

Church, Local Editor, Gives Recital In Memorial Hall

Francis Church, news editor and cellist, will give a recital of three cello sonatas Feb. 22 in Memorial Hall at 8:30 p.m.

Mr. Church, originally from Charlotte, studied cello from the sixth to the tenth grade. Then he went to Woodbury Forest for two years and to Harvard for four where he was a government major. During these six years he did not study cello. At Harvard he sang with the Glee Club under Mr. Woodworth, who directed the 1959 Messiah performance in Winston-Salem. Mr. Church played cello in the Messiah orchestra.

After Harvard, Mr. Church worked in Sanford where he "played once—for a wedding". He had been to hear some of the concerts at Brevard, met Mr. Medlin, and when he came to Winston-Salem to be news editor for the Journal-Sentinel, he began studying with Mr. Medlin. And this recital is the result of his studying.

Linda Head, of the Salem piano faculty will play piano for the sonatas. She graduated from Michigan with a masters this past year.

Teaching Grads Take New Exam For Evaluation

Salem College seniors preparing to teach will be required to take the National Teacher Examinations on April 9, Dean Hixson announced. This requirement is based on a resolution passed by the 1959 General Assembly which makes the tests mandatory for all college seniors in the State who apply for a North Carolina teaching certificate during the period beginning June 20, 1959, and ending February 19, 1961.

The examinations will be given at State expense as part of a statewide study of teacher preparation being made by the State Board of Education. Other groups required to take the tests include experienced teachers who are currently upgrading or changing their certification.

Salem College seniors can most conveniently take the tests at Reynolds High School Cafeteria. However, there are twenty testing centers in the State, and the tests can be taken at any center. Applications to take the tests and bulletins describing them are available in the Recorder's office; students making application must secure four items, including forms and instructions. Seniors unable to take the examinations on April 9 will have only one opportunity to make up the examinations on October 8, at which time different forms of the tests will be given.

Seniors eligible to take the examinations on April 9 will receive their scores directly from the Educational Testing Service without paying any fee. The tests yield scores on professional knowledge, various aspects of general education, and subject-matter preparation. Scores earned on April 9 examinations will have absolutely no effect on a senior's certificate or employment. The tests are being given for the Committee of the State Board of Education set up to do research on the quality of teacher preparation.

Anders Laurene Talks To Group About Spectra

Dr. Anders Laurene opened the Lablings Lecture Series Tuesday evening when he presented a program on "Atomic Structure." Dr. Laurene is working with instrumental analysis at Reynolds Tobacco Company Research Department.

John Whalen, an infrared spectroscopist in the Reynolds Laboratory, will hold the second discussion Tuesday, Feb. 23, at 7:00 p.m. in the Science Building Lecture Room. His topic, "Atomic Spectra," is used in determining the structure of an atom.

The final lecture will be on "Chemical Bonding," by Dr. Alan Hodguran who is at present studying the chemical composition of tobacco smoke.

Lablings presents these lectures by men who are now doing research work in industry to prepare students in general chemistry for classroom study of atomic structure.

However, the program will be of interest to all science students.

Defence Leader Addresses Chapel

Katherine Graham Howard, one of Salem's most distinguished alumnae, will be guest speaker at the annual meeting of the Friends of Salem College Library on Tuesday, Feb. 23 and at assembly on Monday, Feb. 22. Mrs. Howard of Boston is, at present, a member of the United States Civil Defense Advisory Council and a consultant to the Office of Civil and Defense Mobilization.

Mrs. Howard, who now resides in Boston, Massachusetts, was born in Guyton, Georgia. She attended Salem Academy and College, and graduated cum laude from Smith College in Northampton, Mass. She holds an honorary degree of Dr. of Letters from Calvin Coolidge College in Boston. She is the wife of Charles P. Howard of Boston, an attorney-at-law. He formally served Massachusetts as a Senator and State Banking Commissioner.

In the area of Civil Defense Mrs. Howard has gained national recognition for she was appointed by President Eisenhower to membership on the National Civil Defense Advisory Council on January 7, 1959. She had previously served as U. S. Deputy of the Federal Civil Defense Administration in 1953-'54, one of the highest government positions ever held by a woman. As Special Advisor to the Federal Defense Administration from 1954-'57, she was the Permanent U. S. Delegate to the NATO Civil Defense Committee. In this position in which she made civil defense visits to thirteen of the member nations she was the first and only woman delegate to the NATO committee from any nation. Mrs. Howard has also been the only woman from any of forty-four participating nations to officially represent her country when acting as U. S. Deputy Commissioner General for Brussels International Exhibition from July 2, 1957 until January 6, 1959. In this position at Brussels World Fair she received all distinguished guests who visited the U. S. Pavilion, among whom were Princess Margaret of Great Britain, Chancellor Adenauer of the German Republic, Prince Rainer and Princess Grace of Monaco, President Voroshilov of USSR and many others.

Mrs. Katherine Howard

Mrs. Howard has led a very active political life. She was the only woman member of President Eisenhower's Campaign and Strategy Staff in his political campaign of 1952, and he referred to her as his "Lady Chief of Staff". She served as Secretary of the Republican National Committee, and is the second woman to serve as Secretary of Republican National Convention when she held the position in 1952.

In addition to the activities through which she has won national recognition she is also a member of the American Newspaper Woman's Club, the American Association of University Women, and League of Women Voters. She is a former Trustee of Boston State Hospital and former Trustee of Salem College.

Her topic for the meeting of the Friends of Salem College Library will be "The Fair Way of Making Friends". In assembly, she will speak on "This Changing World: Scientific Advances in Civil Defense."

Singer Returns To Salem, Talks On History

Dr. C. Greg Singer, of Catawba College, will address the Phi Alpha Theta Society at their meeting on Thursday, February 25. Dr. Singer was formerly head of the history department here at Salem. His subject will be "Contemporary Views of History and the Christian View."

The group will meet together for supper in the refectory and immediately afterwards in Strong Friendship Rooms. All students and faculty are welcome to attend.

Sophomore Test Program Begins

The first phase of Salem's Sophomore Testing Program begins today in the form of the Occupational Interest Inventory. This inventory is being given to 50 sophomores who have indicated their need for vocational counseling.

The program is designed to indicate the field, the type and the level of a girl's interest in order to identify the occupational area in which she has both interests and abilities. Additional information will be sought the next two Fridays.

All results in conjunction with other pertinent data about the student already available is used to help each girl acquire as broad an understanding as possible of herself in terms of her abilities, her interests and her achievements. Students must remember that these tests don't give indications of a specific job, but only of the general area. This will help the student select her major and general vocational interests.

This experimental program, carried out by the office of the Dean of Students and the Academic office, is only opened to 50 girls at this time, but it is hoped to expand it in the future with the addition of more staff and faculty.

ANNOUNCEMENT

Judicial Board reminds students that they cannot spend the night off campus if they attend the mid-winter functions at Wake Forest. This includes fraternity parties.

Dr. Mark Depp Conducts Panel On Catholic President Question

The Westminster Fellowship is sponsoring a panel discussion for the denominational meetings Wednesday, Feb. 24, at 6:30 in the Day Student Center. This will be a joint meeting of all denominations on campus, and everyone is cordially invited to attend.

Of special interest to all will be the theme of the panel discussion "What About a Catholic President". The discussion will center around basic questions which have arisen among college voters, as well as many other laymen, and will offer the pros and cons of the matter at hand.

The moderator for the panel will be Dr. Mark Depp, minister of Centenary Methodist Church. Dr. Inzer Byers will be hostess to the guest panelists as well as a panel member. Reed Sarratt who is a publisher for the Winston-Salem Journal-Sentinel, and Richard Glaze, a lawyer here in Winston-Salem, will be on the panel also.

The Westminster Fellowship urges that any questions pertaining to the evening's discussion be presented to the panel.

Salem Affiliates With Colleges In Study Plan

Salem College, along with colleges in Florida, Georgia, North Carolina, South Carolina, and Virginia, has become affiliated with Duke University in the Master of Arts in Teaching program. This program was designed to prepare junior and senior high school teachers and provides professional courses, advanced study in the candidate's special field, and carefully supervised teaching experience. At the end of 15 months, a teaching certificate and a master's degree is awarded to the students. During 9 months of internship at one of the eight cooperating public school systems in North Carolina and Virginia, salaries will be paid. Also tuition help is offered.

This program gives college students who do not prepare professionally for teaching to do so. Further information can be obtained from the Department of Education at Duke University.
