More Trivia (Or What To Do With A Big Hole On 4)

An orangutan in the Topeka, Kansas Zoo paints pictures on canvas. What's more, when one of his oils was entered in a human art show under a phony name recently, it was awarded first prize. While this may say something about the judgment of the critics, the ape's feat has more important aspects. According to October SCIENCE DIGEST, the five-year-old orang, Djakarta Jim, is providing physical anthropologists with valuable information about ape proclivity for tool invention and use—something that has been in serious question until now.

Some people are psychologically prone to having auto accidents according to Dr. Frederick McGuire, Professor of Medical Psychiatry at California College of Medicine, reporting in the October issue of SCIENCE DIGEST. Depression, anxiety, anger or fear, says Dr. McGuire, cause people to be less attentive behind the wheel — and therefore more likely to be involved in an accident.

Parents' use of legal drugs is related to illegal drug use among teenagers, reports the October SCIENCE DIGEST. Three studies of 28,000 teenagers in Canada, New Jersey and California, conducted by Dr. Donald B. Louria of the College of Medicine and Dentistry, New Jersey, showed that drug use was highest among students whose parents, especially the mothers, were "regular and intensive" users of tranquilizers and stimulants.

Students Experience Social Services With Mrs. Sakran

Having been Director of the Social Service Department of Forsyth Memorial Hospital for five years, Mrs. Donnis P. Sakran is well-qualified to teach Community Social Services at Salem. Mr. Wendt persuaded her to come here as a part-time instructor after working with her in placing sociology majors in the hospital for their field placement.

Mrs. Sakran graduated from UNC-G and holds a master's degree in social work from the University of Tennessee. While in school, she met Ghazi Sakran, a native of the Near East, who became her husband. He has a Ph.D in child development and works with the city-county school system. The Sakrans have two children.

Although Mrs. Sakran has been out of the academic world for several years, she finds that students have not changed very much; however, she says "young people tend to be more aware and interested in social change" now than when she was a student. She feels that sociologists are "trying to make society better as a whole." Her department at Forsyth she says, helps minority groups to cope with their problems.

As a wife, a mother, and a sociologist, Mrs. Sakran doesn't think women's lib is a crucial social problem. She believes women should have equal opportunities but should still be feminine. She remembered a quote which aptly expresses her feelings on this subject: "Why do women want to be equal to men—why do they want to condescend?"

Winning Freshman Rooms Add Color To Dorms

Janet Pace of Richmond, Va., and Cindy Patterson of Charlotte are "making the most" out of Clewell as exhibited by their prize-winning room, 106 Clewell. Their white bedspreads, pink rugs, and dazzling pink, green, and white floral curtains offset the darling mobiles and posters which complete the decor. Love is the theme which covers the pale green walls of Clewell, and Steve McQueen occupies a prominent position over Janet's bed.

In contrast to the warm coziness of the pink and green 106 Clewell is 207 Gramley, home of Sallie Fanjoy and Katherine Auerbach. Boldly decorated with an orange and white shag rug, plum ribcord bedspreads, and plum dotted Swiss curtains, the room has a gaiety and liveliness all its own. The huge posters of animals, love, and politics express the individuality of each of the girls, while the red, yellow, and purple mouse painted on the lampshade is obviously the work of a talented cartoonist.

Multi-colored floral bedspreads, matching drapes, and a bright orange rug give Babcock 212 a cheerful atmosphere, offset perfectly by the historical wig stand which looks exactly like a human head. Decorated by Dade Singleton of Henderson, N. C., and Dean Cecil of Spartanburg, S. C., the room is a panorama of color and flowers, interspersed with art-major Dean's mysterious creations.

Congratulations to all of the Freshmen Room Contest winners for a brilliant show of color, form, variety, and individuality. Each of you has shown that a dorm room—no matter whether it is Clewell, Babcock, or Gramley—can truly be a "home away from home".
