Salem Receives No Information About Refugees

By Phyllis Sherman

Salem's work this year with the World University Service, to provide for the education of twelve refugee students from various localities around the world, has experienced an irritating set back. To date we have received no record from WUS that our check sent last year for the educational expenses of the refugees was received. Nor has there been any confirmation of the names and addresses of the twelve students to be supported this year.

Due to this delay in the financial confirmation from last year, the refugee committee has hesitated to initiate more money-raising projects for the classes until the matter has been cleared up. When finances are straight and we have received the names and addresses of our students, the refugee committee hopes for the active support of all Salemites in both raising funds and getting to know the twelve students.

Who's Who Selects Nine Students

Dean Ivy Hixson has announced that nine seniors have been chosen to represent Salem in Who's Who Among Students in American Colleges and Universities for 1964. Pat Ashby, Frances Bailey, Margy Harris, Nancy Knott, Susan Purdie, Alice Reid, and Wookie Workman were notified last week of their selection.

Pat Ashby, from Winston-Salem, an English major, serves this year as president of the Day Students and as Legislative Board representative. Last year she acted as vice president of Day Students and was a member of SNEA.

Frances Bailey, an English and history major from Midlothian, Virginia, is this year's president of Pierrettes. She is also a member of Phi Alpha Theta, Salem's honorary historical society, and of the Order of the Scorpion. Last year Frances was active in Pierrettes, was president of Humanities, and served as business manager of the Archway.

History major Margy Harris, who calls Roxboro home, is vice-president of Student Government. In the past she has served as treasurer of Student Government, sophomore class president, and in various capacities on The Salemite. Margy is also active in the Wesley Foundation of the Methodist Church.

Frances Holton of Edenton, a chemistry major, is vice-president of the senior class, as well as being vice-chairman of Judicial Board. A marshal last year, she was treasurer of the sophomore class the year before.

Student Government President Tish Johnston, from Davidson, is an English and history major. Tish is also a member of Scorpions, Phi Alpha Theta, and the Honor Society. In previous years at Salem, Tish has served as secretary of Student Government and vice-president of the sophomore class. She also worked on the Salemite for several years.

Nancy Knott, a day student majoring in history, holds the offices of president of SNEA and of Phi Alpha Theta. She has previously served as representative to Legislative Board and treasurer of Day Students, and is in the Honor Society.

Susan Purdie, a mathematics major from Dunn, is president of WRA. Last year's vice-president of WRA, she has also worked for the YWCA. Last year she served as a member of the Student Center committee, and was admitted to the Honor Society.

Alice Reid, an English major, hails from Hartsville, South Carolina and is acting as business manager of the Salemite, as well as treasurer of her senior class. Alice has also been active in Pierrettes, Phi Alpha Theta, IRC, the Honor Society, and WRA. This summer Alice was one of two Oslo Scholars selected to attend summer school in Oslo, Norway.

A mathematics major from Davidson, Wookie Workman is chairman of Judicial Board this year after serving last year as secretary of that organization. In the past Wookie has acted as hall president of Babcock and as a member of Legislative Board.

Selected by a committee of eight members of the Salem College faculty and the President of Student Government, and approved finally by the central committee at the organization's headquarters in Alabama, these girls meet four national qualifications.

These qualifications include excellence and sincerity in scholarship, leadership and participation in extra-curricular and academic activities, citizenship and service to the school and promise of future usefulness in business and society.

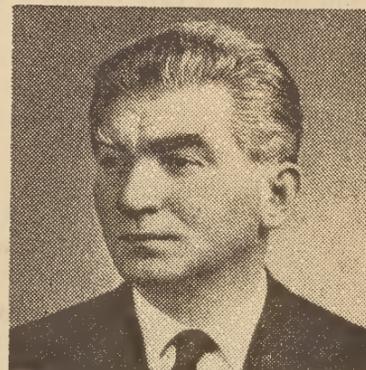

Handler Opens Lecture Series

Salem's Lecture Series begins Tuesday, November 4, at 8 p.m. in Memorial Hall when M. S. Handler, one of the most experienced correspondents of international relations for The New York Times, appears to address interested students and faculty. His topic is "As East and West Europe View United States Foreign Policy."

Since Mr. Handler began his newspaper career in France thirty years ago, he has covered pre-war Paris, Hitler's Germany, Stalin's Russia, Tito's Yugoslavia, and Adenauer's Germany. Besides, he knows with first hand intimacy all the Iron Curtain countries, because he has a speaking knowledge of the language of many of them and can talk directly with people in all walks of life rather than depend on official translations. Fluent in French, German, and Russian, Mr. Handler also has a command of Bulgarian, Czech, Polish, Serbo-Croat, and Italian. Thus, these experiences and qualifications provide a firm foundation in terms of his topic.

A native New Yorker, who grew up in Chicago and is a graduate of the University of Chicago, Mr. Handler has pursued twin hobbies—history and politics—as a graduate student at three major universities—Chicago, Harvard and the Sorbonne. For almost three decades, he has pursued them at the source in a dozen different European and Middle East countries.

In 1935 Mr. Handler began working for the United Press and served as parliamentary reporter in Paris. For five years he reported on French politics, the disintegration of the French Army, the Third Republic, and the French surrender to the Nazis. In 1941 he covered the air blitzkrieg against London and then was assigned to the Soviet Union.

Traveling to the USSR with the second Arctic convoy, he arrived in Moscow in October, 1941, just as the Battle for Moscow got underway. He covered the Russians in (Continued on page three)

Group Gives Rules For Using Bulletin Boards

Mary Ellen Emory, chairman of the Bulletin Board Committee, has announced that the only bulletin boards on which notices may be placed by students without approval are those in the Day Student Center, the refectory and individual dormitories. Personal notices may be placed on dormitory and refectory boards; club announcements on the Day Student board.

The administration's approval must be secured before posting anything on the bulletin board in Main Hall. Posters are not to be larger than 12 inches by 14 inches and are to be removed from the boards as soon as the news becomes effective.

Freshmen Elect Hooten President; Vincent, McNeill, James To Assist

The freshman class last week elected its officers for this year. They are as follows:

Barbie Hooten, president; Mary Vincent, vice-president; Ann McNeill, secretary; and Nan James, treasurer.

Barbie Hooten, from Fredericksburg, Virginia, is not only the new class president, but is also a Salem Scholar. Her high school activities include membership in the National Honor Society as secretary, feature editor of the annual, secretary of the senior class, and cheerleader. Her interests while at Salem will be concentrated in the major field of mathematics.

Mary Vincent, vice-president, is from The Collegiate Schools in Richmond, Virginia. Having served on Judicial Board at Collegiate, Mary is qualified in fulfilling a similar capacity as vice-president.

Ann McNeill, the class secretary, from Elkin, is another of the three Salem Scholars. In high school she served as chief junior marshal, the business manager of the annual, and was a member of the Beta Club. In addition, Ann was salutatorian of her graduating class. She has not, as yet, decided on a major.

The newly elected treasurer of the class is Nan James. A tentative art major, Nan is from Greenville, South Carolina; she was a home room officer for four years and was a member of the National Honor Society. Not only was Nan a scholar and leader in her high school, but was also a senior superlative—the Most Courteous.

In a meeting held last Monday, the class approved a motion that all temporary officers elected last month be installed as permanent class officers. Thus voting for individual offices was eliminated.

Newly elected freshman class officers, Barbie Hooten, president; Mary Vincent, vice president; Anne McNeill, secretary; and Nan James, treasurer.
