

Wood, Cox, And Bath Will Be New Leaders

YWCA Plans Changes To Suit Student Needs And Requests

Newly Elected Officers Bring Much Enthusiasm And New Ideas To Their Respective Positions

The perfect way to begin the day is to seek the solitude of Little Chapel located next to Sisters' Dorm. It is for the use of all students at any time during the day, when one wishes to find quiet from the busy outside.

In connection with the questionnaire passed out in chapel by the Y a change has been made in regard to morning chapel. For the convenience of the students the time has been changed to 8:40 a.m., Monday through Friday. These devotionals will be lead by students of various campus dorms.

March:

- 6 2nd floor Clewell
- 13 Strong
- 20 2nd floor Babcock
- 27 Lehman

April:

- 3 3rd floor Babcock
- 10 Bitting
- 17 1st floor Clewell

The Vesper programs are being re-evaluated to suit the needs of the students. From the recent questionnaire we find that the student body wants more of a variety, appeal to the intellect, and discussions on current issues. We are taking your suggestions into consideration in order that more stimulating programs may be presented.

Meigs Receives Study Grant To Tulane Univ.

J. Carl Meigs, instructor in English, has received a Danforth Foundation Teacher Study Grant for pre-doctoral work. Mr. Meigs was one of 61 teachers throughout the United States selected for the grants.

Mr. Meigs will study next year at Tulane University in New Orleans, where he also received his Masters degree in English. He specialized in Restoration and 18th Century literature.

The Danforth Teacher Study Grants are for instructors with at least three years of teaching experience. The program includes 11 months of study and a Danforth Teacher Conference at Camp Minivanca, Michigan. The conference is for study, fellowship and inspiration.

The qualifications for a recipient of the Danforth Teacher Study Grant are outstanding academic ability, and inspiring personality and integrity including "serious inquiry within the Christian tradition."

If you find yourself free on Sunday nights, why not check the bulletin boards for the time and place of vesper. It is very unfair to engage a speaker when only a few attend.

In regard to 'Y' watch, the planned suggestions sheets are for your use as a guide which can be supplemented or substituted as the leaders desire. This weekly dorm devotional can strengthen you individually and bring a dorm closer together.

The Salem Old Ladies Home looks forward to visits from Salem girls. It is only a few blocks away, it takes little effort, and the rewards are great. Why not get into the habit of dropping by.

Campus life at Salem has become increasingly complex and restless in accordance with our changing time. Therefore, in these various aspects the 'Y' hopes to give to each serenity through faith.

Results of Y Auction

The annual Y. W. C. A. Auction, held Wednesday, March 2 in Chapel, was a big success. The $317 profit from the sale of items contributed by 21 faculty members and 60 students or groups of students will go to World University Service, an organization which aids needy students all over the world.

Mr. Bray, as auctioneer, kept the bidding going at a lively pace. Prices ranged from $33 for a group dinner for six to 50¢ for a portrait sitting.

The Y would like to thank both faculty and students for their enthusiasm.

Freshmen Don't Watch T. V., Do Complain Of Dorm Noise

Each year during the early part of second semester, freshmen are given a questionnaire to find their reactions to certain areas such as orientation and studies. The results of this study are used as a basis for evaluating plans for this year's freshmen and also for making plans for next year's class.

The results of this year's evaluation are similar to those of last year's in many respects. For example 37% of last year's freshmen and 40.1% of this year's freshmen have difficulty in budgeting time. Last year 29.6% freshmen said they were inadequately prepared for college and 26.5% of this year's freshmen also admit this difficulty. Other areas such as confusion in selecting a major and too much noise in the dormitory are problems of more concern to this year's freshman class.

Many freshmen, 56.5%, felt freshmen seminar had had interesting and helpful topics. Close to half, 46.2%, of the freshmen felt their big sisters and other upperclassmen have not been as helpful and concerned as they could have been.

This year's freshmen seem to be quite concerned about their study-

The new secretary of the Legislative Board and chairman and secretary of the Judicial Board are all from the two Carolinas and are planning to enter the teaching profession, but they also have in common several intangibles that will help make the second act of Wednesday's assembly skit an impossibility. These are such things as enthusiasm over their new responsibilities and eagerness to try out their ideas for improving Student Government.

Betty Cox, Laurinburg sophomore who will succeed Molly Wood as secretary of the Legislative Board, values the work done by the Legislative branch this year, but she feels that now, after the student body and the officers in particular have seen the potential of the board, much more can be accomplished in changing and clarifying rules and in revising the point system. Betty points out that not only do legislative members welcome student petitions, but they also try to be alert to campus needs and dissatisfaction before students even come to them.

In addition to her work on the Legislative Board, Betty, as sophomore class president, directed the transformation of Rat Week into Freshman Initiation to Salem, which included the wearing of beanies by freshmen, the production by the four classes, and the Field Day by both students and faculty.

Betty's summer plans include two weeks as senior counselor at Camp

Sea Gull and six weeks at the U. N. C. Summer School where she will take courses leading toward an elementary certificate and a major in Spanish.

Sally Wood, in moving from secretary of the Legislative Board to chairman of the Judicial Board, has the double advantage of legislative experience and judicial objectivity, meaning that she can bring in new ideas and not rely entirely on precedent in deciding cases. Participation on the Judicial Board, which she describes as "the most tedious work on campus," requires continual re-evaluation of policy. Sally favors the Board's becoming "less a secluded body and more a representative body." To this end, Sally would like for the Board to get the opinions of students-at-large before deciding cases. She also wants every student to know, without the revealing of names, the reasons for the decisions which were given so that the Board can make a greater impact on the campus and on individuals. But Sally realizes the negative role played by

Dr. McCorkle Has Received Appointment

Dr. Donald M. McCorkle, assistant professor of musicology, has been appointed chairman of publications for the College Music Society. This is a national organization of music teachers in colleges and universities; its purpose is to promote understanding and teaching of music in liberal arts colleges and universities.

In his new capacity, Dr. McCorkle will be in charge of a monthly publication including speculative and philosophical ideas.

Dr. McCorkle is also director of the Moravian Music Foundation.

News Brief

The date of the faculty meeting has been changed to Monday, March 14.

the Judicial Board and hopes that by using the right of petition and being alert to inadequate provisions, students will remedy the rules that the Judicial Board must regulate after they are broken.

After two weeks of teaching motor boating at Camp Sea Gull and many weeks of working at a yet-to-found-job, Sally will resume her history-centered program which will probably be followed by graduate work and teaching.

Winnie Bath, house president of Babcock Dormitory, and therefore a present member of the Judicial Board, adds a stabilizing element to the Board as she becomes the new secretary. Winnie is especially interested in Judicial Board work and not only has become familiar with its policies this year, but has had experience with the single-body Stuednt Government as it existed last year when Winnie was freshman class president.

She, like Sally, wishes that students could be better satisfied with the penalties given by the board and feels that perhaps the policy of secrecy has been carried too far. A problem recognized this year especially by the Stee Gee representatives, that of the lack of communication between the two divisions of government, could partially be solved, Winnie believes, by having the secretary of each Board send a report to the other Board to be read before all members.

Winnie has a six-weeks job in her hometown of Florence, S. C., with the Triple Agricultural State Department. After this, she will head for the beach. Winnie is combining a major in math with a minor in sociology and is interested both in social work and in teaching on the secondary level.

Gramleys Will Give Dinner For Seniors

Dr. and Mrs. Gramley will entertain the senior class with a dinner in the Club Dining Room Wednesday, March 16th. Entertainment has been planned.

Special guests at the dinner will be Mr. and Mrs. Sandresky, Dean Hixson, Dean Hiedbreder, Dr. Byers, senior class sponsor, and Dr. Welch and Miss Sampson, senior dormitory counselors.

Seniors are invited to visit the Gramleys at their home after the dinner.

The Gramleys will also entertain the seniors at Salem Academy on Friday night.
