Ann Wilson

Freshmen Pick New Leaders: Wilson, Others

Ann Wilson, Mary Dameron, Margaret Bourdeaux, and Zelle Holderness were elected temporary freshman class officers at a meeting held October 10.

President Ann Wilson, from Jacksonville, Florida, plans to major in math and wants to teach in the first grade after graduating from Salem. Assistant editor of her high school paper, head cheerleader, and "Miss Ideal" of Robert E. Lee High School, Ann loves to be around people and says she likes to do "a little bit of everything and nothing special."

Mary Dameron, the vice-president, was also vice-president of the Student Body of her high school in Marion, North Carolina. She maintains an interest in music and plans to take several music courses during her years at Salem. Her plans also include either an English or a sociology major.

Margaret Bourdeaux is from Davidson, North Carolina, and was a member of the Math Club, the National Honor Society, and the Student Council of her high school. She is undecided about her major, but expects that it will be either in math or biology.

Zelle Holderness, who was elected treasurer, promises, "I'll take good care of the money." As cheerleader and class president of Tarboro High School in Tarboro, North Carolina, Zelle gained needed experience for her new position.

Archway Enlists Student Interest

The staff of Salem's literary magazine, The Archway, is already making plans for this year and collecting material.

"We are hoping that some satirical humor as well as poetry, essays, etc., will be submitted to The Archway this year," commented Liz Wilson, editor. She also added that the staff was planning to include some impressionistic photography in the literary magazine, which will be issued either before or after Christmas.

The members of the Archway staff, headed by Liz, are Diane Fuller, assistant editor; Frances Bailey, business manager; May Brawley and Ginny Padgett, members of the art staff; and Patty Nash, Diana Wells and Betsy Hatton, members of the reading staff.

Anyone who likes to write is urged to submit material to the Archway. This material as well as any ideas may be turned in to Liz Wilson, 303 Strong, or any member of the staff, preferably before Thanksgiving.

Chamber Soc. Opens Season October 23

On October 23 the Wake Forest Chamber Music Society opens its 1962-63 season. The first performance will be given by the Nieuw Amsterdam Trio. The trio is composed of pianist, Edith Mocsany; violinist, Bernard Eichen; and cellist, Jascha Bernstein. This trio, having given over 300 performances, has played to "standing room only" audiences at Carnegie Hall and throughout its eight tours of the United States and Canada.

The planned concert for this performance by the trio is "Trio no. 1, Opus 121 in G major" by Brahms; "Trio by Charles Ives," "Trio, Opus 87 in C major" by Brahms.

The second concert will be given by the Riverside Chamber Singers on November 6. This is a group new in style to the Wake Forest Chamber Music Society and one which promises to be quite interesting. This group's concert will consist of ancient and modern unaccompanied music.

The third concert will be given by the Paganini Quartet on February 7. These performers use Stradivari instruments that were once owned by Paganini himself.

The final concert on March 28 will be presented by Marcel Granjany, harpist. His performance will feature solo music for the harp from the 16th century to the present.

All performances are given at 8:30 p.m. in the Magnolia Room of Reynolda Hall, at Wake Forest. The admission is $4.50 for student season membership and $6.00 for adult membership. Tickets may be bought for single performances for $2.50 awarded first places in their respective dorms in the IRS Room Contest. All the freshmen rooms were judged on originality, neatness, and liveability.

Second and third places went to Jeanie Rennick and Ann Bull (room 223) and to Elinor Trexler and Betty Benton (room 109) in Clewell. The Babcock winners were Dale Walker and Ann Strain (room 122) and Anne Cleino and Pat Munt (room 118).

Free passes to the Carolina Theatre were presented to the four first place winners by Mary Jane Crowell, IRS president. The awards were given at a party for the freshmen, sophomores, judges, and faculty in Clewell recreation rooms at 9 p. m. following the judging. A special honorable mention for originality from Clewell was given to Jan Norman and Sylvia Bell (room 225).

Judges for the Clewell rooms were Mr. Mangum of the art department, Mrs. Chatham, house counselor of Babcock, and Martha Jo Phifer, member of the IRS Council. Babcock judges were Mr. Booker of the sociology-economics department, Mrs. Patterson, house counselor of Clewell, and Mary Jane Crowell.

Brandy Hughes Studies In Aix-En-Provence

AIX-EN-PROVENCE, September 12. — Miss Brandy Hughes, a student at Salem College in Winston-Salem, North Carolina, has arrived in Aix-en-Provence where she will attend the Institute for American Universities during the coming school year. The Institute is a university-abroad program which is now operating in Aix for its fifth year under the auspices of the University of Aix-Marseilles.

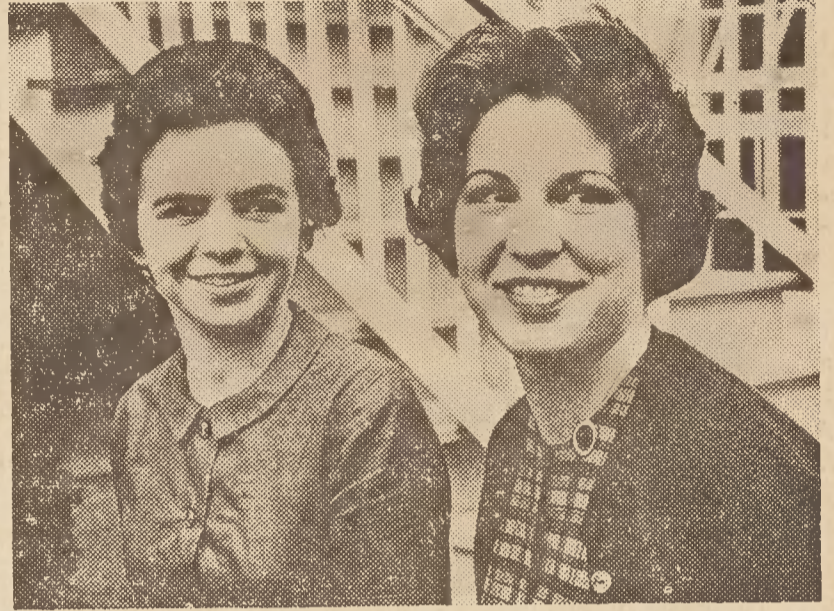

Miss Hughes, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard H. Hughes of 2100 Buckingham Avenue, Richmond, Virginia, went to Aix from Salem and will probably return there next year to complete her college degree. A major in the study of French language and literature, Miss Hughes expects that this year of study in France will not only enable her to complete a normal year's work toward her college degree but will also improve her proficiency in French and give her new viewpoints on European problems.

Located at the seat of the University of Aix-Marseilles, the second largest French state university, and housed in buildings which recall the ancient traditions of that school, the Institute benefits from many of the University's facilities, yet offers an American program suited even to those who have no special background in French. In addition to a complete program in French language and literature, with access to University courses for advanced students, the Institute offers classes in English in an American curriculum.

Newly elected members of Phi Alpha Theta, honorary history society, are Nancy Knott and Judy Summerell.

Phi Alpha Theta Induct Four New Members

Four new members were inducted into the Salem chapter of Phi Alpha Theta, National Honor Society. Nancy Knott, Sally Glenn, Judy Summerell, and Mr. Alan Harris became members of the Delta Lambda Chapter on Thursday, October 11.

Membership in Phi Alpha Theta requires an overall B average, a B plus average in history, and a minimum of 12 hours in history. Students are not required to be history majors, but must have an active interest in the study of history. Students meeting the requirements for membership must be approved by the present Phi Alpha Theta members on campus.

Nancy Knott, junior day student and history major, is a member of legislative board. Nancy plans to teach in elementary school after graduation.

Sally Glenn, senior English major, is a day student transfer from Duke. Last year the assistant business manager of the Salemite, Sally is now a staff writer. She is also a practice teacher, and plans to teach in high school.

Judy Summerell, a double major in Spanish and history, also plans to teach in secondary school. A member of the Honor Society and the Order of the Scorpion, she is president of the student government and was treasurer of student government last year. She is doing independent study and is practicing teaching in Spanish. Judy is from Gastonia.

Mr. Alan Harris, history professor, is a graduate of Auburn University where he received his B. A. and M. A. degrees. He is working for his Ph. D. from the University of North Carolina.

Phi Alpha Theta was founded at the University of Arkansas in 1921. The purpose of the organization is to recognize excellence in the study of history and to publish The History, a journal of history. The Delta Lambda chapter was founded at Salem in 1952.

Other members at Salem are May Brawley, Kay Kearns, Dr. Hixon, Mr. Michie, Mrs. Heidebreder, Mrs. Esther Robbins, Dr. McCordle and Dr. Austin, Dean Major Clifford and Dr. Byers.

Children's Opera Based On Medieval Mystery

On October 26 and 27 a unique children's opera, Noye's Fludde by Benjamin Britten, will be presented in Memorial Hall. Under the direction of Richard Bloesch, the opera is a repeat of last year's performance.

The story is of Noah's flood, taken not from the Bible but from a medieval mystery play originally written in old English. The basic Bible story was improvised and expanded upon, especially in the case of Mrs. Noah. The plot of the opera revolves around the attempts to get her into the ark. Mrs. Noah is pictured as an uncooperative shrew, gossiping and drinking with her friends, refusing to board the boat until Noah and his sons finally drag her aboard.

Since Noye's Fludde is primarily a children's opera, many of the characters are portrayed by children. The seven groups of animals and four of the six sons and their wives are played by children. The music will be provided by John Iuele's training orchestra.

Several unusual instruments will be employed in the production. Coffee mugs slung on a string, played with a wooden spoon, simulate raindrops. In addition, a wind machine, a Chinese gong, sandpaper, a whip, drums, cymbals, two pianos, and a pipe organ will come into play. Three trumpets will sound from the balcony. The handbell choir of the First Presbyterian Church, as well as audience participation, will be part of the opera.

Salem's Miss Samson, Miss Roberts, and Beth Bobbitt will supply their musical talents on recorders and piano. Carroll Stegall of Wake Forest and Jane Brooks are cast as Noah and Mrs. Noah respectively.

Since Noye's Fludde was given last year during semester break, Salem students were unable to attend. Take advantage of this second opportunity to see the most unique production of the year. Student tickets are $1.00 for two evening performances at 8:15 and a matinee at 2:30.
