Constitution Week

Constitution Week, September 17th through 23rd, commemorates the one hundred ninety-fifth anniversary of the Constitution of the United States. It is the oldest constitution still in active use in the world today and is the basic document of the United States government, a government which protects the individual liberties of its citizens. The Daughters of the American Revolution urge all Americans to be worthy of its protection.

Chapel Services

Every Wednesday at 12:30 p.m. a brief period of quiet and reflection led by Salem faculty and students will be held in the Little Chapel.

Faculty News

Inez Byers will be one of seven lecturers in a series of programs on "The Humanistic Vision of Charlotte Perkins Gilman" sponsored by the YWCA September 14 through October 26. The social and political opinions of Mrs. Gilman, an early advocate of women's rights, will be explored.

Jerry Pubantz was elected president of the board of directors for the National Collegiate Conference Association at the group's June meeting in Washington, D.C. As president of the association which sponsors the National Model United Nations, he will spearhead research into the feasibility of an international Model United Nations in 1985, a year designated as "The Year of Youth" by the United Nations.

Judy McIlwee has been appointed to a two-year term on the Winston-Salem Human Relations Commission. In addition to serving with the Commission as a whole, she will be a member of the subcommittee on employment.

Salem College artists whose work is included in the Winston-Salem Artists' Exhibition at the Wake Forest University Fine Arts Gallery (August 29 to October 3) are Lea Lackey, William Mangum, and Ed Shewmake.

Advisory Board to Form

By Melinda McAfee

If you enjoy helping others develop in a personal or professional manner, the Lifespan Center has a fantastic opportunity for you: the Lifespan Advisory Board.

As a board member, a student will aid fellow students by assisting in Lifespan programs and workshops such as Personal Development, Career Planning, Study Skills and Interviewing Skills. In turn, being a board member would provide unique opportunities in paraprofessional training and counseling experience.

Lifespan director Judy Aanstad believes the Board will provide "good experience for someone who wants to go into counseling."

A retreat is planned for an off-campus training session for the necessary paraprofessional skills such as helping and listening abilities. This preparation is a very useful base for further advancement in the counseling field.

Since the Board is a new experience for all involved, very few requirements have been established. Aanstad feels that there is "a lot of potential depending on the interests of the Board."

To maintain the strength of the Board, members must have a 2.5 GPA and an interest in counseling. The only other requirement is that members cannot aid in personal counseling due to the confidentiality of the sessions.

If being a member of the Lifespan Advisory Board appeals to you, contact Lifespan counselors Judy Aanstad or Roger Pearman, by October 1. Help yourself by helping others!

Organization to Emphasize Service

Alpha Lambda Delta, Salem's freshman honor-service organization plans to emphasize service this year. According to President Mary Lou Swann, she and Vice President Jane Perry have already explained the purpose and background of the society to the freshman class at their recent class meeting.

Some of this year's projects include a free tutorial service -- a list of tutors and their subjects is available in the underclassmen dorms -- and working with the Lecture-Assembly Committee on presenting current, popular movies to Salem students. These movies will be shown on Sunday nights at 6:30 p.m. and Monday afternoons at 3:00 p.m.

In the spring, Alpha Lambda Delta plans to sponsor a cookout for some of Winston-Salem's debutantes.
