Exams Begin Dec. 13

By Barbara Meskill

Exams will be administered beginning at 8:30 a.m. Sunday, Dec. 13, until 12:15 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 19. Exams are self-scheduled; a student may elect to take her exams during any of the specified testing periods of exam week. Each day there will be three exam periods (except for Saturday, Dec. 19, when there will be only the morning session): 8:30 a.m.-12:15 p.m., 1:30-5:15 p.m., and 6:30-10:15 p.m.

Exams sessions will be three hours in duration, though students may report a half-hour early for an exam and turn it in fifteen minutes after the three hours have passed, allowing a maximum of 3 hours and 45 minutes for each exam.

The sophomore and senior classes will be distributing exams this year. Members of those classes are urged to volunteer to be distributors and to attend the mandatory meetings regarding exam procedures. If a sufficient number of distributors do not

Area Colleges Plan Party

A College Bash for area schools, to be held Feb. 6, 1982, is being sponsored by the Arts Council, Inc. The event is planned in conjunction with the opening of Winston Square, the new arts facility in Winston-Salem.

Schools included in the event are Forsyth Tech, N.C. School of the Arts, Salem, Wake Forest and Winston-Salem State.

Students from each participating school have coordinated plans to make the evening a success. The purpose of the event is to introduce students to Winston Square and to bring area schools together. Entertainment will be provided and refreshments will be sold. Tickets will be available prior to the event and at the door.

sugar cake. Large amounts of fresh fruit will be arranged on the tables. Students may take the fruit back to their rooms to eat while studying for exams.

sign up or fail to attend the meetings, exam periods which have no distributors will be closed. This diminishes the number of opportunities that students have to take exams.

Familiarity with the procedure will insure an orderly exam week. All exams will be taken in designated classrooms in Main Hall, unless otherwise specified. During exam week, students will enter and exit Main Hall by the front door only. No student should open any of the side doors. No books or papers may be brought into Main Hall, except in the case of open-book exams.

A student may not enter an empty classroom to take an exam. However, if all the other students leave the room after completing their exams, a student may continue to work on her exam in that room. In order to insure fairness, there is to be absolutely no talking about examinations.

Should a student need to see a professor while taking an exam, she should call to check if the professor is available. A distributor must then accompany her to the office of the professor. During exam week, twenty-four hour quiet hours will go into effect in all the dorms. All students will be receiving a letter from the exam committee furnishing additional details about the exam system.

This year students will sign an exam "out" when they take it, indicating the time and the number of blue examination books that they take. They will then sign the exam "in" when they have finished, again indicating the time and the number of blue books which they have used. This procedure will replace the white slips used in previous years.

The examination system is run completely by students with much faculty and administrative support. It is designed to give students maximum flexibility in taking their exams. It is important for all students to know the regulations governing the exam procedure in order to maintain order and fairness. Jessica Foy, chairman of Honor Council, explained that "the honor code is the backbone of the exam system and it is crucial that all students adhere to it. It is at exam time that the honor code is at its best and when its effectiveness is most clearly evidenced."
