

The Salemite

Volume LXIII
Number 10
April 10, 1981

serving the salem college community since 1920

Time Is Costly For Financial Aid

Because the financial aid process consists of a variety of federal, state, institutional, and private agency programs, the application procedures vary as well as the deadlines for submitting applications. Summer school student loan applications must be received by March 15, 1981 for Summer Study Abroad and by April 15, 1981 for regular summer school study. Guaranteed Student Loan applications for 81-82 are now being distributed. Although the application deadline for 81-82 loans is not until the fall, students are strongly encouraged to apply immediately in order to be considered before funds are depleted.

Both current financial aid students and non-financial aid students desiring to apply for financial aid during 81-82 should have already submitted the two application forms - one to Salem's Financial Aid Office and one to the College Scholarship Service. Those students who haven't completed their financial aid application forms are encouraged to submit them immediately in order to be given full consideration for awards. Financial aid awards are made as long as funds remain available.

For further information about all types of financial support available to Salem students or for assistance in completing application materials make an appointment with Len Brinkley, Director of Financial Aid. Office location: Lehman Hall. Telephone: 721-2808.

Salem News Bureau

The Last of Cronkite

As I sat watching and listening closely to the C.B.S. evening news last March 6, I tried reminiscing about the many times I spent in front of the television hearing Walter Cronkite relating our daily major events of the world to his viewers.

The farewell speech, delivered by Cronkite in the last minutes, was moving for me as well as millions of others who in return bid the anchorman adieu. A few of his broadcasts leave memories of special moments in my heart and two of them stand out more than the others.

In 1969, when our astronaut Neal Armstrong landed safely on the moon, there were tears of joy and blessing received across our nation within minutes in a voice unlike the steady Cronkite manner. Also, the time when President Johnson suddenly died after months of failing health, the message was received by phone during the evening broadcast. Cronkite's tears were softened at the loss of a former president, and he stated, "If he'd only lived forty-eight hours longer, his dream would have come true with the return of our P.O.W's and the final end of the Vietnam War."

All of our recent coverage announcing Cronkite's semi-retirement in magazines and newspapers, has me wondering if it's the voice I'll miss or is age creeping up on me. Probably both, but I'd just like to say, I'm glad to have grown up in my lifetime having Walter delivering our nations' news.

MELANIE MANN

Salem News Bureau

Regards to Gramley

A 27-minute student-produced documentary, "Dale Gramley: A Gift of Self," will be shown on Channel 12 television on Sunday, April 19, at 6 p.m.

The compilation of what they call "the Gramley years" was the January term project for 11 Salem College students. They did their research, interviewing and filming under the supervision of David Solomon, an independent film maker.

Gramley, president of Salem Academy and College from 1949 to 1971, saw the number of students and faculty more than double and the operating budget quadruple during his tenure. The Fine Arts Building and two dormitories were constructed during his years as president. The library, which now bears his name, was something in which he took a special interest.

Gramley's comment, on seeing the videotape upon its completion, was that the students had done a very good job and that "I'd like to meet that guy sometime."

Carolyn McCollum, one of the two student production managers, will talk about the project on the "Piedmont" show on Channel 12 Friday, April 17.

Salem College News Bureau

Dr. and Mrs. Gramley

Photos by Salem College News Bureau

Salemites Speak for Senegal

Salem College students will be the voice of Senegal when its representatives attend the annual National Model United Nations in New York City April 15 to 19 with advisor Dr. Jerry Subantz.

Seventeen students, who have been studying the small African nation and United Nations issues since last November, will participate in the 58-year-old NMUN Program, sponsored by the National Collegiate Conference Association. It annually attracts approximately 1200 students from 450 U.S. colleges and universities.

In past years, Salem has represented such countries as Tunisia, the Soviet Union, East Germany and Hungary. This year's appointment was to the former French colony which became independent in the early 1960's but still retains close ties with France. Located along the Senegal and Gambia Rivers on the West coast of Africa, this moderate Islamic state has played a major role in the Group of 77, the underdeveloped states caucus in the U.N.

The Model U.N. sessions simulate meetings of the Security Council, General Assembly committees, specialized agencies, and, this year for the first time, the Islamic Conference.

Salem's representatives will be Kelly Ziglar, Winston-Salem; Julia Holdford, Wilson; Beth Koontz, Lexington; Denie Enderle, Rocky Mount; Gail Moore, Tarboro; Katherine Moore, Wilmington; Karen Lea and Cathy Cox, Greenville, S.C.; Ellen Culler, Martinsville, Va.; Cindy Arant, Orangeburg, S.C.; Amanda Mays, Columbia, S.C.; Kaycee Connolly, Kingstree, S.C.; Beth Pearce, Myrtle Beach, S.C.; Virginia Wagenheim, Tuscaloosa, Ala.; Tami Dangler, Clearwater, Fla.; Margaret Adams, Greenwood, S.C., and Mary Anne Tuggle, Chatham, N.Y.

Carolyn McCollum, Ellen Brown, Kathy May, Summer Brown, Teri Capshaw, Kathy Bennett. (Not pictured: Mary Anne Tuggle, Kimberly King, Kathy King.)

These were the girls who made a documentary film entitled, "Dale Gramley, A Gift of Self." The film will appear on Channel 12, April 19 at 6:00 or 6:30 p.m.