

Odds and Ends.....

BY DORIS JOYNER

Girls Vie In Festival

Well, hi there, you all! Here I am back again with some more of the odds and ends I find floating around this old building. Thought you'd get along without me this year, didn't ya? Well, I fooled ya. Mrs. Farmer and Mr. Weaver put their heads together and came up with the perfectly scrumptious (don't let it choke ya) idea that I hadn't learned enough to let me loose yet, so-here I am pestering everyone again.

It's gotten so that every-time I get near the agriculture building lately Mr. Wells will say, "I haven't got it, yet." He's talking about his column in the Bailey News, natch. How many of you folks know that last year's seniors gave the lunch room an electric potato peeler? I didn't until a few weeks ago.

At a recent F.H.A. Rally at Henderson, ROMAIN THIGPEN spent sometime taking care of a small German boy who couldn't speak English. Since Romaine can't talk German, wonder what they talked about?

Have you entered Mr. Weaver's office lately? If not, maybe it's because you couldn't because of all the salesmen who are visiting Mr. Weaver now! It seems as if every salesman in North Carolina has left samples or price list for lunchroom equipment with Mr. Weaver. I wonder why?

If you like neatness, take a look at HOYT BROWN.

Practice Not Enough, Reports Mrs Johnson

"While counting time has improved 100 per cent since the first month of school, students are not practicing the acquired amount of time, and memory work is slow," declares MRS. ELOISE F. JOHNSON, music teacher.

Mrs. Johnson has but two voice students, SHIRLEY WEBB and YVONNE MEACOMES.

Mrs. Johnson's schedule is planned so as to serve Bailey and Mount Pleasant schools.

On Monday and Thursday she spends the entire day at Bailey. Tuesday and Friday she devotes half her time to Mount Pleasant and half to Bailey.

Every Wednesday Mrs. Johnson is at Sims.

Three senior girls-COLEEN MURRAY representing Mount Pleasant; GENEVIEVE GLOVER, Strickland community; CLARA LOU STOTT, Bailey-were contestants in the beauty contest at the Nashville Harvest Day Festival sponsored by the Nashville Lions club this month.

GEOGRAPHY PEN PALS

Mrs. Laurine Lassiter's geography students have received pen pal names from Texas, New Mexico, Oklahoma, and New Jersey.

The advertisement is a cartoon illustration. At the top, a speech bubble from a man on the left says, "Where can I get the best dry cleaning done, economically?". A man on the right replies, "Why, BAILEY! Everyone knows that!". Below them are two circular signs: "Dry Cleaning" and "Tailored Clothes". At the bottom, a large banner reads "BAILEY DRY CLEANERS".
