she has cultivated her continuing interest in sewing, crewel work and embroidery, and sailing. A very important part of this Single Sister's life centers around her boyfriend Brad at Davidson, but she manages to find time for important Salem activities such as running April Arts movies, flying kites and toiletpapering dormitory rooms. All in all, this future teacher expressed herself aptly following her election as Honor Council Secretary, "I was very HONORED."

Betty Blaine Perry from Kinston, N. C. is "so excited" about being the rising Sophomore Class Honor Council Representative. She reports with a grin that she "couldn't believe it" when she first learned the results.

Betty Blaine is not a newcomer to work here at Salem. She works with SSC and the "Y" and is Secretary to Babcock Dorm. She "loves to be busy and can't stand to sit around."

The new junior representative to Honor Council is Betsy Hester, a native of nearby High Point, North Carolina. Having been a member of Interdorm Council, Betsy is acquainted with the infractions that arise on a campus and understands the processes involved in dealing fairly with these violations. As house president of Strong, she has served the students before and is pleased to have the opportunity of continuing her role of service in her new capacity.

Sally Pinto, the rising Senior Honor Council Representative says she's so excited that she doesn't know what to say concerning the election outcome. She has served in smaller positions here at Salem before, but is delighted to have the opportunity to serve in such an important position. She's eager about her new post and wants to help violators of the Honor Code learn from their mistakes rather than feel rejected. She just hopes the Honor Council will meet more next year than they have thus far this year. When she realized that as Honor Council Representative she'll be able to welcome the incoming freshmen by being a member of the Orientation staff, she almost left her seat in excitement. The Senior Honor Council Representative from Newark, D. Lawrence is ready to contribute her efforts to "finding the best possible solutions to infractions" of the Honor Code.

Miss Averell Pharr is the Sexy Single Sister's fantastic house president. The new Interdorm Council Chairman, after serving Sisters

Dorm and working on Founder's Day and Sights and Insights, will be an able mistress of situations on the Council. Averell is from Mobile, Ala. and is double majoring in psychology and art history. She foresees great happenings in the near future for the campus-bound in the areas of drinking, inter-visitation, and the maintenance of the honor system.

Rutherfordton's own, Jeanie Hendrick, is an excited new Interdorm Council Secretary. Jeanie represents the freshmen on SSC and wants to contribute to the closeness of this small campus which she admires. This Home Ec. major dislikes nothing more than apathetic students and desires to rid the campus life of apathy next year.

The newly elected president of Y.W.C.A. is Chris Young, a thrill-d native of Henderson, North Carolina. Having served three years on the Y, Chris is no newcomer to its activities, but she is excited about the challenge her new office presents. Chris hopes to make the Y.W.C.A. a more integral part of Salem life by interesting more people. She also stressed that the club itself will become more involved in matters that are of concrete importance to students, as it becomes a "practicing" organization. Chris is eager to include new things in the Y's program and welcome any ideas for change. As I left the room, I heard the clicking of pruning shears—this gal is ready to go!

The office of I.R.S. will be filled by Jeannie Dorsey, a girl who recognizes the importance of social activities on Salem campus. Hailing from Charlottesville, Virginia, Jeannie enters her new job filled with good ideas for the upcoming year. She feels I.R.S. can play an essential role in keeping people active and happy on campus. Her goal is to provide entertainment not only the students of Salem will enjoy but also the entire community.

Coming to the office of Chief Marshal is rising junior Kathy Bacon. Kathy's initial reaction to her winning was one of stunned amazement, quickly followed by excitement. When asked what she was going to do first, she immediately replied she intended to talk to Jeannie Dorsey and find out all the details of the job. She stated that she was a marshal in her high school in Whiteville and so she didn't feel totally ignorant of her new responsibilities. Kathy doesn't have any innovative ideas for the office; however, she does feel capable for the job having become a disciplinarian as hall president, only now her group has expanded tenfold.

Following in the footsteps of Mary Davis is coincidentally enough a girl from the same hometown—Peggy Bullard. Soon, that provincial town of Belmont, North Carolina is going to be boasting of itself as the home of Salem's Pierrettes' presidents. Peggy is not the first Bullard at Salem, she had an older sister who graduated from here, although Peggy admits she didn't share the same avid interest in dramatics. Interviewing Peggy as she oversaw the make-up for the performance of "The Matchmaker," she expressed her happiness at being elected.

Winn Currie of Davidson, N. C. is a graduate of North Mecklenberg High School, and chief basket-weaver on Salem campus. One of the Sexy Single Sisters, Winn's sparkling personality and outstanding creativity will introduce to Salem a new interest in arts and crafts through the medium of April Arts.

Madelyn Rankin of Gastonia, N. C., is our new FITS Chairman. A Salem Academy graduate and business or P.E. major, she is excited, yet apprehensive about her new position. Though it is a bit early to formulate definite plans for FITS Week, Madelyn is emphatic about making freshman initiation a pleasant experience rather than a terror.

Anna Moore Butzner of Fredericksburg, Va. plans to make IRC an active club once again at Salem C. A history major and this year's treasurer of SGA, Anna Moore will directly involve IRC with the community and the nation by participating in the campaign to register young voters. Plans to cooperate with other Winston-Salem colleges in projects and campaigns are also in the offing. Memories of Anna Moore's Help Fund Campaign can give a good indication of the up-and-coming influence of IRC.

The new president of WRA, Lee Booth, hails from Arlington, Va. A receptionist at Salem, member of the Admissions Committee, and Psychology-education major, Lee plans to introduce more inter-collegiate games and tournaments. Quoted as saying that "recreation is an essential part of a total education," interest clubs such as bicycling, jogging, pingpong, etc., will become an integral part of WRA under the leadership of Lee Booth.

Christina Spence is ever ready for the new, the challenging, the unknown! Which is a fortunate characteristic for a new SGA President to have. Christina, who attended Myers Park High School in Charlotte, is the second youngest of five children. At the present she vents her creativity on such activities as photography—for which she received a new Nikkormat camera at Christmas, and snow skiing—for which she has her own skis. An art history major, Christina has no definite plans for the future, but is considering graduate school. At the moment, however, she is concentrating on selling her small honda, and hopes to be a competent President.

Salem's newly-elected veep is Holly Materne, our bubbly ambassador to France. Holly comes from a Richmond family with a winning Salem history (her older sister Susie was SGA President in '66) and has demonstrated many times in the past her love for Salem, combining personal interest with school business—such as selling clogs for SGA last year. Always ready for the future, Holly greatly desires to own a Pappagallo Shop some day after graduation. Meanwhile, she foresees a great year for SGA in the coming year, and is content to love varicolored laces on her tennies, her river house at Gloucester, Va., tiny pony tails, and lots of loud talk.

Mary Ann Campbell, from Laurinburg, N. C., is our new SGA Secretary. She works on the annual, is sophomore class president, and indulges in a worthwhile extra-curricular musical career. She is an English major who has considered majoring in music, which benefits from her lyric voice. Although she dislikes being awakened by the library bulldozers, Mary Ann foresees a great future for Salem, and is happy that she can work toward this future by improving communication through SGA.

Margaret Brinkley, the new SGA Treasurer, comes from Lexington, N. C., and has shown her interest in Salem in many ways since her freshman year. This year Margaret serves as one of the most successful Advertising Managers ever to grace the Salemite staff, and works around school for Miss Simpson, etc. She has a younger sister who also is interested in attending Salem, and this year a South American exchange student lives with her family. Margaret is a psychology and Spanish major, working toward a secondary teaching certificate. She also is interested in such new school projects as the special education addition the psychology department plans to add.

Catherine Cooper is Tarboro, N. C.'s contribution to Honor Council. This new Chairman is a sociology major—with a possible double in history—and has served Salem well in many official capacities in the past. She hopes to help improve campus facilities and communication next year, working for the drinking and intervisitation proposals, cafeteria food, and a functional student center. After graduation she hopes to work, then attend law school. Singing still looms as a possible adventure in careers.

Petite Barbara Brothers (she stands 5'1½" in her bare feet) is a double major, combining English and math "because you have to really think in both of those subjects, unlike many things." Barbara hails from Mobile, Ala. where
