

'Yard Men' Clean Campus

Local taxpayers are probably wondering how the senior high has enough money to pay all the "yard men" that can be seen on the campus nearly every afternoon.

Some work as "janitors", sweeping the rooms, dusting erasers, washing boards, waxing desks and many other odd jobs. Why? Are they so interested in keeping their school clean? No! They are violators of school rules. Those who smoke outside the rest rooms or are caught chewing gum in school fall in this category. Students who can't resist the temptation to skip classes are also put to work, usually for a longer time!

This regulation puts all this wasted energy to work for the beautification of the school grounds. (Wonder what would happen if the teachers were late for a meeting, or were just a wee bit late for the tardy bell?)

Call That Fun?

Is hypnotism for real? Is it fun to have your mind read? Can anyone really memorize that fast?

Such questions as these and others are raised when the famous hypnotist, Dr. Franz Polgar, arrives in town.

Billed as the world's greatest one man show, Dr. Polgar's "Fun With The Mind" program was presented last Friday in the school auditorium. This is the second such program sponsored in Rocky Mount by the Jaycees, and they felt that it is so good they guaranteed money back if not satisfied.

Dr. Polgar opened the program with an amazing feat of memory. Then he did the hypnotizing part of the program and many students and other citizens were hypnotized into doing odd and amusing things.

Musettes

An invitation has been issued to the Musettes to be pages at the NCEA meeting in Greenville, November 5. Another honor which has come to this group is that of giving the devotional at the North Carolina Future Teachers Convention, November 6.

Officers of the Musettes this year are Mary Frances Warren, president; Jessie Pittman, vice-president; Joy Ann Hayes, secretary; and Barbara Sulton, treasurer. Committee chairmen are Jessie Pittman, devotional; Charlotte Jones and Mary Manning, Scrapbook; Carolyn Rich, social; and Kathryn Batten, reporter.

Mrs. Van Buskirk and Miss Ella Cherry Moore are advisors for this group.

Projects

Since nature is putting on its beautiful fall dress, it's dried arrangement time again in the biology rooms.

Mrs. Van's and Mrs. Massey's students are each trying to excel in this work of art. After being instructed in the kinds of flowers that will dry out and still hold their color and how to aid nature in the drying process, the students were told to find the flowers, dry them, and then arrange them in attractive displays. Some of the arrangements are so small they are arranged in thimbles and some are as large and as beautiful as "store bought ones."

After studying the Anglo-Saxon and the medieval periods in English Literature, Mrs. Robbins' seniors were assigned projects written or otherwise. Some of the projects brought in are dolls dressed like the folk of the period, mead halls, swords and daggers, pictures of costumes, and houses of the era.

'Through Our Specs' Sophs Show School Spirit; Cast, Stage Crew At Work With Kat and Henry

Hi "Eagle-Eyed" Henry!
Here we are again letting others see through our specs to learn the news about school.

Students certainly have shown a lot of school spirit lately. I've noticed many at the football games. Under the direction of the cheerleaders, they really let the players know they are behind them too. A classic is the annual Rocky Mount - Wilson game, which is sure to draw a large crowd.

The Students Store has reported an increase in business in the past few weeks. An average of two or three dollars is received each day.

Sophomores really are getting in the swing of things. They show school spirit by attending the football games and cheering, supporting the Student Store, and leading in the magazine campaign.

So much for now, I'll see you in the next issue if the goblin's don't get you first!

The "Four-Eyed Kat"

Hey "Four Eyes"
Have you heard about "Blithe Spirit"? It's gonna be a great production, I hear. All parts have been cast and the ushers and the stage crew picked, and now all we have to do is wait for the final performance.

After all the work the House and Grounds Committee did to paint the lines on the parking area, workers came back to do a little more paving. Now all those pretty white lines and arrows are gone. As a driver I surely do hope someone puts them back. These marks really simplified parking.

The Fire Drill committee put up the signs in the homerooms to direct students when and if there's a fire. All they have to do now is to put up compasses so we'll know which way North-east semi-circle is. All kidding aside, they really are a big help to the students.

Until the Halloween Goblins get me.

Bobby Wimberley, Boy-Of-The-Month

To many students, Oscar Taylor is considered most lucky for having been chosen to attend the Southeastern Area Museum Conference in Miami, Florida, October 21-23.

Oscar was given this honor because of his untiring work at the local children's museum. This interest and activity started when the museum was in the library and continues today in its new location at Sunset Park.

panied them to Miami for the conference.

On the return trip, in the little time they had left, they visited a few of the larger museums along the coast.

It has been reported that their trip was interesting and profitable, and the ideas they acquired would be used to better the facilities of the children's museum here in Rocky Mount.

Taylor left for Miami last Tuesday by auto with Mrs. Mae W. Bell, director of the children's museum, and her mother. From here they went to Raleigh to pick up Mr. Hary Davis, director of the N. C. State Museum, who accom-

Bobby Wimberley, student organization vice president who was chosen this month's Kiwanis Boy-of-the-Month, has been quite active since he entered high school.

In addition to being vice president, Bobby was the president of the junior class last semester. He is also a member of the Service Club, having been elected when a junior.

Another field in which Bobby excels is sports. He has been on the varsity football team for two years and this year he is the first string offensive center. Two years ago he played junior varsity football and basketball. Last year Bobby was a member of the tennis team and was inducted into the BAFOS.

As recipient of this latest honor, Bobby will have lunch with the Kiwanians each Thursday during October.
