

Lifespan Center Lists Spring Seminars

Two new series of counseling seminars at the Lifespan Center will begin this week. "Today's Woman: Self Discovery and Wider Horizons" is a 12 week series for community women who seek new direction in their lives. The E-V group counseling includes small groups of Salem students who will take tests and develop personal educational and vocational goals.

nesdays from 1-2:30 p.m. beginning March 7.

Salem's Lifespan Counseling Center has opened a "Listening Corner" for clients, faculty and students. The corner is in the center, which is on the second floor of Lehman Hall.

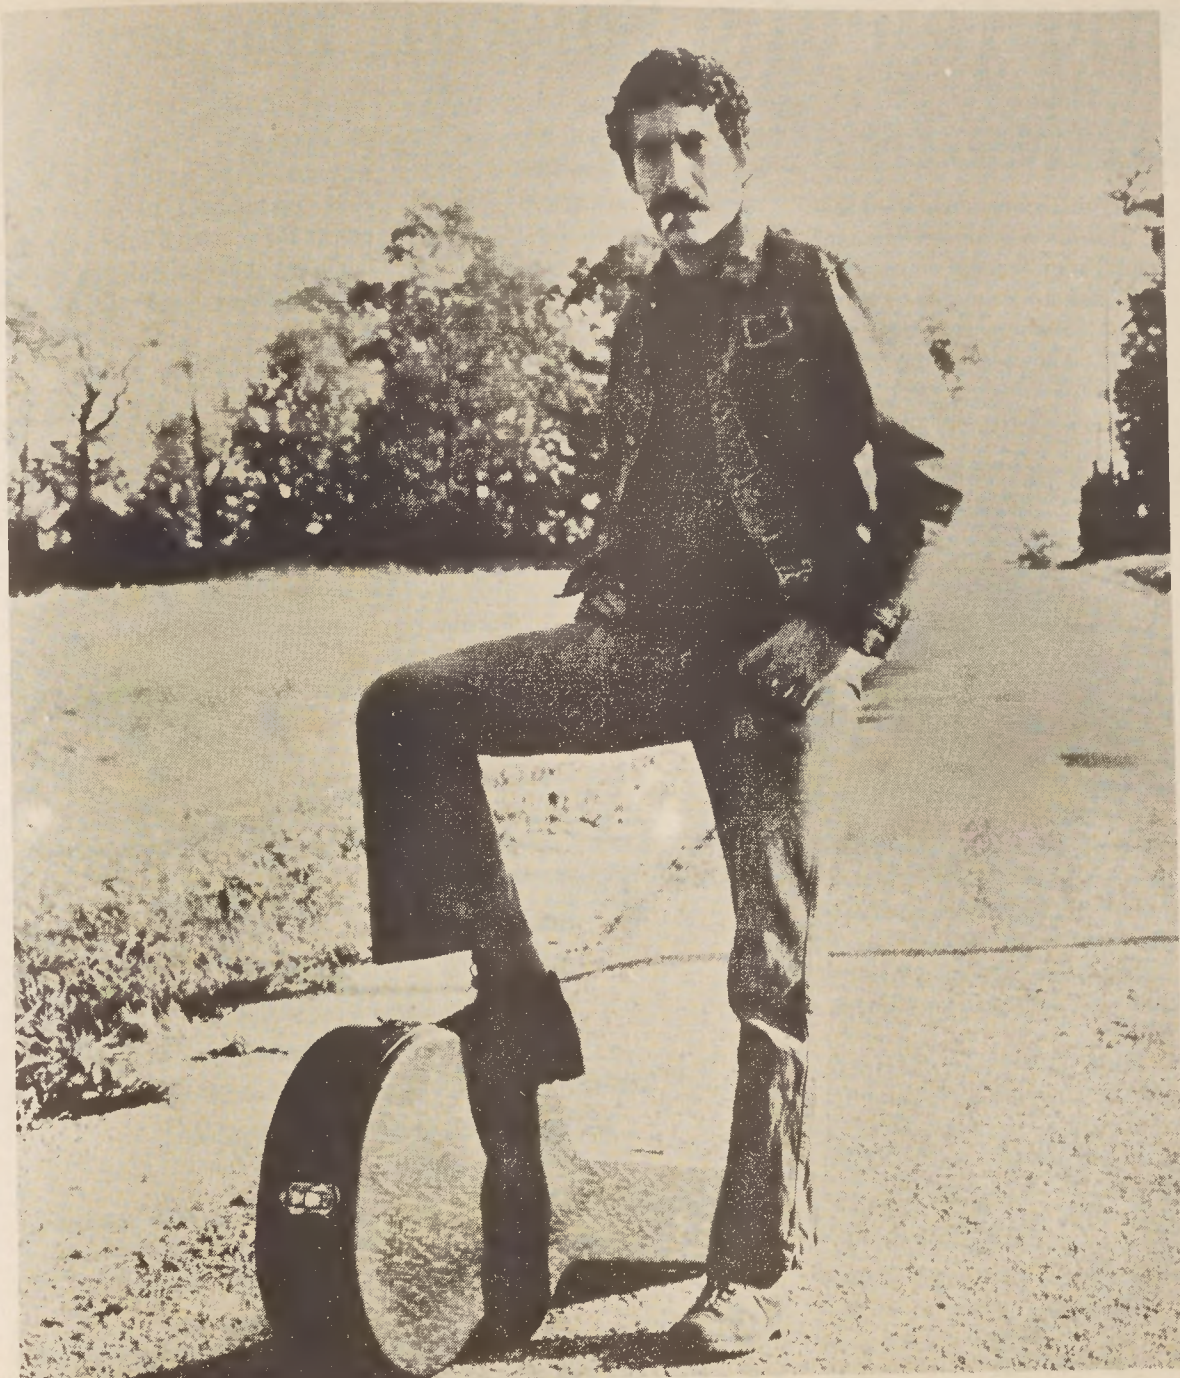

The listening corner includes a cassette tape player and a reclining chair. Tapes now available at the center are "How to Write Successful Resumes" concerning employment, "Techniques for Reducing Tensions," and a variety of skills for communication and cooperation dealing with interpersonal relations.

During the first four months of Lifespan Center operation, counseling was extended to 94 clients. This amounted to 919 contact hours. The clients included 53 Salem students and 41 women from the Winston-Salem community.

The self discovery seminar will be divided into two groups. Ried Raben will be the leader for the group that will meet on Wednesdays from 9-11:30 beginning this Wednesday. Mary Anne Goslin will lead the other group that will meet on Thursdays from 9-11:30 beginning this week. There will be a $50 fee for this series.

The group counseling series will meet six times for discussions. Dianne High will be the leader of the series. This series will meet on Mondays from 3-4:30 p.m. beginning today, Thursdays from 3-4:30 p.m. beginning February 22, and Wed-

The Jim Croce Show will be presented by IRS at 8 p.m. on February 22.

IRS Presents Ensemble Attends Jim Croce Music Festival

The IRS committee has announced that The Jim Croce Show will be presented February 22 at 8 p.m. in Reynolds Auditorium. The show features singer, Jim Croce, and is free for all Salem students. Students must pick up their tickets before the show.

Advance tickets for the general public and dates are $2.00. Tickets at the door are $2.50. Students may pick up tickets at the Salem book store.

Paul Peterson, director of the Salem College Choral Ensemble, will take the ensemble to the second annual Collegiate Choral Festival at Catawba College on Saturday. The festival is under the direction of Dr. Lawrence Bond of Catawba and will meet from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Salem will be among 14 colleges in North Carolina represented at the festival, which is non competitive. Other colleges include UNC-Charlotte's Men's Club, the St. Andrew's Chorus, Pembroke State University Chorus, and the Winston-Salem State University Chorus.

The Salem Chorus will sing "Dearest Lord Jesus," "Sanctus" by Norden/Peterson, "Hail to the Christ Child," and two selections from the Old Salem Christmas collection, "Dearest Swallow" and "Home Thoughts."

The Old Salem selections will be accompanied by the Salem College String Quartet.

The Choral Ensemble also plans to go to Charlotte and Atlanta, Ga. on April 27 for a weekend of singing engagements.

N. C. Wants Applicants For Summer Internships

The North Carolina State Department of Natural and Economics Resources is offering 21 summer internships at $360 per month this summer. The program is for college students who have completed two years of college or technical training.

will be local planning; analysis of industrial market; public participation in state water plan preparation; water inventory of wet industries; recreation consultant and field research on the experimental method of evaluating aquatic food plants in salt marsh impoundments.

Students participating will be asked to prepare reports on subjects ranging from development of interstate short tours to the effluent charge alternative as a means of water quality control.

Applications can be obtained from the personnel office of the Department of Natural and Economic Resources in Raleigh. The deadline is March 1.

Library Stays Open Until 11:30

Mrs. Anna Cooper, Salem College librarian, has announced new hours for the library this semester. The new hours will allow the library to be open five additional evening hours weekly. There will be a librarian and a desk worker on duty Sunday through Thursday from 6:30-9:30 p.m. to aid students in their reference work.

The new hours are from 8:30-5:30 and from 6:30-11:30 Mondays through Thursdays. The library will stay open from 8:30-5:30 and from 6:30-10:30 on Fridays and from 9-5 p.m. on Saturdays. The library will be open from 2-5 p.m. and from 6:30-11:30 p.m. on Sundays.

These extra hours and services have been added on an experimental basis. If there does not appear to be a need for either, they will be discontinued. Also, the College will begin a bus service to the Wake Forest library as soon as there is need for this service.

Mrs. Cooper reminds students that the Wake Forest Library no longer lends books to students for use outside the library. This regulation applies to all students, not only Salem students. She said it remains a good policy to check with the Salem College Library before going to Wake Forest for materials.

Prof Seminar

Dr. Sidney Kelly of Salem's religion and philosophy department and Dr. Michael Thomas of the Sociology department will attend a course in Computer Simulation at Raleigh on Friday.

The social science simulations at the seminar will include political science, sociology and psychology education. The material will include welfare problems, international and state politics, small group behavior and classic psychology experiments.
