

Principal Reporting - - - - -

A Future Teacher Chapter was officially started in our school this week with the presentation of the Charter. One of the critical problems in education today is the shortage of qualified teachers. With the number of children going up and the supply of teachers going down, there seems to be an increasing rather than a decreasing problem. My congratulations go to Miss Oglesby for helping to organize the club and to the students who have shown a willingness to go into teaching in an attempt to solve this shortage.

ALUMNI TEACHERS

During my stay in Bailey, there have been 19 students who have become teachers. There are several from the last three classes who are planning to teach and are now in college. We hope that many of our students will decide to become teachers.

SPORTSMANSHIP

Before another BUGLE goes to press, we will be in our basketball schedule. Bailey is proud of its teams of the past and wishes for this year's teams the very best. Remember to be a good sport at all times, both on the court and off. Respect the opposing teams and the game officials. Be a good winner or a good loser as the need may dictate. By all means let your basketball be in addition to your school work rather than in place of your school work.

Enrollment is going fine

Students Present Two NCEA Performances

Members from the fourth and fifth grades of Bailey school gave a demonstration at the State Teachers Meeting in Raleigh to show what could be done in an athletic program.

Skin the Snake, Chinese Getup, Merry-Go-Round, Turk Stand, and Goby Walk were exhibitions presented.

Those participating were Linda Glover, Faye Carroll, Betsy May, Kay Strickland, Helen Francis, Ann Eatmon, Larry Finch, Ted Whitley, James Ferrell, Callie Bissette, Grady Haskins, and Mickey Narron.

The program was scheduled twice during the day, so that all teachers could see the possibilities in physical education.

A number of parents were present during the day to see their children perform.

for the term. Let's keep the attendance up and our school will grow to a new peak in size. We believe that with more teachers we can do a better job.

Parents, did you look over your child's report card last week? We hope that you did and through understanding will help him or her to achieve the best.

Teacher Prepares Coming Years Work- BUT ———

Having taught history classes for the past five years, Miss Idalia Oglesby decided to spend her summer vacation visiting old historic sights so as to add interest to her classes.

She began her trip by touring to Nashville, Tennessee, where she visited the home of a famous American, Andrew Jackson.

In July she took off for Washington D. C. Here, she really began to prepare herself by taking interesting notes on places visited: The White House, Arlington Cemetery, Tomb of the Unknown Soldier, Lee-Custie Home, and the Iwo Jima Memorial. While at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier, she saw the changing of guards. That, she knew, would be a good story.

At Williamsburg, Virginia, she attended the drama, "The Common Glory", a story of the Revolutionary War. Other historic places were included in her itinerary. How proud she felt of her material gathered!

So, as you can see, Miss Oglesby was well prepared to teach an interesting history class when school began. But, alas, she found she would have all English this year--no American history! J. Whitley
