

WC Presents Royal Gambit March 14-16

For its third annual production the Theatre of Woman's College will present Royal Gambit, a modern morality play by Hermann Gressieker.

The play is based on the story of Henry VIII and his six wives. Its symbolism, however, also traces the development of man from the Age of Enlightenment to the Age of Atoms. Thus the historical events with the six wives transcend history and lead to an idea that the scientific and military problems and emphasis of today are a result of this age when man turned away from God and looked upon himself as "all powerful."

The play is under the direction of Kathryn England with set design by Minor Rootes. Costumes to be made in the Theatre's costume shop are designed by Nell Rootes.

In the role of Henry VIII is Jonathan Spurgeon, history professor at the Woman's College. The wives are as follows: Elnora Stuart of Greensboro as Katarina of Aragon, Shelby Archer of Somerville, N. J. as Anne Boleyn, Susan Newman of Fort Bragg, N. C. as Jane Seymour, Ronnie Wernick of Greensboro as Anne of Cleves, Jackie Deaton of Greensboro as Kathryn Howard, and Carlotta Blankenship of Asheville, N. C. as Kate Parr.

Production dates for Royal Gambit are March 14, 15, and 16, with curtain time at 8 p.m. The box office opens March 7 and remains open Monday through Saturday, 2 until 5 p.m. Admission price is $1.50 for adults, $1.00 for college students and $.50 for high school age and under.

Dr. Vandiviere Will Lecture On TB At WC

Dr. H. M. Vandiviere, director, Department of Research, North Carolina Sanatorium System, Chapel Hill, and organizer and director, Haitian-American Tuberculosis Institute, will give the annual Woman's College Faculty Science Club Lecture at 8 p.m. March 13 in Elliott Hall, Woman's College.

Vandiviere, a prominent medical scientist, will speak on "Experiences of a Tuberculosis Research Team in Haiti." He is in Haiti and will return to North Carolina to give the lecture.

His talk will explain some aspects of the current research being conducted on one of the oldest and most dreaded diseases known to mankind, tuberculosis. Currently his research team is concerned with the anti-tuberculosis vaccines, purification of tuberculo-proteins and diagnostic testing methods.

Members of Dr. Vandiviere's research team in Haiti include his wife, Dr. Margaret Vandiviere, biostatistician and Miss Irene Melvin, research microbiologist, a native of Fayetteville and a 1947 graduate of the Woman's College in Greensboro.

The lecture is open to the public admission free.

State Announces Date Of Salem To Award Four Grants; School Bases Gifts On Need

A make-up administration of the National Teacher Examination will be given on April 20, 1963. For the benefit of teachers who are required to take the examination and who have not yet done so, the following information is listed:

1. The examination will be given at Brunson Elementary School on Saturday, April 20.
2. Candidates must register for the examination prior to 4:00 p.m. on Friday, March 29. (The application must be in the hands of the Supervisor by this time.)
3. Applications may be obtained from Mrs. Sue Kain at Brunson School (PA 2-1714).
4. Cost of the examination is $9.00 for the Common Examination and $2.00 each for each Optional Examination.
5. Questions regarding the examination should be directed to Mrs. Kain or Jay Wise at the Brunson School Office.
6. Specific questions regarding certification should be directed to Dr. J. P. Freeman, Division of Certification, Department of Public Instruction, Raleigh, North Carolina.

Poll Cont.

Junior: I feel that Salem is too small to carry such a large project as the refugee program in the first place. We have so many projects at Salem that there aren't enough students to go around. We need fewer individual projects and more support for those we give.

Junior: So far, class projects on the whole have been successful. Perhaps if there were fewer projects students would give greater support. The refugee student project should be taken from the classes and made student-wide.

Junior: The class projects, as set up now, are necessary. Working for the refugee student project is not only wonderful, but draws the individual classes closer together.

Four honor scholarships, ranging in amount from $200 to $1,200 annually will be offered to incoming freshmen. Previously, a larger number of scholarships have been awarded, but the total amount of money granted was less. The scholarships now will be granted on the basis of financial need as well as academic merit. Renewal each year is contingent on the recipient's maintaining a satisfactory academic record, and continual need of financial aid. Applicants are judged on the basis of academic achievement, college board scores, personal recommendations, their potential for leadership, their sense of responsibility, and their future education plans.

THE CURSE OF THE CAMPUS: NO. 2

As was pointed out last week, one would think that with all the progress we have made in the education game, something might have been done by now about roommates. But no. The roommate picture has not brightened one bit since Ethan Goodpimple founded the first American college.

(Contrary to popular belief, Harvard was not the first. Mr. Goodpimple started his institution some 75 years earlier. And quite an institution it was, let me tell you! Mr. Goodpimple built schools of liberal arts, fine arts, dentistry, and tanning. He built a lacrosse stadium that seated 102,000. Everywhere on campus was emblazoned the stirring Latin motto CAVE MUSSI—"Watch out for moose." The student union contained a bowling alley, a clock, and a 16-chair barber shop.

... and as for shaving, they didn't

(It was this last feature—the barber shop—that, alas, brought Mr. Goodpimple's college to an early end. The student body, being drawn from the nearby countryside, was composed chiefly of Pequots and Iroquois who, alas, had no need of a barber shop. They braid their hair instead of cutting it, and as for shaving, they don't. The barber, Tremblatt Follicle by name, grew so depressed staring all the time at 16 empty chairs that one day his mind finally gave way. Seizing his vibrator, he ran outside and shook the entire campus till it crumbled to dust. This later became known as Pickett's Charge.)

But I digress. We were discussing ways for you and your roommate to stop hating each other. This is admittedly difficult but not impossible if you will both bend a bit, give a little.

I remember, for example, my own college days (Berlitz, '08). My roommate was, I think you will allow, even less agreeable than most. He was a Tibetan named Ringading whose native customs, while indisputably colorful, were not entirely endearing. Mark you, I didn't mind so much the gong he struck on the hour or the string of firecrackers he set off on the half-hour. I didn't even mind his singeing chicken feathers every dusk and daybreak. What I did mind was that he singed them in my hat.

To be fair, he was not totally taken with some of my habits either—especially my hobby of collecting water. I had no jars at the time and just had to stack the water any-old-where.

Well sir, things grew steadily cooler between Ringading and me, and they might have gotten actually ugly had we not each happened to receive a package from home one day. Ringading opened his package, paused, smiled shyly at me, and offered me a gift.

"Thank you," I said. "What is it?"
 "Yak butter," he said. "You put it in your hair. In Tibetan we call it gree see kidstuff."
 "Well now, that's mighty friendly," I said and offered him a gift from my package. "Now you must have one of mine."
 "Thank you," he said. "What is this called?"
 "Marlboro Cigarettes," I said and held a match for him.
 He puffed. "Wow!" he said. "This sure beats chicken feathers!"
 "Or anything else you could name," I said, lighting my own Marlboro.

And as we sat together and enjoyed that fine flavorful Marlboro tobacco, that pure white Marlboro filter, a glow of good fellowship came over us—a serene conviction that no quarrels exist between men that will not yield to the warmth of honest good will. I am proud to say that Ringading and I remain friends to this day, and we exchange cards each Christmas and each Fourth of July, firecrackers.

Wherever you or your roommate may be—on any campus in any city, town, or hamlet in any state of the Union—you will find Marlboros at your favorite tobacco counter—soft pack or flip top box.
