

Voting Voice Loud

Students aren't the only ones having a loud voting voice in the government of Rocky Mount Senior High School.

In a recent Student Organization meeting a vote concerning the delegates for the convention was called. When Fred Ruben, president, asked all in favor to signify by saying "Aye," the result seemed definite that everyone was in favor. Then he called for the opposition. There was a moment of silence. Then the loud vote of a tuba from the band room sounded off and left the entire meeting in a state of shock, followed by uncontrolled laughter from the students.

Work And 'Plays'

Group Enjoys Chapel Hill Trip

Six members of the dramatics classes went to Chapel Hill to attend a business meeting and a play presented by the Carolina Playmakers, October 15.

One feature of the trip was the play, "Ondine," starring Jane Albanks at the Playmakers Theater. The play is a fantasy and tells the tragic love story of Ondine and Hans.

Since there were no empty seats in the house and three encores were called, this reporter gets the idea that the play was intriguing.

Another interesting experience was a trip around the campus, followed by lunch at Lenore Hall, where Richard Burdick spoke on Southern Literature, written by and about Southerners. He gave a dramatic interpretation of "The Creation" by Weldon Johnson, and read other poems.

"The Bristol Theater" was discussed in a morning business meeting the group attended.

Those going with Mrs. Jackie Hathcock, adviser, were Frances Gay, Martha Fountain, Foy Bradshaw, Tony Floyd, Billy Dove and Graham Adams.

News From The Nest

By Barbara and Eleanor

Looking out of our nest, we see that the six-week's tests were killers.

Last Wednesday looked like Mother's Day at school. In case you are interested, they were meeting in 205 making plans for the PTSA program.

If you have seen us wandering around in odd and various places, we weren't skipping, only observing students at "work"??

First we took a "peep" in Miss Vause's fourth period English class. You should take lessons in posture and facial expressions from some of her students!

House Plans Drawn

Mr. Adkins is in the midst of building his home. Did you know some of the mechanical drawing students helped him draw his plans?

Boy! Biology is quite a class! If you walked by room 214 last Wednesday, you must be wondering what that awful smell was. Here's the lowdown on what happened. Mrs. Van was passing around a specimen of worms and "slippery fingers" Ricky Crowley dropped the glass container and the worms fell on the floor. We really walked in on quite a scene, girls screaming and boys laughing. In other words hysteria prevailed!!

Cowboy Hats Off

Fads come and go, and this one went fast!! Wonder what the boys did with their "cowboy" hats?! Maybe this is a sign that the senior high boys are finally growing up; they no longer play cowboys and Indians.

The latest news flash has it that the Ivy-League style is now being worn by girls as well as boys.

Alarm struck the girls when it was announced that the boys would have their pictures for Hi-Noc-Ar made first. Surprisingly the cameras were not broken!

Musical talent pops up every year. Last year it was the "Kool Ones"; now it's the "Choppers." From all reports they're tops!!

Candy Sale Success

The following is a note from the Musette Club;

Dear Barbara and Eleanor, We would like you all to thank the student body for their wonderful participation and co-operation during our candy sale. It was a grand success!!

Musette Club Secretary, Carol Wilson See you next month!

Two Clubs Honor Students Monthly

Ray Joyner, Fay Batts and Tommy Vaughan were honored by two civic groups as the outstanding students from the senior class for the month of October.

Kiwanis boy is Ray Joyner, and the Rotary girl and boy are Fay Batts and Tommy Vaughan. These two clubs honor the outstanding seniors by permitting them to attend the weekly meetings. The students get to enjoy the fellowship of the members, a planned program and a free luncheon.

Method of electing these students is simple. Mr. Edson gives the clubs the names, but the boys and the girls have already elected themselves by showing leadership in the school. Ray Joyner is vice-president of the student body and a cheerleader. Fay Batts went to Girls' State and Girls' Nation and was picked Tobacco Princess. Tommy Vaughan is the treasurer of the student body and a top football player.

Heretofore only a Kiwanis boy was selected each month, but the Rotary Club now entertains a boy and girl. This is the first time the girls have been so honored.
