'Students Hold Many Prejudices' Says Socialist Leader Dr. Thomas

By Anne Heath
The past speaking to the future . . . a prophet looking for a needful ear . . . wobbly legs and a keen mind . . . impassioned concern for the future . . . devotion to humanity . . . a "fight the good fight" attitude.

Dr. Norman Thomas, leader of the Democratic Socialist Party and a candidate many times for the presidency on the Socialist ticket, spoke at Wake Forest College on November 8, on the logic of The Three Challenges to this Generation.

In his talk, Dr. Thomas said he knew students got tired of hearing about challenges and old men's reminiscences; however, there is an extraordinary difference between the world before World War I and the world today. Before the First World War, the world was dominated by the white race and a few imperial powers—the U. S. in the western hemisphere. No one even dreamed of going to the moon although there were technological advances. It was a time of great optimism and a belief in progress with a capital "P." Progress was inevitable.

Today we not only know we have to share our power with other races but also with other powers.

Colonialism has crumbled, and all sorts and sizes of nations are in the

We are as well off in America as we are today because of the adoption of socialist ideas. What was once called Socialist is now called republican. We still have a long way to go though. A look at conditions of migratory workers and the slums existing both in the cities and in the rural areas will confirm the above statement; however, America reforms only under pressure.

The cold war greatly affects our economy. Ten percent of our gross national product is absorbed by the cold war. Over a third of our scientists, half of our research efforts, and some five million workers are involved in it. Many corporations are very dependent on the cold war for certain contracts. There would be panic on the part of the business world if a peace was proclaimed. We would have to have a transition between a war economy and a peace economy.

Although the solving of these social and economic problems are extremely important, the most important challenge to our generation

Salem Alumnae Invite Frosh To Candle Tea

To Students: The Salem Alumnae Association invites all freshman and new students to the Candle Tea, November 27, 3-5 p. m. at the Brothers' House.

The Moravian Candle Tea will be open to the public this year from Wednesday, November 28, through Saturday, December 1, from 2:00 until 9:00 p. m. The tea will be held in Brothers' House, which was built on Salem Square in 1768 and is now in the process of being restored.

Hostesses in early Moravian costumes will guide the guests through a room where beeswax candles are being made, the old kitchen where sugar cake and coffee will be served, and the two rooms in the sub-basement where the Putz is on display. The two sections of this year's Putz include a new and enlarged Nativity Scene surrounded by other biblical scenes connected with the Birth of our Lord, and a replica of Salem Square in the early 1800's with each house constructed to exact scale of the original buildings.

General admission for adults is 50c, for children, 25c. The money will be used to carry on the work of the Home Moravian Women's Fellowship. Mrs. I. B. Southerland is chairman of this year's Tea.

Office Explains Sign-Out Rule

Sign-outs for Thanksgiving holidays should be made Monday and Tuesday, November 19 and 20 and should be completed by 4:30 Tuesday. Call downs will be given for any made after that time. Students going any place other than home must have permission on file in the office when they sign out.

When making sign-outs students should do the following: (1) If they are leaving before Wednesday, they should indicate at the top of their card whether they are cutting classes. If they are cutting class, the overnights count as usual. (2) If they plan to have lunch at the college on Wednesday, they should indicate this by putting "lunch" at the bottom of their card.

Dorms will close at 6:00 Wednesday night and will open at 12:00 Sunday. Students are asked to sign in immediately upon return.
