

Talking between classes in the Day Student Center are day students Nancy Knott and Zena Strub.

Salem Hockey Team Hosts Catawba; Visitors Show Great Improvement

Salem hosted the Catawba College hockey team last Thursday, only to come out on the short end of a 4-0 score. Following the game, the two teams had supper together and had an opportunity to get acquainted with each other.

The Salem team, captained by Elskan Rutgers, expresses the opinion that the Catawba team was capable of beating any team they have met this year. Coach Anne Woodward added that the Catawba team has greatly improved over the past two years.

A return match is scheduled Monday, November 25, between Salem and Catawba.

Salem's last game was played against Wake Forest on their home field yesterday at 4:30 p.m. For the past three years Salem and Wake Forest have hosted each other on their home fields, with Wake Forest girls holding the edge in number of victories.

Day Students Function In Home, Campus Life

By Becky Newsome

In the room behind the Day Student Center is the Day Student Center. Not only is the name confusing, but there is often confusion about just what day students are. To the boarding students, they are the girls who thrive on home-cooking and are the underclassmen with cars. To the day students themselves, they are the girls who burn hubby's dinner while working math problems and are late to classes because of traffic jams. Otherwise, day students are just like any other students. Yes, they do have to go to classes and assembly! The only difference is that they live at home and live by home rather than dorm rules. (No sign outs!)

The day students function as a group on campus sponsored by Dr. Wilmer Sanders. They are both a non-budget student government organization and a social group. As an organization, the day students are represented on the Student Government legislative and judicial boards, the Y Cabinet, and the IRS Council. As a member of Legislative Board, the president of the day students is the business manager of the handbook, and the day students are busy each year in a pre-exam scurry to get the ads sold before school is out.

The most enjoyable "work" the day students engage in is sponsoring social activities. Their favorite is the annual Christmas Tea, to which they invite the faculty, administration, and students for a sample of homemade cookies and Christmas cheer. They also sponsor a tea each year at the beginning of orientation for the new students and their parents.

But activities are never a true picture of any group. The everyday life of the girls in the Day

Student Center is much more important to them as individuals and as a group. This year the Day Student Center has been rather quiet, compared to last year's constant bridge games and noise. The starting of Y Watch on Wednesday afternoons after lunch has stimulated discussions on things that really matter—and things that don't really matter. Almost anytime, girls can be found in the Center studying, comparing experiences and ideas in practice teaching, discussing religion, life goals, wedding plans, the woman's role in marriage and in society, or last week's parties.

The boarding students are always welcome to drop into the Day Student Center, to get acquainted, and to chat.

November 19, the Legislative Board voted to support the American University's "TURTLE INTERNATIONAL," a fund-raising project for muscular dystrophy. There will be an entrance fee of $5 and a "turtle rental" fee of $1. It is hoped that Salem will be able to raise this fee by student donations. A box for such donations will be set up, and this box will also be for suggested names for Salem's turtle. Donations and suggestions must be made by Tuesday, November 26.

The race in Washington will be held December 6; prizes for winning names and fastest turtles will be awarded, and the entire race will be covered by national press, including Life magazine.

Legislative Board will have no meeting on November 26 because of the approaching Thanksgiving holidays.

SHOULD AULD ACQUAINTANCE AND JAZZ LIKE THAT

I am now an elderly gentleman, full of years and aches, but my thoughts keep ever turning to my undergraduate days. This is called "arrested development."

But I cannot stop the healing tide of nostalgia that washes over me as I recall those golden campus days, those ivy-covered buildings (actually, at my college, there was only ivy: no bricks), those pulse-tingling lectures on John Dryden and Cotton Mather, the many friends I made, the many deans I bit.

I know some of you are already dreading the day when you graduate and lose touch with all your merry classmates. It is my pleasant task today to assure you that it need not be so; all you have to do is join the Alumni Association and every year you will receive a bright, newsy, chatty bulletin, chock-full of tidings about your old buddies.

Oh, what a red-letter day it is at my house, the day the Alumni Bulletin arrives! I cancel all my engagements, take the phone off the hook, dismiss my resident osteopath, put the cheetah outside, and settle down for an evening of pure pleasure with the Bulletin and (need I add?) a good supply of Marlboro Cigarettes.

Whenever I am having fun, a Marlboro makes the fun even more fun. That filter, that flavor, that yielding soft pack, that firm Flip Top box, never fails to heighten my pleasure whether I am playing Double Canfield or watching the radio or knitting an afghan or enjoying any other diverting pursuit you might name—except, of course, spear fishing. But then, how much spear fishing does one do in Clovis, New Mexico, where I live?

But I digress. Let us return to my Alumni Bulletin and the fascinating news about my old friends and classmates. I quote from the current issue:

"Well, fellow alums, it certainly has been a wing-dinger of a year for us old grads! Remember Mildred Cheddar and Harry Camembert, those crazy kids who always held hands in Econ II? Well, they're married now and living in Clovis, New Mexico, where Harry rents spear-fishing equipment, and Mildred has just given birth to a lovely 28-pound daughter, her second in four months. Nice going, Mildred and Harry!

"Remember Jethro Brie, the man we voted most likely to succeed? Well, old Jethro is still gathering laurels! Last week he was voted 'Motorman of the Year' by his fellow workers in the Duluth streetcar system. 'I owe it all to my brakeman,' said Jethro in a characteristically modest acceptance speech. Same old Jethro!

"Probably the most glamorous time had by any of us old alums was had by Francis Macomber last year. He went on a big game hunting safari all the way to Africa! We received many interesting post cards from Francis until he was, alas, accidentally shot and killed by his wife and white hunter. Tough luck, Francis!

"Wilametta 'Deadeye' Macomber, widow of the late beloved Francis Macomber, was married yesterday to Fred 'Sureshot' Sigafos, white hunter, in a simple double-ring ceremony in Nairobi. Many happy returns, Wilametta and Fred!

"Well, alums, that just about wraps it up for this year. Buy bonds!"

© 1963 Max Shulman

* * *

Old grads, new grads, undergrads, and non-grads all agree: that good Richmond tobacco recipe, that clean Selectrate filter, have turned all fifty states of the Union into Marlboro Country. Won't you join the throng?

SALEMITES EAT AT THE PETER PAN

STEAKS — SEAFOOD — SALADS
OPEN 7:00 A.M.-8:00 P.M.
CLOSED SUNDAYS

Is Your Headquarters For

CALL Park 4-1551

JR. SPORTSWEAR SALEM SHOPS, 2ND

Knitting, Girls?

Come see our selection of yarns at—

THE VILLAGE YARN SHOP

Over Dan's Antique Shop

TRY OUR

DELICIOUS & CREAMY

• S. STRATFORD ROAD
• NORTHSIDE SHOPPING CENTER

MILKSHAKES