mauldin of Charlotte.

Juniors Will Give Party For Little Sisters

The Junior Class will begin its protection of the freshmen at 9:30 p.m. Thursday night by showing them the world of the Beatniks.

Each Junior will invite her Little Sisters to a Beat Generation party, the first in a series of Little Sister parties being organized with Marjorie Jammer as chairman.

The guests will be expected to wear an appropriate costume, which shouldn't be difficult, since Beatniks wear anything from leotards to blue jeans, tennis shoes to beards, and, of course, dark glasses.

"Mademoiselle" Opens Contest

Mademoiselle magazine is now accepting applications for membership on its 1959-1960 College Board. Contestants have a chance of winning one of the 20 Guest Editorships for a month on the Mademoiselle staff. The contest is open to all undergraduate women.

The guest editors will spend next June in New York helping to write, edit, and illustrate the August issue. The girls will also do one assignment during the college year. This may be a feature article on their own campus life, art work, fiction, or promotion ideas. The guest editors will be paid a regular salary for their month's work. Round trip transportation to New York is also provided.

November 30 is the deadline for application. Winners will be notified before January 1.
