

Hollywood Movie Series Features Greatest Stars; Astaire and Rogers Go Waltzing in Your Hearts!

"Hooray for Hollywood," a series of 10 films from the 1930's, will be broadcast on the UNC-TV network Fridays at 9 p.m. April 19 through May 3. The films from the "Golden Age" of Hollywood can be seen on Channel 26.

Musicals, comedies, a mystery and social comment films are in "Hooray for Hollywood," making it representative of the 30's. The films are fast-paced and full of wisecracks, and charismatic Hollywood stars of the day deliver the lines. Most from the Warner Brothers studio.

April 19 brings William Powell to the screen as S. S. Van Dine's famous detective character, Philo Vance, in "The Kennel Murder Case" (1933). Of the 31 films using the Vance character, "The Kennel Murder Case" is by common consent one of the best and William Powell the best of the stars in the role. Mary Astor co-stars, and Michael Curtiz (Casablanca) directs.

Jimmy Cagney appears in his starring film, "Taxi," April 20. This 1932 film depicts a taxicab racket and the merciless manner used by a would-be mobster to crush the competition. The cast includes Loretta Young, her most beautiful and George Raft in a bit part.

"Swing Time" has Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers in one of their best. The 1936 film, airing May 3, takes place in a world of nighttime frolics like the earlier "Top Hat," but it's top hats and empty pockets. Songs by Jerome Kern and Dorothy Fields include academy award winner "The Way You Look Tonight," "A Fine Romance," and "Pick Yourself Up."

In "Cabin in the Cotton" (1932) Hattie Davis has her first bad girl role in a story of class conflict between sharecroppers and plantation owners in the South. The screenplay was written by Paul Green, a former professor at UNC and a Pulitzer prize winner. The cast includes Richard Barthelme and Berton Churchill.

A show business theme returns to the small screen on May 17. "What Price Hollywood?" (1932) makes Constance Bennett from stage actress to movie star, directed by George Cukor, the same theme recurs in his 1954 film, "A Star is Born," starring Judy Garland.

The recent interest in American popular culture and motion picture history has generated great enthusiasm for American movies of the 30's in general and those of the Warner Brothers studio in particular. The fiftieth anniversary of the Warner studio in 1973 has been celebrated with showings at such prestigious institutions as the Cinematheque Francaise in Paris, the Museum of Modern Art in New York, the American Film Institute Theatre in Washington, D. C. and the National Film Theatre in London.

"The series' real purpose is to provide a retrospective on perhaps the single most important decade in the development of the motion picture industry," says Percy Paletz of Durham, producer of the series. "But" she continues, "it also promises to be one of the most utterly entertaining series on television."

Fuel Tanks Installed at Salem Heating Problems Unforeseen

By Wilson Place

Probably most of you know why we have been conducting an archeological dig on the field hockey playing field, but just in case — I would like to bring you up to date on our fuel situation.

We purchased a 15,000 gallon tank in December from a brewery in Pittsburgh, Pa., hoping to get a tank in the ground to develop a fuel oil reserve supply. At that time we weren't sure when the natural gas would be shut off. We also ordered four 15,000 gallon tanks but were given an estimated delivery time of four months. These would not have been any help to us during the winter.

As it has turned out the winter has been warmer than expected, our request to the government for an emergency allocation of fuel oil has been honored, the tanks we ordered were delivered three months ahead of time and the natural gas has not been shut off except for 16 days this winter.

When the four new tanks arrived we immediately started to put them underground. We planned to have them between the boiler plant and the tennis courts. The compacted fill that was in this area, combined with heavy rains, just made it impossible without expensive shoring of the sides of the walls where the tanks were to go. We then had to change our underground location to the present site.

The four tanks are in — they are full of No. 2 fuel oil. We will replace the turf and reseed the playing field. Because of the height of this location, however, we will have to pump oil, as it is needed, to our regular tank right next to the smokestack. We now have 70,000 gallons of No. 2 fuel oil as a reserve supply and from what we are still hearing the fuel situation will be worse next year and the winter will probably be colder. This reserve supply would last about 40 days — so we are in a reasonably safe position at the present time.

The crisis that we thought we would have this winter just didn't materialize but the energy problem and inflationary costs are still with us. We hope that we now have some protection in the event of a serious crisis.

The brewery tank that we still have is unfortunately not full of beer. We would like to have it full of gasoline but this has complications. We could sell it as these tanks are valuable items. We're just going to wait a little while to determine the best disposition of it.
