

A Swelegant Time

Gulpingly, I start my tedious journey down the receiving line—and after I've finished this ordeal I realize that it wasn't half bad. Sure, you've guessed it, we're having a super-gorgeous, swelegant time at the Junior-Senior Reception. Wandering to a seat, we flop down and gaze at this unimaginable "heaven on earth" that the gym has been transformed into. There comes Aunt Mayre (she's an Aunt now) and Hawley (ain't it unusual to see 'em together?) . . . Lorraine and Hardy Lee were together in the R. L. (short for receiving line) . . . wonder where Boddie is crying? Why, he ain't crying at all; there he is with that Modlin gal.

In a little while the lights are dimmed and quietness reigns (wasn't that flowery?) The Water Nymphs (composed of Freshies and Sophs) do their fancy dance; then there is a Bubble Dance, gee, but those children look nice (gran'ma speaking). After the May-Pole Dance and the assembling of Mother Goose characters before the king, Ross Ward and his Queen, that regal goodlooking Helen Hood, we finally eat. Good gosh! All the seats are being pushed back and if I don't dodge shifts, I'm gonna get knocked out.

Jean Edgerton is with Jack Wharton—wonder if George Simpson could bite nails? Why, no, he's with that cute little Harriet Noel. Gee, that's a pretty corsage Dot Turlington has on (mine's the prettiest) and guess who she's with? None other than old John Finn (or Glenwood Johnson to you).

What's this we're going to do? Oh, Paul Jones: Well, the girls start going to the right and the boys to the left. "Goon" Colie and I are holding to each other, and we promise that if one of us gets left out in the cold without a male that we'll stick together. There's the whistle. (Mr. Barrett's tooting it.) I reach out to grab a man what ain't there. Then I look around for "Goon," and she's forgotten our solemn promise, for there she is with Hugh-sie D. (who brung her) and suddenly she remembers and rescues me. Doesn't "Whesie" rate? . . . She came with "Thornton-Berry" Thompson.

Why, you don't mean it's almost 12 o'clock? And I was having such a good time. Then we Juniors sing a farewell song to the Seniors (sniff! sniff!), I'm not crying, I (sniff) just have a cold. So with my baby-blue dress torn, my make-up lost and my hair in shreds — incidentally these are the only casualties, I start out the door with my honey and say "au revoir" to the gym . . . ('till next Friday nite). E. J., '39.

Nelson Ferebee Taylor, a student of Oxford High School, won the Hubert Worth Jackson $2,000 scholarship of the University of North Carolina. James Crone was one of the twenty boys selected from 173 to be interviewed by the University Committee.

Several New Articles Added To Latin Museum

Latin I class, taught by Mrs. W. P. Middleton, which has been collecting Roman relics for a room museum, has recently added a number of new articles to their collection.

Included in the articles are: One terra cotta baby's rattle; 1 terra cotta broom wright; 1 sling shot, 2 terra cotta broken vases; 1 tip of a sword scabbard; 2 small pieces of Mesopotamian cuneiform; 1 marble base for a stand; 1 envelope of ancient and modern coins; 1 tin box with wax impressions of Mesopotamian seal; one 1936 calendar to show how the Roman papyrus roll was rolled; 1 envelope with a few modern Greek and Roman pieces of money; and 2 books of drawings.

Students are invited to visit the museum.

Now they have a bold whim
And dress more like her cupboard. —The Pitchfork, Marietta, Georgia.

Staff Announces Winners In Photography Contest

Winners in the photography contest recently sponsored by the Hi News have finally been selected.

Bill Cobb won the Scenic Division, in which there were five entries. His picture was selected by two of the judges, while Angeline Casey received one vote for first place.

Ted Burwell's entry was the unanimous choice in the Candid Division. There were four entries in this section.

Only one picture, taken by Ted Burwell, was entered in the Unusual Division which was not considered worthy of the prize.

The two winners will each receive $1.00 in trade at the Hi News shop.

Judges were Mr. and Mrs. Henry Belk and Mr. Henry Moore.

Seniors lolled idly at corners last Tuesday, scoffing at underclassmen rushing to stuffy classrooms, and heading for the city later in the day. Senior Sneak day, long-awaited day for the senior class, gave them opportunity to cut classes, leave the campus, enjoy forbidden pleasures and, in general, have a good time.
