

FUTURE FARMERS GO TO STATE FAIR

Norman Patterson

Thursday, October 9, saw forty Future Farmers from Bailey High School attend North Carolina's annual State fair held in our state capital, Raleigh. Set aside each year is one day that vocational students from the hundreds of schools in this state may see the work of other Future Farmers of America.

Here boys receiving a mixture of fun and education, learn to do by doing; they make their own products and ideas. An eye to eye comparison between their own exhibits and others show advantages and disadvantages of their product—truly an education in their own field.

Representing Bailey in livestock judging on the Nash County judging team was Albert Lamm. He took highest place in Nash County, showing he had not only good judgment but experience as well.

H. E. Girls Initiated

Hildred Ruffin

A night of fun and laughter was found in an upstairs class room on the night of October 13. The sophomore home economics girls initiated the freshmen, making them true members of the Home Economics Club. Saroba Anderson a member of the eighth grade, won a prize for the tackiest, a raw egg. There were several contests and talks that kept the girls rolling with laughter.

The freshmen were surprised when they came to school Tuesday morning to find that the initiation was not over. They walked up and down the halls all day with ribbons tied around their heads, carrying a brick and kneeling to every sophomore they met.

PETE & MIKE CAFE
 Hot Dogs Cold Drinks
 Hamburgers
 FRUITS
 WILSON, N.C.

ED'S 5¢ - $5.00 STORE
 BAILEY, N. C.

WHERE THE
 BIG PICTURES
 PLAY
 PATRONIZE
 US
 Admission - Matinee - Nite
 Adult - 28¢ 39¢
 Children - 10¢ 10¢
 WILSON
 THE PIRE