

HOME EC. DEPT. HEADS
SCHOOL NEED LIST

A new Home Economics Building and a lunch-room along with other items are needed reports Mr. M.W. Weaver, principal, to meet modern conditions and provide adequate room in Bailey School.

When the Home Economics Building is a reality, the science laboratory with new supplies will be moved into the present Home Ec. Department and thereby have the needed room.

PLAYGROUND

As conditions now are, the playgrounds are much too near the classrooms. While the grammar grade students are outside playing, high school students are having class. Often times the high school students are interrupted by the noise. Extending the present playgrounds would help make it safer and quieter for the entire school is the opinion of the principal.

OFFICE SECRETARY

To lessen the burden on the principal and teachers, an office secretary is needed to keep books, further adds Mr. Weaver.

Today high school students keep the library. A full time librarian is another need.

Other programs and projects are expected to follow soon. Among these would be a project of beautifying

NEW GRADING SYSTEM
GOES INTO EFFECT

In an attempt to raise the standards of the school and to have a fairer system of conduct grading, the students and faculty have worked out a point system. A majority of both students and teachers agreed to this plan.

By this system each student is graded according to the number of points designated for each offense.

This method puts each student on his honor to control the number of points against him. It also enables the student to know at all times the way his conduct grade stands. Points vary according to the offense committed.

the school grounds and buildings, Physical Education and Health Programs, Vocational and Distributive occupations, a Guidance Program for the students, and a student counselor.

Mr. Weaver closed his discussion by noting: "With what we have and what we hope to have the school may expect to fill its place in the building of a better community in cooperation with the home and church. With these three working together we may, to borrow a phrase from Governor Scott expect to 'Go Forward.'"

Commencement exercises will open with the baccalaureate sermon by the Reverend H. B. Porter, Superintendent of Raleigh District, Methodist Church, May 14, at 11 o'clock in the school auditorium. Dr. R. E. Earp, District Highway Commissioner, will deliver the commencement address, May 18, at 8 o'clock.

SENIORS EDIT BUGLE

Seeing the Bailey Bugle discontinued circulation in 1948, the seniors of 1950 decided to keep its memory alive by editing one issue covering the year's news. A special section is devoted to senior activities.

News articles, features, and editorials became English assignments and were graded as themes.

Publication expenses have in part been covered by receipts from advertisements and by subscription sales. Additional expenses were paid from class funds.
