Fines Increased For Overdue Books

Many Salem students are not aware of the policy of the library concerning overdue books and lost books. A student should become familiar with the new policies and procedures of the Salem Library or she may find herself facing a rather steep fine. Mr. Woerner reminds students that the checking out of library books is a privilege and that students have the responsibility of returning books when they are due.

All library books are due on Monday. In most cases, books will be due the third Monday after they are checked out. Thus, a book may be held from 15-21 days without renewal. Unless requested by another borrower, books may be renewed as often as necessary. Holders of overdue books will receive one overdue notice.

There is a period of grace from Tuesday to Thursday during which there will be no fine charged. From Friday through Sunday, a fine of 50¢ will be charged. On Monday the fine is increased to $1.00, and each Monday thereafter the fine is increased until it reaches a maximum of $5.00 per book.

1st week
Monday	Books due
Tuesday-Thursday	grace period
Friday-Sunday	50¢ fine
2nd week
Monday-Sunday	$1.00 fine
3rd week
Monday-Sunday	$2.00 fine
4th week
Monday-Sunday	$3.00 fine
5th week
Monday-Sunday	$5.00 fine

There will be an additional charge of $1.00 if the fine is not paid when overdue books are returned. A 50¢ charge will be made if books are not returned to Main Desk or To Afterhours Book Return.

The policy regarding lost books is undergoing revision and will be released as soon as possible.

Overnight reserve books are due one-half hour after the Library opens. Fines for reserve books are 25¢ for the first hour and 5¢ for each additional hour or fraction thereof.
