Salem College through the medium of the college's traditional Symposium which will be held April 14 and 15. The topic will be "Violence as Human Expression".

There will be four speakers, one of whom will speak on April 13. This is Dr. Benjamin Spock, the famous pediatrician, who has openly expressed his views in regard to violence. He will speak at 11 a.m. in a special assembly which will act as a kick-off for the Symposium. Hopefully, he will be able to speak informally with the students after lunch.

The other three speakers will be here for the Symposium proper on April 14 and 15. They are Dr. Richard Maxwell Brown, Dr. Breno Bettelheim, and Dr. Albert Reiss.

Dr. Brown is a professor of history at William and Mary. He wrote a chapter in the report of the President's Commission on Violence entitled "Historical Patterns of Violence in America."

Dr. Bettelheim is a professor of Education and Psychology as well as a psychiatrist and the principal of the Sonia Shannan Orthogenic School of the University of Chicago. Besides his work with children and the violently oriented, he has written several articles, one of which is entitled, "Violence, a Neglected Mode of Behavior."

Dr. Reiss is the chairman of the Department of Sociology at the University of Michigan and has done extensive sociological research in the area of violence.

Further information concerning the schedule of speeches and discussions will be given later. (but show interest now and plan to attend).

New members of Phi Alpha Theta are Sydney Timmons, Pam Anderson, Sara Engram, and Nancy Wetzell.

Phi Alpha Theta Holds Private Induction Ceremony

Phi Alpha Theta, the honorary history society, inducted four new members December 2. Members must have completed twelve hours of history with superior grades and have earned above-average grades in other subjects to qualify. The present membership includes nine students and five faculty members.

The four new members are Pam Anderson, Sara Engram, Sydney Timmons, and Nancy Wetzell. Pam, a Senior from Advance, is a history major who hopes to do graduate work in library science. Nancy is also a Senior and a history major. Her present activities are centered around student teaching and the responsibilities of being Senior Class President. She is from Gastonia.

Sara is a junior who is majoring in religion. She and Nancy were Salem's Oslo Scholars in Norway this past summer. She is from Enterprise, Alabama. Sydney, a junior from Greenville, South Carolina, is a Latin major. She has won recognition in the field of Latin by being presented a President's Prize for outstanding grades last year.

An informal dinner preceded the induction of members. After the induction ceremony a short business meeting was conducted in which possible future programs and activities for the group were discussed.

Salemites To Sing In Xmas - 1800

John Smith (the hatter) blows his horn

Salem College students will be guests of Old Salem, Inc. for its special holiday event, "Salem Christmas—1800," Tuesday evening, December 16.

This annual program is a recreation of the sights, sounds and smells of the little Moravian congregation town of Salem as it was in 1800. And again, Paul Peterson and members from the Salem College Choral Ensemble—all dressed in Moravian costume—will sing music known to have been performed in Salem in 1800. They will be in the prayer hall of the Single Brothers House, and will be accompanied by a string quartet of students from the North Carolina School of the Arts. The Rev. James Salzwedel, associate minister at Home Moravian Church, will be at the 1797 Tannenberg organ.

School of the Arts students will present vocal, harpsichord and flute selections at the John Vogler House, and the Madrigal Singers of the School of the Arts will sing period music at the Salem Tavern.

Other restored buildings open that evening will be the Winkler Bakery and the Miksch Tobacco Shop. All of the buildings will be lighted by candles, and there will be varied activity in each in addition to the music: baking at the bakery, household chores at the Miksch, the roasting of a pig at the Tavern and the baking of Moravian Christmas cakes at the John Vogler House.

Main Street will be blocked to traffic. Outdoor features of the program will be bonfires, music by a Moravian band, sentries on horseback, two covered wagons and a night watchman (John Smith) calling the hours.

The evening's activities will be continuous from 6 p.m. to 9 p.m.

Tickets for students will be distributed at the college.

Eight New Members Join Order Of The Scorpion

As Honorary Member and Advisor to the Order of the Scorpion, Dean Hixson would like to make the following announcement:

The Order of the Scorpion has been in existence for more than 30 years. Its sole purpose and ideal is service to Salem with no thought of personal glory for individual members or for the Order itself. Membership is restricted to juniors and seniors, and the number does not at any time exceed fourteen.

Membership does not require the highest academic average or the strongest record of leadership, but it does place high obligation on those upon whom the honor of membership is bestowed. The Scorpions have no planned program; they may do nothing big, they may devote their energies to intangible, small, unrecognized needs. They may also be the moving force or the quiet influence behind some larger project. At all times the Order of the Scorpion attempts to be alert and responsive in some tangible way to such needs as may be observed by its members or referred to it by others.

The new members of the Order of the Scorpion are:

- Seniors—Barbie Barton
Paige French

- Dianne Mitchell
Netta Newbold

- Juniors—Chris Coile
Dianne Dailey
Sara Engram
Emily Wood

- Old members of the Order are:
Seniors—Sandra Culpepper
Sandra Holder
Lindsay McLaughlin
Louise Sherrill
Wendy Yeatts

What's occurring at Corrin on December 18, at 6 p.m.? Could it be Sirloin wrapped in bacon? Chinese Pepper Steak? Roast beef or smothered chicken? Naw—Guess who's coming to dinner? Tom Turkey!

It's Christmas and time for the Christmas Banquet. All the sophomores are working on the invitations, decorations, menu, and skit. The skit will be "The Spirit of Christmas," given in honor of the seniors.

Everyone is invited, even children of the faculty. There will be a party for them in the Club Dining Room. Please sign up in your dorm.
