Faculty Changes Occurring Next Year

Sherrin Gardner

According to Academic Dean, Janis Sommerville, Salem students may expect some changes in the faculty, administration, and staff for the 1975-76 academic year. Although other alterations may be made before students return for the Fall Semester, the following individuals have said that they will not be returning.

Dr. James Buchanan, chairman of the Chemistry Department, plans to work with the N. C. Research Triangle. The Computer Science program that he has previously instructed at Salem will be taught by Dr. Kurtz. According to Dean Sommerville, a laboratory assistant for the chemistry department will be hired instead of a full professor.

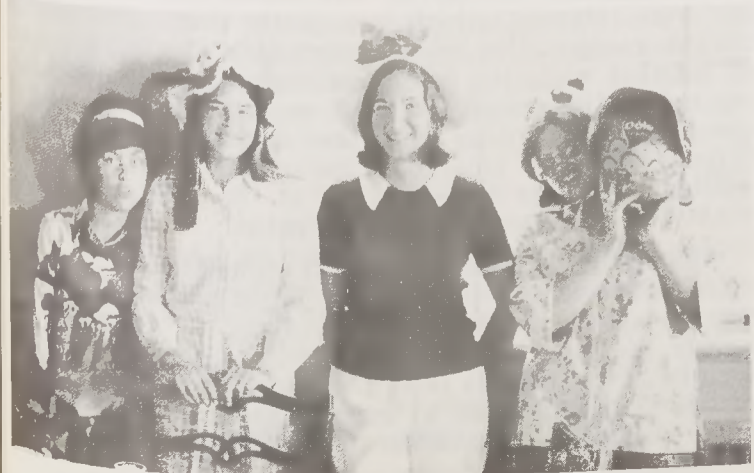

Mr. Donald McLeod, Professor of Biology will be residing in the Celo community located in the mountains near the site of his research. In addition to his studies, Mr. McLeod will become a faculty member at Mars Hill College where he will teach courses similar to those which he taught at Salem. A botanist will be hired to teach Salem's courses in botany, taxonomy, and ecology.

Two professors will be on Sabbatical during the 1975-76 academic year. Mr. Pete Jordan will be away during the Fall Semester, and Dr. Sidney Kelly will be off campus during the Spring Term. Dr. Kelly's plans include studies in small group dynamics, transactional analysis, and religion in literature. Mr. Steve Nohlgren will continue his leave of absence to work towards doctoral completion.

Archways Sing!

By Kathy Kirkpatrick

The Archways present to the students of Salem an opportunity to take an enjoyable break from their studying. Their spring concert is Wednesday, May 14, at 7 p.m. in Hanes Auditorium. The collection of songs will include such "oldie goldies" as Bill Haley's "Rock Around the Clock," a Supremes-Temptations medley, "Sentimental Journey," and a contemporary Bacharach medley. A mystery guest is coming to sing some old-time favorite Western songs with one of the Archways. It's also possible that the senior Archways will sing a swan song or farewell number. The show will last about an hour and should be well worth the time to come and see.

Catherine Delbridge, Marie Plonk, Mary Denson Abbitt, Beth Jones and "Doleta" pose for April Arts Mad-Hatter contest.

Mr. Paul Peterson of the music department will be retiring at the end of this semester. Although he will no longer work at Salem College, his busy schedule for the fall will include continuation as choir director at the First Christian Church, as well as private voice teacher. Additionally Mr. Peterson plans to conduct church music workshops throughout the Southeast and to teach a class at the First Christian Church entitled "Survey of Music and the Arts."

Old Winston Home Converted To Restaurant

Betty Duncan

Built in 1815 by a Moravian cabinet-maker named Van Zevely, the oldest home in Winston-Salem outside of Old Salem, approaches its final stages of restoration. Located in downtown Winston on the corner of Fourth Street and Summit Street, only two miles away from its original foundation, Van Zevely's home has been converted into a restaurant.

Mr. Smitherman, the manager of the Zevely House, says that the restaurant is a cross between the Salem Tavern, P. J. Clark's of New York City, and an Austrian coffee house. It resembles the Salem Tavern in its outward appearance, decor, and its Moravian influence. It will offer the high quality of steaks that P. J. Clark's does, and will serve coffee and beer throughout the day as an Austrian coffee house does.

The Zevely House will have a limited menu consisting of hamburgers, steaks, stews, casseroles, soups, salads, and pastries. Along with these regulars there will be two different entrees served each day for dinner as well as two different ones served for lunch. A German chef has been hired to aid in the cooking. Meals will be medium priced depending on the order.

Mr. Smitherman is now in the process of hiring student waiters and waitresses to work in the Zevely House which will open on July 1st. No experience is necessary. The pay will range somewhere between $1.00 and $2.00 plus tips. Interested persons should bring a brief resume to Mr. Smitherman at the Zevely House.

Mr. Peterson remarked that he was especially looking forward to the Wake Forest football season as well as playing more tennis and golf.

Changes will be noted in the Admissions office. After 43 years of involvement with the Salem Community, Miss Edith A. Kirkland plans to pursue her hobbies which include golf, photography, and gardening. Also, Miss Kirkland is looking forward to volunteer work with her church and community. The position of Assistant Director of Admissions will be filled by Annie McLeod who currently works in that office.

Students will also be aware of changes in the infirmary staff. Mrs. Martha Casstevens plans to work in a shop in Kernersville dealing with antiques and needlecraft. Miss Annette Smith, another Salem nurse will not be returning as she plans to be married and moving away from Winston-Salem.

Concerning changes in the faculty, Dean Sommerville also mentioned that Penny Griffin will become a full time member of the Art Department. She has previously worked at Wake Forest University and with Reynolda House. She has also taught on a part time basis at Salem.

Announcement

The Admissions office is looking for good color slides of campus events and scenes. They are particularly interested in shots of Margaret Mead (with students, if possible,) dorm scenes, orientation, Founder's Day, Christmas in Old Salem, field trips, January term experiences, study abroad, fall Inter-Club weekend, and the like. Please take by the Admissions office any slides you would be willing to have duplicated. Negatives from 35-mm. cameras are also acceptable.

Salem Artists Reveal Themselves

Lynn Knox

An EXCLUSIVE interview from your reporter on the scene, Lynn Knox, talking to "Michel" of Michel and Angelo—alias M. K. Johnston and Stallings.

Editors' note: M. Johnston and Ms. Stallings finally revealed that they were the culprits who sketched the amazing Miltonic tableau of Salem College faculty which caused such a sensation on May Day. Below is Ms. Johnston's account of its genesis.

"It all started at a typical Salemite study session which means we weren't doing "beans". After pondering the domain of f(a) and for as long as my companion could take Wordsworth, I then sketched a "nurdy" little man on my notebook. My artistic friend "Angelo" added a pair of glasses and we had none other than Bob Wendt. Having been influenced earlier by Milton's Paradise Lost, my friend and I conceived the ultimate allegory! What could be more of a paradise than Salem College! !!"

"God (Chandler) was a natural and some of the other characters just fell into place. The team of Michel and Angelo would like to emphasize that we aren't out to get anybody, even if some of the associations seem to be apt. Our very favorite character as well as our very favorite person is Sommerville Superstar. Mephistophiles (Bourquin) and Archimago (Meehan) are also high on our list as well as the entire crowd on Arnie's Ark."

"Our thanks to Adam and Eve for this whole race of epic personalities. In our hearts we know they all belong in heaven but there just wasn't room!"

the Professorship is to be chosen. It is the duty of the president to notify the faculty of the need for the election of their representatives to the committee.

If a member of the nominating committee is appointed as one of the nominees, he or she will withdraw from the committee at which time another member is elected from the appropriate division.

The President then shall receive the recommendation of the nominating committee and with the accompaniment of Board of Trustees shall appoint the Salem Distinguished Professor.
