

Staff To Attend CSPA Next Week

To get an individual critical rating of the BUGLE, to compare the BUGLE with other school papers, to gain new ideas, and to broaden their journalistic education are the purposes of the twelve journalism class members and sponsors in attending the CSPA meeting at Columbia University in New York City on March 9-14.

MEETINGS

In the Sectional and Divisional meetings at Columbia University, writing, editing, publishing, and advising student publications will be covered. Advisors and student editors will take part in the Convention program.

"The maximum benefit can be derived from the convention" if each delegate reports on a number of meetings, report those in charge of the program.

Three sources of financing the trip are the BUGLE treasury, the money made through outside activities, and the amount each individual has set aside for expenses.

DRIVERS

Lewis Watson, Harold Finch, E. R. Francis, and Marshall Brock, Jr. are driving cars.

The group will leave one day early in order to stop over in Washington, D. C. In the nation's capitol the group plans to take a sight-seeing tour of the Capitol, the White House, the Library of Congress, Mt. Vernon, and Arlington Cemetery.

Besides attending the meetings of the Convention, plans include taking a lecture tour of New York City, attending a musical comedy, the play, "Anthony and Cleopatra", a broadcast, the Ice Show, and a visit to Radio City.
