Time Covers A Lot Of Territory

By DORIS PAGE

The word "time" covers a lot of territory. Mr. Webster defines it as a measure of duration, whether past, present, or future, or as present life or existence.

That is the correct definition of what time is but everyone has his own personal definition of the word. "Having a time" can have many different meanings—depending on how it is used. It can mean having a wonderful time, having a horrible time, or not having a time at all.

Have you ever stopped to realize how unique a day is. One day is not like any other day. Though the days may sometimes seem alike, there is really a lot of difference.

For instance, today is April 26, 1950. There have been April 26's since time began but there has never before been an April 26, 1950, and there never will be another one.

All Time Is Different

It's the same with every second of every minute of every hour of every day. There will never be another one just like it.

Time is different from any other thing in the world. Though a plan has been devised for measuring it, it is intangible and there is no way to capture it and store it for future use.

In at least one respect, time is like money. It can pay interest. How we invest our time today will bring dividends tomorrow. If we waste our time or throw it away, we can't expect to get anything from it. It works on the proposition that you get out of it just what you put into it.

Time is deceitful. It can fool you. When you want it to pass quickly, it seems to drag by and when you want to stretch it as far as you can, it slips by before

Brain - Teaser Poll

What would you do with a SFORZATO? That is the question asked of the following students by a member of the Hi News Staff.

Here are some of the answers. James Cooke—Put it in my bed.

Winford Walker—Take it to work with me.

Joyce Cooper—Put it in my vocabulary.

Jane Jurkiewicz—Give it to Mrs. Yelverton.

Walter Culbreth—Give it to Darden to eat.

Betty Pierce—Eat it.

Jay Maxwell—Date it.

Frank Jeffrey—Keep it for a long time.

Charlie Hinnant — Give it to Shirley.

Bobby Montague—Spit on it.

Junior Cousins — Give it to Miss Simpson.

Bonnie Coley—Bring it to school.

Jimmy Shumate—Put it in Miss Ipock's bed.

Edith Long—Use it as an ornament.

Veryl Trueblood — File it for further use.

Joyce Mazingo — "You don't know, do you?"

Peggy Hill—Give it to Barbara to run over.

Patsy Ray—Send it to Carl in the Mediterranean.

Incidentally, a sforzato is a galley slave.

Time Will Fool You

Have you ever noticed how some days seem to have about 48 hours while others rush by in less than 12 hours. It all depends on how the time has been spent.

Time is precious. Every minute, every second counts. Every person has just so many years, so many days, hours, minutes, and seconds and every one that has passed brings him just that much closer to the end.

People sometimes try to grasp the past and not let it go. They are afraid to grow old and they try to keep the past in the present. But to be completely free of time, a person would have to escape into a world of his own where time had no meaning, and he would find that if time had no meaning, neither would anything else.

Should Live In Present

It is wrong to live in anything but the present. The past is gone and can never be brought back, and the future, no matter how much you plan for it, is always uncertain. No one can tell what may happen in his future.

So you see, the thing is to make the present count. If we had a chart all made out for us, telling when certain things would happen in our life and giving the exact date of our death, we could afford to put off things but we would know how long we had to make them up in. But there is no deadline on how long a person is going to live.

There is no way to rebel against time. Time was here before we came and it will be here when we are not. So, the only thing to do is to take it as it comes and make the most of it.
