G. H. S. AFFIRMATIVE TEAM DEBATES IN FINALS, BUT LOSES AYCOCK MEMORIAL CUP

"PIGS" WILL BE PRESENTED TO-NIGHT BY JUNIORS AS ANNUAL PLAY

COMEDY IN THREE ACTS TO BE PRESENTED AT NORTH STATE THEATRE MATINEE AND NITE

Have you ever heard Clarence Peacock make "love" and have you ever heard Marion Whitted recite "love" poetry. If not, you will hear them both at the North State Theatre to-night when the Junior Class of Goldsboro High School will present their annual play. The chosen play for this year is "Pigs", by Annie Morrison and Patterson McNutt.

Miss Margaret Kornegay, dramatic coach at the High School, is directing the play and boasts of having the strongest cast she has ever had for a Junior play. "Not that they are individually better actors but I am speaking of them as a whole," said Miss Kornegay when asked about the play.

The cast has been working hard for the past three weeks and are planning to give the people of Goldsboro the best play ever presented by any class of G. H. S. A short scene from the play was given before the Dramatic Club Wednesday, April 10, and from all indications there is no doubt that it will be the best production of any High School group.

Heretofore the Junior play has been put on at the Mason Theatre but as it could not be obtained at this date it was changed to the North State Theatre. Also for the first time there will be a matinee performance. This is to give the children and grown-ups, who will not be able to see the night performance, an opportunity to see the play. The admission will be fifty cents for matinee and seventy-five cents for the night performance. There will be no reserved seats except for members of the Junior Class who will be dressed in white and green, their class colors.

The stage scenery used will be that made by the members of last year's Dramatic Club and the stage setting will be used through the courtesy of the merchants of Goldsboro named on the program.

The cast is as follows:

Mrs. Atkins.....Mary Pipkin
Junior Atkins.....Clarence Peacock
Lenore Hasting(flapper) Helen Danie's
Mildred Cushing.....Helen Zealey
Dr. Stringer (horse doctor)

Joseph Matthews

Mr. Atkins.....William Howell
Hector Spencer.....Robert Kelly
Grandma Spencer.....Evelyn Badour
Spencer Atkins.....Marion Whitted
Mr Hastings.....Strachan Duncan

MRS. PEGG SPEAKS TO BUSINESS PUPILS

"You must know how to spell and punctuate correctly to be a success at stenography and bookkeeping," said Mrs. Pegg of the Georgia-Carolina Commercial School.

Mrs. Pegg addressed about fifty students that were interested in this work, during activity period on Tuesday, April 14, at G. H. S. She advised them to specialize in English.

"When a gentleman comes into our office and wants to employ a boy or girl, he asks, 'Can she spell?' 'Can he punctuate correctly?' I am sorry to inform him sometimes that some are not very accurate in spelling or punctuating."

Another subject that Mrs. Pegg emphasized was cheating. "Cheating might help you for a few days, but when test time comes, you feel the results. As I have heard some girls up at the Commerce School say 'Let your conscience be your guide.'"

BANQUET INVITATION PRESENTED TO SRS. IN UNIQUE STYLE

GIVEN IN THE FORM OF A DREAM OF A SENIOR'S PAST HIGH SCHOOL PLEASURE DAYS.

The Junior-Senior Banquet will be held in the Cafeteria, Friday evening, May 3, at 8 o'clock. The Juniors presented the invitation to the Seniors in a unique and original manner on Monday, April 22.

After Matt Howell stated that "the time of the play was the present and the place a corner of the school campus," Wee Willie Corbett announced George Edwards as a Senior of 1929. George sat down under one of the trees and began reading with a worried look on his face.

The stage was beautifully decorated as a campus scene. There was a bench on both sides, shade trees growing here and there, and a climbing rose bush growing on a lattice framework. Back of this was a gorgeous rainbow.

George soon fell asleep and began dreaming of his early high school days. First came the Freshman year and the initiation, with several Freshmen acting the parts. One of them was helping another with his lessons when a third came in running up, and shouting that the Sophomores were coming. All three immediately ran for cover, but were too late; the Sophomores brought into use the much dreaded paddle.

The dream continued into George's Sophomore year, when a student is supposed to have learned something of the rules and how to conduct himself, but doesn't really know much. Sidney Meyers and Worth Baldwin acted this part of the dream, Sidney being the Sopho. and Worth being an irate professor.

Sidney came running up, with visions of his best girl filling his mind, and picked a flower from one of the plants. Professor Baldwin who was reading began to bless him out about it. "Didn't I teach you anything last year? Haven't you any respect for your school? What did you pull that flower for? Spit out that chewing gum."

H. S. PLAYMAKERS LOSE DRAMATIC CONTEST TO FAYETTEVILLE

"The Maker of Dreams" Was Also Given Twice After Contest

Fayetteville High School won out over the Goldsboro High School Playmakers in the first preliminary State Dramatic Contest held in Fayetteville on Thursday evening, March 28. A. C. Howell, of Chapel Hill, rendered the decision, giving Fayetteville 80 points out of a possible one hundred and Goldsboro 74.

This decision eliminated Goldsboro from participating in the remaining contest sponsored by the Carolina Dramatic Association in Chapel Hill. Fayetteville will now play Wilson, who won over Spring Hope, and the winner of this third preliminary will compete for State Championship in Chapel Hill.

Fayetteville presented a World War tragedy "For All Time" with its scene laid in Paris. It has a cast of four and was directed by Miss Grace Everett, the Fayetteville High Dramatic Director.

A fantasy "The Maker of Dreams", under the direction of Miss Margaret Kornegay, was given by the Goldsboro High School. The scene is of the fifteenth century type with only three characters taking part; namely, Lester Gillikin, Ruth Ellinwood, and Newbern Piland.

Although Lester and Newbern acted their parts to a seemingly perfection, special emphasis should be laid on the many compliments that Ruth received for having such a pleasant speaking voice.

Mr. Howell, the judge, said that her voice, besides being especially suitable for the stage, was one of the most pleasant ones that he had ever heard.

Having selected an excellent play, Miss Kornegay formed a graceful introduction to "The Maker of Dreams" by having Helen Ellinwood, Nell Kilpatrick, Florence Brooks, and Marion Weil do a fairy dance, but this could not be considered in the judging of the play.

Others that accompanied the dram-

GRIFFIN SPEAKS IN RALEIGH TO-NIGHT

REPRESENTING G. H. S., EZRA WON IN THE DISTRICT CONTEST IN THE STATE ORATORICAL CONTEST, LAST MONDAY NIGHT.

Ezra Griffin, representative of Goldsboro High School in the National and International Oratorical contests, was, by a unanimous decision, selected winner of the fifth district finals at the Memorial Community Building, April 27. As a result he is representing this district in the state contest in Raleigh tonight.

Ezra's subject was "The Constitution as a Guarantee of Liberty."

Fayetteville High School had a good representative in Miss Margaret Kirkpatrick who won second place.

Other speakers were Archie Ward of Lumberton High School, and Miss Katie Lee Hamilton of Princeton High School. Two other speakers were to compete in the contest, but failed to arrive.

The winner tonight will compete in New Orleans in the zone finals. The winner there will go to Washington, D. C., for National finals. Each contestant in the National Contest will secure a free trip to South America and points of interest along the route.

The contests in the United States are sponsored by leading newspapers of the country, "The Raleigh News and Observer" being the sponsor in North Carolina.

Rev. W. O. Cone, Mr. W. F. Taylor, and Mr. Derrick Hartshorn were the judges for the fifth district. Mr. Henry Belk, of the Goldsboro News presided.

SENIOR CLASS DECIDES ON INVITATIONS

At a meeting of the Senior Class held recently the Commencement invitations were decided upon. The same emblem that is on the class ring will appear at the top of the invitation, which is of a very dignified style. Everett-Waddy Company in Richmond is doing the engraving.

The visiting cards have also been decided upon.

JOURNALISTS UNEARTH INTERESTING HOBBIES

When "Joby" Matthews, Goldsboro's Future Wall Street Wizard, was asked about the nature of his hobby, he proudly replied: "Why I can spend the rest of my life dealing in stock. The stock markets are fascinating; they remind me of an elevator, up one minute and down the next. They can make one to be a millionaire one minute and a pauper the next." "Joby" consumes all of his leisure moments watching the market's ups and downs; and his instinct always tells him to invest his money in the right way. "If I could not calculate the profit to be derived from my investment, with complete accuracy, I am sure that I could never enjoy it," concluded Joseph.

As a result of Mr. Cone's interesting talk on hobbies Monday, March 18, the Journalism Class considered the possibility of conducting an investigation of the various hobbies of the G. H. S. students. Mr. Cone is the pastor of the Episcopal Church, and this is only one of the many interesting talks that he has given to the student body.

STUDENTS DISPLAY SHYNESS

When the journalism class began their investigations, they found some students, to whom questions were fired, were very slow indeed in giving an account of themselves. Most of them were extremely modest, bashful, and shy, when they learned that accounts of their hobby were to be published, but nevertheless the persistence of the reporters won out.

Henry Moore, a member of the Senior Class, was found to have a hobby of collecting old guns. French guns, German guns, Russian guns, Civil and Revolutionary War guns, are all among his collections. Henry, not knowing what it was all about, very freely gave his reasons for collecting such odd antiques. He says that old guns are much better than the new ones; that it, they will not crumble to pieces under harsh treatment. Besides the possibility of securing a very valuable gun, it seems that Henry is preparing for his future married life. To quote him: "Woe be unto the young female who fails to agree with me, for it has been only two days since

I tested my guns. Every one of them is in perfect condition and ready for action at any time."

THESE COLLECT MOVIE STARS.

Ted Phelps, of the Freshman class has an overflowing collection of movie star pictures. The most widely known lovers of the screen in his album are: Charles Farrell, John Gilbert, Greta Garbo, Janet Gaynor, and Nancy Carroll. Ted insists that such pictures as these will beautify the interior of any room. Although movie stars will send their pictures to any one upon request, Ted also takes advantage of Film Fun Magazine clippings. His hobby of collecting jokes from various sources ranks second to that of collecting pictures of movie stars. He has been gathering these witticisms for a number of years, and if they were published in book form, he believes that he would acquire a small fortune from them.

Ralph Summerlin, Zelma Minter, Sara Hall Carr, and Katherine Duke are also collecting movie star pictures.

Ed Outlaw and Eleanor Bizzell Make Good Showing and Lose by 3 to 2 Vote

McLEAN AND POWELL REACH 30 Mi. FINALS

Before an audience of 1500 people in the historical old Memorial Hall in Chapel Hill, Roanoke Rapids, upholding the negative side of the query: "Resolved, That the United States should join the World Court," won a 3 to 2 decision over Goldsboro on Friday night, April 19. The winners Floyd Adams and Sherard Crumpler, were awarded the Aycock Memorial Cup. This was the first time a Goldsboro team had reached the finals of the Triangular Debate.

Edward Outlaw and Eleanor Bizzell, Goldsboro affirmative team presented good arguments, but the convincing manner of the Roanoke Rapids team proved to be the deciding factor. The affirmative contended that the World Court was essentially of American origin, that the World Court was the only practicable step toward world peace at the present available, and that the objections to the Court were of minor importance. The negative argued that the U. S. already had adequate machinery for the settlement of international disputes, that the Court would entangle us in foreign affairs and that the World Court was undesirable.

Dr. Harry W. Chase, President of the University of North Carolina, presided; E. R. Rankin, acted secretary, while H. H. Williams, N. W. Walker, R. B. House, J. F. Royster and L. R. Williams of the University faculty, were judges.

Both teams went to the semi-finals. Goldsboro negative team, Dan Powell and Alexander McLean lost to Roanoke Rapids in the negative hall, while the local affirmative team, by virtue of their win in the affirmative hall, competed in the finals.

GLEE CLUB COMPETES IN STATE CONTEST; WON PRELIMINARY

GIRLS JOURNEY TO GREENSBORO FOR GENEFIT THEY WOULD RECEIVE IN HEARING GOOD HIGH CLASS MUSIC.

Twenty members of the Girls Glee Club of Goldsboro HI entered the state contest of Girls' Glee Clubs which was held at the North Carolina College for Women, in Greensboro, April 19 and 20. The girls won the privilege of entering this by winning in the class B district contest in Raleigh, May the 6th.

"The girls did not go to Greensboro expecting to win. They went for the benefit they would obtain from hearing good high class music," said Mr. W. L. Frederick, director of the Glee Club.

Arriving in Greensboro about 5 o'clock Thursday afternoon on a chartered bus, the girls were carried directly out to N. C. C. W. where a dormitory was set aside especially for the out of town guests. Thursday night most of the Goldsboro girls attended the Carolina Theatre, one of North Carolina's most beautiful theatres.

Friday morning was spent in wandering from auditorium to auditorium listening to different phases of the listening to different phases of the ed in. Then, at two o'clock all the Glee Clubs and mixed choruses of the Class B group, assembled in the Students' building. Each group had its seats marked off by standards which had the name of its town on them.

Goldsboro was sixth on the program and the girls were all white faced and appeared to be frightened to death when time came for them to perform.
