

English Puzzle

The juniors and seniors have been diagraming or, in fact, drawing sentences for the first month of school. Like our old alarm clock a sentence is easy to tear up but hard to put together again correctly. Diagraming has driven me so batty that I started to draw my Physics test the other day.

Some students make very systematic drawings resembling a map, while others make theirs look like a Chinese puzzle. When one gets a sentence diagramed wrongly, it reads like ancient Greek; that is, one can't read it at all.

SENIORS HOLD ELECTION

To elect officers for 1942-43 the seniors held their first meeting October 7. Horace High, again, will lead the class, supported by Richard Stott, vice-president, Aileen Finch, secretary, Christine Finch, treasurer, Iris High, reporter. Selected for grade mothers were Mrs. E. C. Griffin, Mrs. C. H. Walker, and Mrs. J. E. Haskins.

Mrs. LASSITER To RETURN SOON

Mrs. Lassitor, commercial teacher, gone home for an operation is expecting to return within three weeks. Unable to secure a commercial teacher as a substitute, Mr. Walker appointed Christine Finch, a last year's typing student, to assume charge of the typing classes. He will teach the general business.

Christine Finch states that the students are very co-operative in class and in getting up home assignments. She further added that interest in the course still holds.

Mrs. Lassitor, after all books were issued, asked, "Does every one have a book?"

Harold Cooper hopped up and said, "John Payne (John Dew) doesn't have one."

Replying Mrs. Lassitor said, "Alright John Payne here's your book."
