Twirp Social Sponsored By S.A. Is Given

The woman was requested to pay during the year's first S. A. Social.

The TWIRP social was carried out in true Shadyside fashion, and pictures of the originators of TWIRP season, Freckles McGoosey and Lard Smith, teen-age comic characters, adorned the walls for the gala event held in William Street Gym on December 2.

Little Abner (Sonny Gainey) and the Scragg boys (the Harmony Four) entertained the boys and their escorts with several popular numbers. "Schmoosic" by Steve Dail and his harmonica with accompaniment by Peggy Hill also was a highlight of the event. "Flow Gently" McArthur presented her dancing Kigmies, and Elton "Hairless Joe" Warwick acted as master of ceremonies.

Corsages of vegetables, flowers, cigarettes and various other items adorned the lapel of all escorted boys. The prize offered for the best corsage went to Arthur Strider, who was escorted by Sara Casey. A stick of chewing gum was presented to Bobby Watson as a consolation prize.

Later in the night after refreshments and a few more dances the girls dragged their feminine-like dates home.

'All My Sons' Is Second Goldmasquer Production

The Goldsboro High School Goldmasquers opened their second production of the season with Arthur Miller's "All My Sons," which won for him the critic's award in 1947.

Mr. Miller duplicated his success with the current Broadway hit "The Death of a Salesman." "All My Sons" was presented Friday evening, December 9 and played through Saturday evening, December 10 with curtain time at eight fifteen.

The play was concerned with the fortunes of the Keller and Deever families. During the war Joe Keller and Herbert Deever ran a machine shop which made airplane parts. Deever was sent to prison because the firm turned out defective parts, causing deaths of many men. Keller went free and made a lot of money. The twin shadows of this catastrophe and the fact that the young Keller son was reported missing during the war dominate the action. The love affair of Chris Keller and Ann Deever returned from war to find his bitterness of George Deever his father's partner free, are all set in a structure of almost unbearable power. The production was under the direction of Clifton Britton, who gives the play the impact and electrifying intensity of the New York production.

The cast included some of Goldsboro's most outstanding adult talent. Barbara Edwards Griffith, the first North Carolinian to play the role of Eleanor Dare in Paul Green's "The Lost Colony" made her debut in the role of Mrs. Keller. Daron Ward who played in last season's popular hit, "The Tavern" turned in the finest performance of his career in the role of Joe Keller. Mary Olive Grady who will always be remembered for her performance in "The Land Is Bright" and "First Lady" returned to play Ann Deever. Karl Albert, one of Goldmasquers' popular actors, and who was last seen in the season's opening success "Ramshackle Inn" played Frank Luby. Harriette Thompson who during her high school career, played in such shows as "Lost Horizon," State Championship show "Farmer Brown's Pig" and "Smilin' Through," returned after four years to play Lydia Luby. Andrew Griffith, who now plays Sir Walter Raleigh in "The Lost Colony" and has appeared in such shows as "H.M.S. Pinafore" and "Egypt Land" at the University of North Carolina, made his debut in the role of George Deever. Kenneth Allen, president of Goldmasquers and who was last seen in "The Swan" made his first appearance this season in the role of Jim Bayliss. Harry Ward made his debut in the important role of Chris Keller. The production introduced a new child actor to the city who promises to make a hit. Wallace Wood played the role of Bert, and he bares watching.
