

Fake Drill Excites Journalism Pupils

Screams and yells echoed down the halls of "A" building recently when Mrs. Margaret Williams' journalism class filed out for what they thought was a fire drill. As the bells weren't functioning properly, one rang at the wrong time.

David Lamm, another wide-awake journalist, was seen directing traffic, closing windows, and turning out lights in room 116.

With calm faces and pounding hearts, a normal fire drill was enacted. After reaching the hall everyone noticed that no other classes were filing out for the drill, yet with blank expressions they kept walking.

Then it struck like a bolt of lightning. Everyone went back into the class room laughing and talking about the "fake fire drill."

Incidents like this make us more aware of the importance of fire drills.

New Amendment Voted On By SO

During a recent Student Organization meeting, an amendment was proposed to the school Constitution. This amendment, which states that no Student Organization officer may succeed himself to two consecutive terms in the same office, has been passed by a three-fourths vote of the Student Organization representatives.

However, the homerooms must now ratify this amendment by a majority vote for this to become effective. The purpose of this amendment is to promote more interest in the Student Organization. This will allow more students to hold an office and to have a better idea of the various offices.

There are students, however, that believe this amendment would not allow fair representation, in that their choice might not be enforced. It is believed that the majority of our student body supports this amendment but a final decision will not be known until a later date.

The honor of Rotary Girl of the Month goes to Pam Daniel a vivacious and deserving senior.

In her duties at Senior High, she has served well as a member of the president's cabinet, foreign exchange committee, delegate to the North Carolina Student Council Congress, and head cheerleader the second year of her cheering career.

Pam's beauty and personality have carried her as far as her ability to lend a helping hand. She was a Miss Print candidate for three years, and a candidate in the Junior-Senior beauty court two years.

Pam is an active member of the Lakeside Baptist Church. Congratulations to two Outstanding Seniors!

Many New Practice Teachers Arrive To Complete Graduation Requirements In Preparation For Teaching Career

Every year at Rocky Mount Senior High, another group of students in the teaching profession complete their practice teaching here with what some call "the guinea pigs."

Practice teaching is the last phase to be completed before student teachers receive their diploma. After completing practice teaching and graduation these young teachers will take their place in this profession.

Most of our student teachers come to us from East Carolina College, yet a few come from Duke University and the University of North Carolina.

Miss Claire Pippin and Mrs. Peggie Harmon are practice teaching under Mrs. Evelyn Walston. Miss Pippin plans to teach French I, French II, and possibly Spanish after her graduation. Her hometown is Bunn. Mrs. Harmon, who is from Ahoskie, is also majoring in foreign languages. She is planning to teach after her graduation.

Miss Becky Wayne from New Bern is completing her practice teaching under Mrs. Thelma Lundy in the physical educational department. Miss Wayne is planning to teach health and physical education after the completion of her graduation.

Practice teaching under Mrs. Nellie Winstead are Miss Jane Oglesby and Mr. Bill Hudson. Miss Oglesby, who is from Morehead, is planning to teach in the field of business. Mr. Hudson, a native of Rocky Mount, is also majoring in business.

Mr. Charles Sexton who is from Tarboro is a student teacher in government and world history under Mr. Ralph Gorham. Mr. Sexton is planning to teach history after his graduation.

Students Go To Goldsboro Game

On February 9, many enthusiastic students crowded into three chartered buses to journey to Goldsboro for a basketball game.

A bus filled with seniors led the way, all carrying hopes of winning this unforgettable basketball game. Following the seniors were a mixture of freshmen, sophomores, and juniors, while many students decided to travel by car.

After having filled the stands in the Goldsboro gym, the crowd cheered the Blackbirds along. Battling and scrapping for every important point, the 'Birds lost by a score of 35 to 30. This upset put the Blackbirds in third place in the conference and was a severe blow to the team and the students.
