

Pupils Have Christmas Jobs

Many students are working in various stores in Albemarle during the Christmas holidays. Listed below are some of the students who are working:

This is in addition to the D. E. students who are holding regular jobs.

Past Christmases

"Last Christmas I worked during the holidays. Since I earned my own money for gifts, etc., Christmas really meant more to me. I really got more into the Christmas spirit seeing everyone shopping and getting ready for Christmas."—Sherry Pegram.

Although Christmas may be celebrated in different ways in different countries the meaning is still the same.

"In France the children put their shoes by the Christmas tree for le pere Noel (Santa Claus) to fill them with candy. I remember one year after we had all

Many New Books Placed In Library

New books, both fiction and non-fiction, have recently been received by the library.

These books have been placed in the library window and may now be checked out.

Some of these books are: Julius Caesar, John Gunther; The New Africa, Ellen and Attilio Gatti; Out of the Wilderness, Virginia S. Eifert; In the Hands of the Senecas, Walter D. Edmonds; America Moves Forward, Gerald W. Johnson; and Friend Within the Gates, Elizabeth Grey.

All students are urged to visit the library and read one of these new books.

Comes The Dawn

It lies on a slight rise, thrusting its lone tentacle into the sky. For perhaps seven hours a day, its every chamber shimmies from the roar of blended voices that whisper and shout every lover's secret and every greeting.

Then in the peak of the afternoon, a sudden rushing roar is amplified through the building, and then dies quickly and silently.

placed our shoes under the tree my brother sneaked back with my father's shoe! He wanted to make sure he didn't get cheated just because he had small feet! —Marie Ruffat.

IN OUR MAILBAG

Dear Mrs. Westerlund:

Thank you for allowing us the privilege of participating in your College Day program on November 27.

The students appeared interested and well informed, and I thoroughly enjoyed my visit.

Marion Durham
Cabarrus Memorial Hospital

Dear Mrs. Westerlund:

May I express our appreciation to you and the members of the National Honor Society for the excellent College Day program.

Our guidance counselors and students have said that it was a most meaningful experience to them. Many were able to get first-hand answers to questions that were disturbing them about their advanced education.

Elizabeth B. Simpson
Montgomery County Public Schools

Dear Mrs. Westerlund:

Thank you so much for letting Mitchell College be a part of your College Day program this year. We feel that it was very beneficial for Mitchell and we

ly. Some noises still remain, the sloshy plop of mops, the clattering of wash buckets and the swish of the brooms on its corridors, but it feels that a chilling, lingering stand at death's door is right next to it, for the night sends the chill deeper and much more piercingly.

In the morning, its fires are started, sending the warmth of its awakening to its every part.

Then as the first teachers and pupils arrive, Albemarle Senior High gets a new lease on life, glowing with pride at its human content.

hope that your students benefited in return.

If we at the college may be of assistance to you, your faculty, or students during the school year, please do not hesitate to call us.

Carl A. Litaker
Mitchell College

Dear Mrs. Westerlund:

As a representative of the seniors of Stanly County, I wish to express to you our appreciation for such an excellent College Day program.

I am gratified to observe the receptiveness of our students. I'm sure all of them have profited by having attended a meeting of this kind.

Martha R. Rogers
Stanly County Schools

Dear Mrs. Westerlund:

Having our school of nursing represented at College Day was a great privilege. Some of your students seem to be excellent prospects for our school and we appreciate the opportunity of visiting with them.

If we can be of any help to you or your students, please let us know.

Ethel F. Burton
Charlotte Memorial Hospital

Dear Mrs. Westerlund:

It was most kind of you to include West Montgomery High School in your College Day program. Each of us received much information and inspiration.

We know that many hours of planning and organizing went into this beautifully executed program and we thank you so much for favoring us with an invitation.

ASHS Red Cross Plans Projects

The A.S.H.S. chapter of the Red Cross has undertaken several projects for this school year. One of these projects is to make one hundred special occasion cards for the Veteran's Hospital in Salisbury. This project has been started but has not been completed. In September, the Club members helped with the Red Cross booth at the Stanly County Fair. In the spring, they plan to sponsor an Easter egg hunt for the underprivileged children of the county.

The Red Cross representatives for this year from their respective homerooms are: Kay Cagle, Mrs. Young; John Gore, Mrs. Fry; Sylvia Fesperman, Mr. Nye; Chuck Miller, Mrs. Carter; Diane Huneycutt, Mrs. Deese; Gene Mauldin, Mr. Tyson; Karen Hatley, Mrs. Gamewell; Nancy Cagle, Mrs. Tesh; Mary Henderson, Mrs. Westerlund; and Judy Hensley, Mr. Hatley.

Officers have been elected to serve this year. They are: Jane Crutchfield, president; Pam Tarleton, vice-president; and Anita Taylor, secretary.
