Choral Ensemble Begins Season, Awaits Record

By Ann Cunningham

In spite of publicity received by "nightly intruders", Salem College also has other various and sundry ways of obtaining publicity, this being through organizations such as the Choral Ensemble. For the benefit of new students, the Choral Ensemble is composed of many music students and other students who have an interest in singing and having a good time.

The Choral Ensemble will make its first major public appearance Nov. 22, at the Friedland Moravian Church. In December they plan to perform for Wake Forest College at one of their chapel programs, and also for the Civitan Club.

On Wednesday, Dec. 16, the Choral Ensemble will give its Christmas program in chapel. This year they will sing a variety of songs including everything from a Bach Cantata to a French Christmas Carol. The first is a Bach Oratorio, "Break Forth, O Beautiful Heav'nly Light", and the second number a cantata by Bach, "For us a Child is Born". The French Christmas carol, "Noel Nouvelet," is arranged by E. Harold Geer and "A Joyous Christmas Song" is taken from the "Collection de Choeurs" by L. A. Gevaert. The Little Chapel sextet will also perform and there will be a Luebeck cantata done as a duet.

The chorus made a recording last year of numerous songs to be put in a record album. This tape was sent to New York and everyone hopes that the albums will be ready before Christmas, so we can all purchase them for Christmas presents. They are extremely good and everybody is urged to hear them.

As you have seen, the Choral Ensemble will be pretty busy throughout the rest of the year.

Chamber Music Group Presents Deller Trio

The Wake Forest Chamber Music Society will present the Alfred Deller Trio in the Magnolia Room of Reynolds Hall at 8:30 on December 2.

Mr. Deller is one of two living counter tenors. The counter tenor vocal range is about the same as that of a contralto. Sixteenth, seventeenth, and eighteenth century choirs were all male, and the contralto part had to be sung by castrati until Mendelssohn began composing for the contralto voice. Reputed to be a true voice, but more probably a highly developed falsetto, the counter tenor is being revived for use in authentic recordings and performances of early music.

In 1949, Mr. Deller formed a group of singers and instrumentalists into the Deller Consort and began touring and recording that year.

For his United States tour, Mr. Deller has to cut the Consort to three people, himself, Desmond Dupre who plays the lute and viola gamba, and Robert Conant, harpsichordist.

His Wake Forest program is:

Lute Song Settings of Poems by John Donne

Selections from "Musicks and maid" by Purcell

Sonata in C major for viola gamba and harpsichord by Purcell

Cantata "Jubilate Domino" by Buxtehude

Songs by Purcell

Three Lute Solos by Dowland

Season tickets for students at $3.50 are still available from Dr. Byers and Mr. Sanders, or they may be bought at the door on December 2.

Little Theatre Will Produce "Country Girl"

Winston-Salem's Little Theater will present the second play of their series, "The Country Girl," by Clifford Odets, beginning Nov. 24 and running five nights in succession, through Nov. 28.

Curtain time at the Little Theater on Coliseum Drive is 8:15 p.m.

Ed and Jackie Oenter, two participants in previous "Little Theater" productions, who have just returned from abroad, will be principal characters in the play. Charles Mark, executive secretary of The Arts Council, holds another major role.

"The Country Girl" is the story of a middle-aged actor trying to make a comeback. A young director tries to give this "had-been" actor his second chance while the actor's wife hovers in the background with normal wifely anxieties.

This play, being a production about the theater, has characters such as a director and producer making up the cast.

YWCA Receives "Thank-You" Letter From Marvin In Japan

The YWCA with the cooperation of the Salem students and faculty collected 180 pounds of clothing and $150. to send to Nagoya, Japan following a request from Salem alumnus, Mrs. Oscar M. Marvin, Jr.

Reprinted herein are excerpts from a letter from Mr. Marvin, hospital administrator of the Yodogawa Christian Hospital, written to Salem through Miss Marsh, alumnae secretary.

In viewing reconstruction crews after the typhoon, Mr. Marvin continues to say:

"Speaking for Japanese Christians in general and the Yodogawa Christian Hospital in particular, Jane and I certainly do want to express our deep gratitude to you and the Salem College students and faculty members for their generous contributions of warm clothing and money in support of the Christian relief services for the victims of Japan's most disastrous typhoon.

"Through your interest and similar kindness of many others, our Christian Medical Team began providing medical aid Oct. 6, 1959. Since then they have been able to expand their services to include the establishment of a milk station for hundreds of Japanese boys and girls, the distribution of new shoes and warm undershirts to over 100 primary school children and the further distribution of a bountiful supply of relief clothing from contributions received from Japan as well as many other countries."

"One of the most enlightening comments came from the lips of a man of 60 who said, 'Seeing all these youngsters working so hard and so willingly has certainly changed my impression about our younger generation, and they are the ones who are doing most of the work!' The work continues and will continue for months more to come for there are yet many acres of land and villages which still are filled with sterile sea water.

Art Department Sells Japanese Woodcut Prints

The art department, under direction of department head, Edwin Shewmake, now has a collection of Japanese woodcut prints on exhibit in the north wing stairwell of Main Hall and on the third floor of Memorial Hall.

Any student or faculty member interested in obtaining one of these low priced prints may sign a sheet provided on a clipboard in the window of Main Hall's north stairwell. In cases where someone has already signed up for a specific picture, duplicate copies can be ordered. Mr. Shewmake plans to place this second order just before Christmas vacation in order for the prints to arrive here the first week in January.

These Japanese woodcuts are reprints of 17th century cuts. The designs were cut into the wood, printed on paper and then colored by hand. Mr. Shewmake surmises that these are modern reproductions of the original blocks.

In the corners of the paintings are letters of the painter's signature and the red seal of the owner. Whistler took this form of signature and created the distinctive butterfly which can be seen on his painting in Main Hall.

Whistler and the French Impressionist school were highly influenced by these Japanese woodcuts. They studied with particular care the works of Hiroshige (1797-1858), some of which are hanging here. On the backs of the prints the painters' names appear, printed in English with their dates.

Japanese woodcuts "had as much as anything to do with the break in the Renaissance art tradition," Mr. Shewmake comments. "One reason for showing them is that the modern art movement is influenced so strongly by such prints."

Magazine Staff Conducts Poll

The literary magazine staff elected Nancy Jane Carroll editor-in-chief and Susan Hughes business manager at a meeting on Monday. All other staff members are selected by the editor-in-chief.

In chapel on Wednesday a questionnaire was passed out to gauge student interest in having a literary magazine. Of the 196 students returning the questionnaire, only 3 were against the idea of having a magazine. There were 168 students who favored financing a literary magazine through the budget in the future as opposed to 12 who were against, with 5 students undecided on this question. Fifty-six students are interested in writing for a literary magazine.
