

Around The Square

By Sue Froneberger

Discussions around the square this week have centered around two topics—the burglar in Clewell Dormitory and Vincent Price's visit to our campus.

Since the incident with the burglar in Clewell last week-end, much planning and discussion about how further incidents such as this can be prevented has been initiated. The administration has proposed such preventative measures as numerous outside lights, screens for the windows, identification for Salem employees, and regular patrols of the campus by police cars. Most of the responsibility will not rest on the students. But we must be careful not to leave windows raised or unclosed in study rooms, and should never remain downstairs alone at night. With the cooperation of the administration and the students, our campus should be free from intruders.

Vincent Price, visiting Salem on Tuesday, added to the excitement around campus. When he entered the refectory for dinner, a mummur was heard throughout the room—"There he is!"; "He sure is tall!"; "What a cute mustache!" Students must have liked what they saw, for Memorial Hall was overrun. Mr. Price was entertaining as well as educational. His enthusiasm and love for art captured and held the attention of his audience. We, at Salem, have vast opportunities to acquaint ourselves with art. There are courses in art, books on art in the library, the Arts Council, and the Art Gallery in Winston-Salem.

Salem had another important visitor. "Miss Virginia" spent last Thursday night in Clewell Dormitory as a guest of Agnes Smith and Elaine Drake.

W-S Symphony Gives Concert

The next performance of the Winston-Salem Symphony will be an All-Orchestra concert, Tuesday, Nov. 17. The works being performed are as follows: "Trumpet Voluntary" by Henry Purcell, Brahms' "Third Symphony", "Dance Rhythms" by Wallingford Riegger, and music from Aaron Copland's ballet "Rodeo."

One of the most interesting parts of the program is Purcell's "Trumpet Voluntary" which was not written by Purcell but by a man named Clarke.

The Copland ballet is the story of a Cowgirl, and all the music is taken from Cowboy songs. The symphony will play four dance numbers which are: Buckaroo Holiday, Corral Nocturne, Saturday Night Waltz, and Hoedown.

The concert will start at 8:15 p.m. and doors will open at 7:45 p.m.

Beyond The Square

By Caroline Easley

At a news conference on Nov. 5 Prime Minister Nehru was reminded that he had pledged last month to resist further Chinese Communist attacks on the India borders. Mr. Nehru angrily replied, "What do you expect me to do?"

For military as well as moral reasons, India does not want to go to war with China. But India's dilemma is acute for she is committed to resist Communist China's claims to Indian territory.

The current situation has been going on since last August. On Nov. 6 Nehru sent a note to Peiping rejecting China's claims to Indian territory and reiterating earlier demands that Chinese troops withdraw to their side of the frontier. Red China claims territory as far as 80 miles south of the line, in India's North-east Frontier Agency where some border clashes have occurred.

On Monday (Nov. 9) of this week a new development took place. Red China's Premier Chou En-lai proposed to settle the angry border dispute with Prime Minister Nehru. The Chinese Premier has suggested that both sides pull back their forces 12½ miles in the disputed zone. This is unacceptable to Nehru for China has refused to give ground on claims to 40,000 square miles of (Himalayan) soil India regards as its own.

It has been said that the entire approach is repugnant to India's stand on its internationally recognized border. Nehru has declared that he is willing to negotiate but has never said anything about sitting down with Chou to talk things over.

The Prime Minister asserts that his foreign policy principles are not dependent on treaties with China. He feels that "They stand by themselves as principles which we hold to be carried. We shall hold to them, even if all the world says 'no' to them. When people are wise enough, they will come back to these principles." Nehru simply believes that India can survive only if the nation goes it alone, and chooses no sides in the "cold war".

In this Mr. Nehru thinks he is simply being a realist. A settlement of the border dispute, he believes, rests on India's standing firm but avoiding a fight. Many feel that Nehru has misjudged the situation; but for the present Mr. Nehru's word goes.

Karnes, Versatile Personality, Returns As "Oldtimer" To Salem's Education Department

By Caroline McCloud

When Mrs. Lucia Karnes refers to herself as an "oldtimer" on Salem's campus, it is obvious that this term expresses experience only. For those of us who have been at Salem only a short while, the attractive part-time member of our Education Department is a new face even though this is her third return trip.

At present Mrs. Karnes is dividing her time between home, where she has a husband and three small children, Salem College, and a very active life in the community. She has been a Winston-Salem resident for the past fourteen years, and first became a member of Salem's faculty in 1948. She is now working with Dr. Welch in the Education Department, teaching the reading improvement courses. She is one of the 15 citizens making up the Board of Trustees for the new $10,000,000 Forsyth County Hospital. For the last eight years she has been associated with the Winston-Salem Private Reading Clinic, and since her graduation from college has taught on all levels, from elementary school to college. She expressed her interest in politics and government in the community as well as in her work at the First Presbyterian Church where she is a member of the Women of the Church. She is also an active member of the Winston-Salem Arts Council.

Even though she said that each time she left Salem, she left with the idea of retiring from the teaching profession, we hope that this retirement idea has been abandoned; and we welcome once again this versatile member of our faculty to our campus.

Dr. Johnson turns another elegant phrase:

Sir, if it hasn't got it there, it hasn't got it!

Old Dr. Sam has done it again—brought his dictionary up to date in terms of modern Winston usage.

Winston (win'ston), n. A cigarette with Filter-Blend on one end and a wise man on the other.

Taste (tast), n. What decorators argue about and Winston smokers enjoy.

Filter-Blend (fil'tēr-blēnd), n. A happy marriage of art and science. Light, mild, flavorful tobaccos are artfully selected, then scientifically processed for filter smoking.

Slogan (slō'gǎn), n. (e.g., Winston tastes good like a cigarette should). A statement of disputed grammar but unquestioned fact.

Front (frŭnt), n. (used in conjunction with the preposition "up"). The section of a filter cigarette where if it hasn't got it, it hasn't got it. Also, the section that counts, the section where exclusive Filter-Blend is to be found.

Boswell (bōz'wēl). Nickname for a guy who is always hanging around to cadge Winstons from you.

"There is nothing which has yet been contrived by man by which so much happiness is produced . . ."
