

The Oracle

By Karen Canavan

Just a few questions—what ever happened to the brand new track which was to be completed by this fall? What happened to the senior clock in the refectory? What happened to painting the interior of the refectory? At one time wasn't there a lawn mower which cut the grass on Babcock Beach? What happened to the patio furniture Interdorm was going to buy for the patio behind Clewell? What happened to the patio? According to the poll taken last spring, wasn't there to be an extension of visitation? Was it really necessary to remove the sidewalk between Babcock and Clewell? Does anyone remember when all students could leave their dorm rooms unlocked? Whatever happened to plans for a snack bar? Is there really "student life" in the student life and fitness center? Why do these things never materialize? Is it the fault of the administration? Are there covert efforts to keep the students uninformed? Do the trustees have anything to do with it? Any answers?

Program Waits For Approval

Since early last spring, Salem's Academic Curriculum Committee and Academic Council have been examining the breadth of study and basic distribution requirements utilized by the college. Emphasis has been placed on special benefits and opportunities for students by the committee and council.

Members of the Academic Curriculum Committee include Chairman, Dr. Edwards; Julia Holford, senior representative; Carla Littaker, junior representative; and Lisa Farrier, sophomore representative. The Academic Council consists of Chairman, Dean Sullivan; Paula Corbette, senior representative; Angie Bostrom, junior representative; and Rachel Pichas, sophomore representative.

As a result of the workings of these two committees new courses in Nutrition, Environmental Design, History, and Communications will be offered at Salem.

In a recent interview, Academic Dean Patricia Sullivan commented that both committees were working together smoothly and experiencing only "healthy disagreement." Another point emphasized by Dean Sullivan was the new link established between Salem College and the Old Salem community. The Academic Curriculum Committee has proposed a major archeological dig in Old Salem. If approved, the program will include students in both beginning and advanced archeology and anthropology courses. This new program will provide interesting opportunities for Salem students who have never had the occasion to participate in an Old Salem excavation.

Familiar Faces At Pappagallo

The Shop for Pappagallo, a friendly little place like home, where you can relax, have some coffee or tea, enjoy good company and find marvelous fashions, is located at Brookstown Mill.

"We want our customers to feel at home," said Susan Everette, manager of the store. And that is most certainly how one feels when greeted at the door of the colorful shop with a friendly smile. You might even find one of your very own classmates working the day you stop in. Monica Jordan and Kim Rowland are both employed at Pappagallo.

The shop is like an informal living room decorated in exceedingly good taste, with comfortable sofas and chairs. It's filled with one-of-a-kind pieces you'd expect to find in the home of an incurable collector.

Pappagallo is a name that has symbolized well-mannered fashion excitement for almost two decades. Pappagallo shoes and fashions are distinctive, up to the minute; yet classic. The soft feminine shoes, imaginative apparel and colorful accessories all reflect the essence of good taste. They are made to appeal to the active, youthful customer—the customer who really lives in her clothes.

The Shop for Pappagallo is an exclusive shop. Most of the shops are owned and operated by local people who have been granted the right to the name and basic concept of the shop and to sell the Pappagallo merchandise.

Pappagallo is a shop to be found in, and to find wonderful things in! Go in and browse and have some coffee or tea. Don't hesitate, you're an expected guest.

Around The Square

Sept. 29 "Summer Wages" (West End Opera House)	Oct. 12 "Iron Maiden" (Greensboro Coliseum)
The Fabulous Knobs" (Baity's Backstreet)	Oct. 13 N.C. Dance Theater (Stevens Center)
Sept. 30 "The Fabulous Knobs" (Baity's Backstreet)	Oct. 14 Al Jarreau (Greensboro Coliseum)
Oct. 2 W-S Symphony Concert (Stevens Center)	North Carolina Dance Theater (Stevens Center)
Oct. 4 W-S Symphony Concert (Stevens Center)	NCSA, Stage Drama II (Stevens Center)
Oct. 7 Rick James (Greensboro Coliseum)	"Evita" (Greensboro Coliseum)
Oct. 8 NCSA Orchestra (Stevens Center)	Oct. 15 "Evita" (Greensboro Coliseum)
Oct. 11 Greensboro Symphony (Greensboro Center)	N.C. Dance Theater (Stevens Center)
	NCSA, Stage Drama II (Stevens Center)

Passing Time At Salem

cont'd from page 1

This year's Fall Fest schedule is as follows:

- Early Morning: Seniors wake underclassmen.
- 8:45 - Breakfast
- 10:30 - Entrance in FAC parking lot
- Noon - Lunch in Salem Square
- 1:45 p.m. - Games on archery field and in old gym
- 6:00 p.m. - Dinner in refectory
- 7:30 p.m. - Class skits in Hanes Auditorium.

after the skits, there will not be the problem that marred the day when drunken rivalry took the place of the good-natured class rivalry. This should be a time of unity, so when the party starts, remember who your friends are. Above all, please don't drive if you have been drinking!

FINE LINES

Paper by the Pound
Rubber Stamps - Stickers

Monday - Saturday
10 - 6:00

723-8066

in The Brookstown MILL
200 Brookstown Ave
Winston-Salem, N.C.

SALEM GIFT AND BOOK STORE

9 East Academy Street

Our bouquet was ordered with the Salem girl in mind...

David Brooks

723-1122

Hopefully at the party