Salem Hosts Conference For Singers' Association

The National Association of Teachers of Singing will hold a regional conference and auditions at the Salem College Fine Arts Center on November 11 and 12. There will be approximately sixty voice teachers here for the conference and eighty-eight students from the state region which includes North and South Carolina, Virginia, West Virginia, Georgia, and Florida. The participants in the auditions are all students of NATS members. They will be categorized according to their year in high school or college and their level of study. The auditions will start Friday afternoon and will be followed by a banquet in the Salem College Club Dining Room with a greeting by Dean Sandresky. After the banquet will be a "special award" concert by outstanding singers selected from the afternoon auditions. The first day of the conference and auditions will end with a one act opera "A Game of Chance" by the club and a recital at the School of Arts by Norman Farrow, a baritone soloist.

Saturday will begin with the guest speaker Rose Rampton who will talk on "Preparation for a Career" in Shirley Auditorium at 9 a.m. Following the speaker there will be a tour of the School of Arts and lunch. Immediately afterwards, there will be a meeting of state chapters and the election of officers. At 2:30 p.m. the Singer of the Year Contest will begin and at 4 p.m., the highlight of the day for many, will be the announcement of the winner. The lucky and talented winner will go on to Washington, D. C. for the National Meeting to compete with the winners from other areas. The winner chosen from there will go on to New York with an award of $1,000, a concert tour, and a tryout with the Met.

Salem College will be brimming with musicians this week-end as 150 students and teachers register for the activities of the weekend. Paul W. Peterson is the Salem College Conference Chairman and is in charge of registration while Joan Jacobowsky is on the Assisting Committee.

Each year a certain number of seniors from colleges and universities across the country are selected for "Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities." Membership is limited to a certain percentage from each college and is based on a student's academic work, averages, and participation and leadership in academic and extra-curricular activities. Citizenship, service to the school and promise of potential are also factors which are considered in selecting members to this organization.

Each fall a committee is appointed by the college president to select students for Who's Who. The committee is composed of the president, deans, and faculty members from varying departments. This year the committee honored eleven seniors with membership to Who's Who.

The first of these is Peggy Booker. Peggy is a music major at Salem and has shown exceptional talent in her field. Besides giving student recitals, she has also worked as pianist at the Governor's School this past summer. She has been active as a class officer, a representative to SSL, and is a newly-elected member of the Order of the Scorpion, Salem's service organization.

Lita Brown, an English major, is serving this year as editor of the Archway, Salem's literary magazine. Lita has worked on the Archway staff for a number of years and contributes numerous poems to this publication. She is also a member of the Honor Society.

Barbara Hooten, otherwise known as Barbie, is a history major. She is a member of Phi Alpha Theta, the honorary history society. Her freshman year she served as class president and, as such, served on Legislative Board. Barbie is also a Salem Scholar.

Dabney Kelley, is known on campus for her work in Student Government. Dabney has served on Legislative Board for two years and is President of Student Government this year. She is majoring in biology and minoring in chemistry.

Susan Kelly, presently serving as vice-president of Pierrettes, has played a variety of roles in this organization's various productions. She was cast in "Oh Dad, Poor Dad," "Three Sisters," "As You Like It," and most recently in "The Skin Of Our Teeth." A class officer for three years and a 1966 Oslo Scholar, Susan is working toward a double major in English and psychology.

Sociology Class Completes Survey On Campus Life

By Sandra Frazier

The surveys taken by Mr. Wendt's sociology 212 class have been completed and results have been tabulated. Since these surveys were concerned with the Salem College community and different aspects of campus life, it was thought that the students might be interested in the results. They are as follows:

Survey No. 1—Clothing Shopping Habits of Salem Students.

1. Most students prefer to shop in hometown areas because of familiarity, better selection, and quality of store.
2. Most students plan their purchases rather than buying on the spur of the moment, even though many do, at times, buy spontaneously.
3. "Seeking out" and shopping sales was not a determining factor in buying clothes; however, it did influence purchasing.
4. Most students are not limited by a budget, but those that are fall in the $25 - $49 range.
5. The favorite stores are Montaldo's and Thalhimers.

Survey No. 2 — Use of Refectory and Other Eating Facilities

1. The largest percentage of meals eaten in the refectory by all 4 classes combined was in the category of 10-21 meals per week.
2. The meal eaten most in the refectory was lunch.
3. The meal eaten most in places other than the refectory was dinner.
4. The largest percentage of meals eaten at places other than the refectory by all 4 classes combined was in the category of 1-3 meals per week.
5. The average amount of money spent on each meal was found to be from 50c-99c.
6. The eating facilities frequented most often were as follows:
Farmers' Dairy - - -1st
Student Center - - -2nd
Walking Distance - - -3rd
Those places requiring transportation - - -4th
7. The most frequent means of transportation when students eat out was walking for every class except the seniors, which was by car.

Salem Students Compete In Kitchen Sink Contest

By Laura Eutsler

Salem girls made their claim to fame when Wednesday night, November 2, found four Salemites, Sandy Kelley (freshman), Tinka Adams and Laura Eutsler (sophomores) and Mary Jo Hawks (junior) in the midst of cheers at the Old Salem Farmers Dairy Bar.

It seems as though these girls had volunteered to compete in a contest that the Farmers Dairy had arranged that day. They were to race four Wake Forest men in the eating of a renowned "Kitchen Sink." As the minutes drew nearer, these four nervous gals walked down the hill to the dairy. Besides having to face that huge punch bowl filled with nine scoops of ice cream, three scoops of sherbet—plus all the toppings — the girls had to contend with radio announcers, TV and newspapermen. And then their competition proved to be four darling juniors at Wake Forest who seemed to be capable of "eating their weight in gold."

At 9 p.m. the race was on . . . and 4 minutes 14 seconds later the Salem girls rose as victors. Yes, they had devoured ALL of that huge "treat". A reporter in a preliminary interview asked if the Salem team had been practicing for the event. A prompt "No," was the answer, "Not as a team, but individually we practice daily at the refectory!" And can you imagine that only one of the girls skipped supper before the contest. Of the three that went to supper that night, one even ate dessert—a dish of ice cream! It was also revealed that three out of four winners did not especially like ice cream before the event.

Each of the participants, winners and all, received certificates from Dairy Manager, Mr. Carmichael, good for anything to eat at the dairy for two. Further results were pictures with a feature story on the event that appeared in an edition of the Journal last week.

When asked how she felt afterwards, Sandy Kelley said, "I don't really feel too full, but I couldn't manage another one now." Mary Jo Hawks said "Now that I've done it once, I wouldn't mind trying again." However, there is only one catch to this victory story — the Wake Forest men received voluntarily a handicap of two "Kitchen Sinks" instead of just one!
