The Salemite, IRS Sponsor Contest To Choose Best-Dressed Salemite

The Salemite and IRS are jointly sponsoring a contest to choose the best-dressed girl on campus. This contest is part of Glamour Magazine's annual national competition to choose the "Ten Best-Dressed College Girls." Salem's winner will represent the college in the national contest. The selection of a Salemite as one of the "Ten Best Dressed College Girls" would mean national recognition for Salem as well as exciting prizes and opportunities for the winner herself.

Glamour's editor, Kathleen Aston Casey states the purpose of this contest in saying that "through the contest it is our hope to show that being well-dressed and well-groomed is an integral part of an education that develops the well-rounded mind. We also hope to show that these attributes are not a question of money or an extensive wardrobe. They depend, rather, on the development of good taste and on intelligent interest in one's appearance."

The chairman of Salem's portion of the national competition is sophomore Edna Harvey. After nominations from the student body have been collected, a joint committee from IRS and Salemite will tally the nominations and choose five girls as finalists in Salem's contest. This committee of eight consists of members of all four classes from IRS Council and The

Society Inducts Eight Members

Salem's Honor Society has recently admitted eight new members, Cecie Boren, Judy Gilliam, Dottie Girling, Barbara Mallard, Jan Norman, Margaret Persons, Linda Tunstall and Gretchen Wampler. These juniors have, after five semesters of work, an overall average of 3.2.

Likewise recognition has been given to those girls who have an average of 3.2 in their work this past semester. Of these girls there are twenty-seven in the senior class; Barbara Bodine, Susanne Boone, Gaye Brown, Betty Bullard, Pat Bryant Burdette, Charlotte Carter, Dorothy Davis, Daphne Dukate, Barbara Gardner, Nancy Gardner, Mary Graves, Harriet Haywood, Catherine Hubbard, Jerry Johnson, Anne Kendrick, Linda Lyon, Lynne McClement, Joan McDorman, Wendy McGlenn, Daphne McKee, Rebecca Matthews, Helen Odom, Maxine Crim Perdue, Adele Richheimer, Sarah Rupprecht, Garnelle G. Sapp, and Patricia Wilson.

The twenty-three per cent of the juniors also on the Dean's List include Jean Barnes, Ann Clowers, Cheryl Cranfill, Carol Derflinger, Margaret Edwards, Judy Gilliam, Dottie Girling, Pat Hankins, Jean King, Minor McCoy, Barbara Mallard, Jan Norman, Margaret Persons, Harriet Price, Sally Springer, Linda Tunstall, Dale Walker, Gretchen Wampler and Ann Wilson.

The sophomores making this average, Lita H. Brown, Betsy Carr, Maria Deviney, Jaya Gokhale, Susan Hines, Susan Kelly, Sue Overbey, and Rebecca Scott, represent six per cent of their class.

The seven girls in the freshman class, Carolyn Billings, Ruth Davis, Mary Alice DeLuca, Elizabeth DuBose, Nancy Lineberger, Carol Quick and Jean Sawyer, complete the list of those on the Dean's List for the first semester of the 1964-1965 school year.

Five New Members Join Faculty For Second Term

This semester five new members have joined the Salem College faculty. Dr. James C. McDonald comes to Salem from Wake Forest and teaches one Biology 2 Lab. Miss Evabelle Covington, formerly the head of Economics-Sociology Department at Salem, has returned to teach Economics 330, Personal Finance. Dr. Karl M. Scott, also from Wake Forest, is teaching the Principles of Economics classes this semester.

Salemite staff. Mrs. Esther Mock, Director of the News Bureau, is the advisor to the committee. A student body vote will determine the winner from among the five finalists. The committee will then arrange for photographs of the winner in a typical campus outfit, an off-campus daytime outfit and a full or cocktail length party dress. Salem's entry will be submitted to the national contest by March 8.

Among the prizes awarded to the "Ten Best Dressed College Girls" are appearances in the August issue of Glamour and the possibility of modeling in the magazine throughout their winning year. The ten winners will also be guests of Glamour Magazine on an all-expense paid visit to New York City from May 30 to June 11, 1965.

Company Gives Don Pasquale

Tuesday, February 16, at 8:30 p.m., the Doldovsky Opera Company will present Don Pasquale in Don Pasquale is an opera buffa in three acts, that is, it deals with the lower classes. Composed by Gaetano Donizetti, a contemporary of Verdi, the setting is Rome in the nineteenth century. The main characters are Don Pasquale, an old bachelor; his nephew Ernesto; Norino, a beautiful young widow and beloved of Ernesto; and Dr. Malatesta, a friend of the family.

The plot surrounds the young lovers whose marriage is opposed by Don Pasquale. With the help of Dr. Malatesta, they contrive a plan which will win the consent of the uncle.

The Goldovsky Opera Company originated in Boston in 1946 as an opera theatre which would provide talented young singers with opportunities to gain the performing experience essential to their future success. Since then it has been famous for its experimental techniques and search for new operatic material. The basic creed of the Goldovsky Opera Theatre can be summarized in one phrase: unified and homogeneous musical and theatrical style.

Religious Emphasis Week Begins In Meaningful Assembly Address

Dr. Bernard Boyd opened our Religious Emphasis Week with an address in Assembly on Tuesday, February 9. The dynamic speaker from the University of North Caro-

Three of the early graduates, Jo Ann Addison, Marianne Wilson, Lynne McClement, pause in the midst of exams and last minute packing to say "good-bye."

Early Graduates Complete Exams With Sighs, Smiles

When the first Salem students picked up their grades on February 1, there were five of these long white envelopes missing. They had already been received by the graduates of January, 1965.

Jo Ann Addison received a degree in history with a minor in elementary education. This month she will begin teaching in the County School System of Baltimore, Maryland, where she makes her home. After her marriage to Lyle Schill on August 14, Jo Ann will live in College Park, Maryland. While at Salem, she was a member of SNEA.

During the past semester, Liz Irwin, from Spartanburg, S. C., completed a major in art and a minor in English. She was also employed part-time, making poster and pamphlet advertisements for the Southern Bell Telephone Company in Winston-Salem. Liz was active in May Day Committee work, and she contributed cartoons to The Salemite. Liz plans to work in commercial art in Winston-Salem.

A member of the Honor Society and the recipient of two President's Prizes, Lynne McClement majored in art with a French minor. She has served as co-editor of Sights and Insights, poetry editor for the Archway, and a member of the Choral Ensemble. After her marriage to Chuck Pruitt on February 27, Lynne will move from her home in Spartanburg to Louisville, Kentucky, where she would like to continue her French at the University of Kentucky and perhaps teach ballet.

A mother of four who has lived in Winston-Salem for twenty-four years, Mrs. Rosita Thacker has completed a major in English and a minor in history. Her immediate plans include taking a trip with her husband, making a dress for her daughter Carol to wear at her graduating recital at UNC-G in April, devoting more time to her 16 and 11-year old boys, and catching up on housework. She plans to teach in Winston-Salem and perhaps will continue her studies in the area of Special Education. Mrs. Thacker has been active in Girl Scout and church work, and she has served as director of summer camp, and a member of the board of the Winston-Salem Symphony.

Marianne Wilson graduated with a chemistry major and a double minor in English and history. While at Salem, she worked with IRS and Lablings, and was co-editor of The Salemite. Marianne is from Raleigh, and after her February 27 marriage to Wayne Marshall, she will move to Asheboro. She plans to do laboratory work.

ANNOUNCEMENT

Monday, February 15, the freshmen will have an opportunity to voice their opinions on Freshman Seminar and other aspects of their first semester in college. Questionnaires will be distributed in the classroom in the gym. The results will be used to plan next year's program. It will also be posted for the interest of students and faculty.

Dr. Bernard Boyd

lina spoke on religion in the Scientific Age. Dr. Boyd admitted immediately that this is the Scientific Age, but science can go only so far in explaining certain, definite facts. Science cannot explain goodness, truth, or beauty. He went on to say that we should not lose our awe, reverence, and wonder of life. We should also have an awareness of the divine element and must prepare ourselves to receive the divine.

In reading The Bible, sensory perception and intelligence are used. But only when we apply insight are we able to understand what it says.

Beauty, truth, and goodness are necessary in order to live. These are given to us by divine revelation and without it the desire to live leaves. We must learn to see the distant light shining through the darkness and follow it until we reach our goal. Christ can give the answers that science and philosophy cannot provide.

Daphne DuKate

Scholar Teacher Receives Honor

Memories of mimeographing machines, pop tests, grading papers, SNEA tryouts, high school football games, and seven weeks of lesson plans linger in the mind of newly selected "Miss Student Teacher," Daphne Dukate.

Daphne, a senior biology major from Panama City, Florida, was selected for this honor by judges from the Forsyth County School System. Barbara Gardner from Winston-Salem and Kay Ascough of Martinsville, Virginia were the other contestants in this Salem SNEA contest.

The greatest quality of teaching that Daphne discovered during her practice teaching in biology at North Forsyth High School was its variety as seen by students taking her to a football game, discovering a slow student cheating, the grading of papers, and encountering the individual differences in students. She feels that the techniques of a good teacher should include firm discipline, a sense of humor, a spirit for student activities inside and outside of class, distinct pronunciation and a pleasant audible voice, and the ability of self evaluation as well as student evaluation.

At Salem, Daphne is President of Lablings, business manager of Sights and Insights, a member of the Lecture Series committee, a Phi Alpha Theta, and a member of the Honor Society.

As Salem's "Miss Student Teacher," Daphne will attend a Regional Student National Education Convention in Asheville on March 19. Next year she plans to teach in Raleigh after a late summer wedding.
