BEGINNER'S DAY

The pre-school clinic, held at Bailey School on March 1, proved to be very successful.

By 8:30 in the morning parents and pre-school children began coming in the school for the program. School trucks were used for transporting parents and children to school. Members of the P.T.A. also cooperated with us in getting parents here. The parents and children were entertained the entire day.

In addition to the first grade room, the whole school was opened to the visitors. Almost every classroom was visited by parents during the day.

A program was given in the auditorium by the first grade. The music department and fifth grade also gave numbers on the program. Supt. Inscoe talked to the parents on beginners and first grade work while the pre-school children were in the first grade room.

The home economic department served lunch to the beginners and parents.

After lunch the Health Officer and Nurse met the parents and children in the first grade room. Dr. Coppedge talked to the parents about the importance of having the children physically ready for entrance in the fall. After the talk, the children were examined and given the toxoid treatment for diphtheria.

The pre-school children were given little cut out favors by the first grade teacher.

CHAPEL PROGRAMS

Tuesday morning, Mar. 20 the eighth grade took charge of the chapel program. Annie Ruth Vick read the Bible. We had two very interesting poems. A group of eighth grade girls sang "Mississippi Valley Blues" accompanied by Elsie Owens. Four girls gave a very "funny" dramatization of "Mary had a little Lamb". The program was thoroughly enjoyed by all students.

Tuesday, Mar. 27 the eleventh grade gave a program that was entirely different from any of the programs that we have had this year. The devotional was conducted by Rachael Bissette. The program consisted of book reviews. This was done in order to get the students interested in the great number of books in the library. I think this aroused enough curiosity to get some of the books out that they summarized in chapel. Estelle Brantley

On March 14, the high school was very fortunate to have Reverends Boone and Guice for chapel. Special music was given by Rev. Guice which was enjoyed by all. Rev. Boone gave a very helpful talk on "Sharing our life with Others"
