Books for Library.

CURTIS SPEAKS

The Bailey Parent-Teacher Association has had two well filled meetings since the beginning of the school term. New officers have been elected. Instruction and helpful information has been duly received at each meeting. Prospects point towards a very successful year.

The first meeting being to organize for the new year; the following officers were elected;

President—Mrs. E. C. Griffin.

Vice Pres.—Mrs. J. W. Privette.

Secretary and Treasurer—Mrs. Bennie Farmer.

James N. Grant made a very interesting talk on school work. After the business was attended to, there was a social hour which every one seemed to enjoy.

The second meeting was held the second Thursday night in October. Mrs. Howard Farmer gave the scripture reading, Miss Jay Williams read a very interesting poem, Miss Minnie Bell Finch and Miss Bertha Edgerton gave a piano duette. K. R. Curtis, Wilson County Superintendent, gave a very instructive talk on, "The Work of The Parent Teacher Association."

A report was handed in by Mr. Eatman that the Masonic organization if Bailey had given ten dollars towards the purchase of books for the library. The organization decided to give a Hallowe'en carnival Wednesday, October 31, for the purpose of raising money to better equip the library. The association also decided to make a house to house canvas for the donation of books in the homes. There being no other business to come before the association, it adjourned to meet again the second Thursday night in November. Every parent is asked to be present.

BE YOURSELF

What is the formula for a successful personality? There is none. Sit down in the gallery of the United States Senate room, and look down on the men below. Here are nearly a hundred Americans each of whom has somehow managed to impress his personality on the minds of the state. What conclusions can come from watching them? What are the traits of appearance, manner, and personality that bring political success? I dare any one to examine those hundred specimens and draw a solitary conclusion. Every type of man is represented: fat, short men, tall, thin men, men with splendid heads of hair, baldheaded men; men with smiling eyes and genial manner. No two are alike, yet all have arrived in senate.

The idea of this tirade is to show that just because Senator Brown is a big, boisterous man, there is no reason for Senator Smith to try to be the same. Simply be yourself! The fact that your boy-friend seems to be a bit foppish is no excuse for you to be the same. Be Yourself, that's all!

—Walter Robinson, Junior.

Bailey High School Classes Organize

Competent Officers Chosen

The classes in Bailey High School have been prompt in organization this year. A complete list of officers has been ready for publication for some time.

The senior class organized and presented officers as follows:

President—John D. Haskins.

Vice President—James Allen Glover.

Secretary—Inez Bissette.

Treasurer—Catherine Bissette.

Reporter—Willie Iris Perry.

Critic—Minnie Bell Finch.

Class Advisor—Miss Ila Mae Bost.

The colors, blue and gold, were chosen, and the yellow rose claimed as the senior's own flower.

Realizing that this is the last year of the high school course, the members of the class of '29 have firmly resolved to leave behind a record that will not only be worthy of the class itself, but be an encouragement to others yet to come.

On September 19, 1928 the juniors organized their class. The following officers were elected:

President—Mozelle Finch.

Vice President—Garner Sanders.

Secretary and Treasurer—Lizzie Bissette.

Reporter—Edith Farmer.

The class then selected its motto: "Carpe Diem," colors, rose and gold, and flowers, roses.

Realizing the need of some one to direct them throughout the year, they chose Miss Ila Mae Bost as faculty advisor.

The sophomore organization meeting resulted in the election of the following individuals to office:

President—George Finch.

Vice President—Atlas Wiggs.

Secretary and Treasurer—Willard Lamm.

Reporter—Minnie Bissette.

The eighth grade organization presented:

President—Eugene Finch.

Vice President—Pansy Vick.

Secretary and Treasurer—Jessie Strickland.

Reporter—Leona Hawkins.
